Court Reserves Decision on Plan B

No Decision in Mandamus Hearing But Judge Believes Voters Should Be Given Chance to Vote on Plan B

The arguments in the two mandamus hearings on Plan B charter and the removal of the board of election commissioners, which were presented before Judge DeCourcy at the spureme court in Boston this afternoon, were concluded at 4 o'clock at which time the court reserved his decision in both instances. Before adjournment Judge DeCourcy stated that he is strongly inclined to the belief that the petition brought by the mayor against the secretary of hte commonwealth and the city clerk should not be allowed. He further stated that as far as he knew over 3000 voters wished for an opportunity to vote on the Plan B charter and he felt they should be given a right to do so. Judge DeCourcy did not discuss the petition of the old election commission.

SPICY TESTIMONY AT HEARING TODAY

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—All evidence in the two mandamus cases that have grown out of Lowell's Plan B charter controversy was completed before Judge Charles A. DeCourcy, of the supreme court at the time of noon recess today and arguments of counsel were scheduled for 2 p. m. It is believed the court will reserve decision in each case.

This morning's session was replete with sensational testimony of Hugh C. McOsker, Thomas H. Braden and J. Omer Allard of the original election commission. Mayor Brown, Joseph A. Clonatre, City Clerk Flynn and City Messenger Monahan also took the witness stand.

Mr. McOsker, first witness called by Attorney Howard, created a sensation when he testified that the mayor called him into his office at city hall nine days before the petition was signed and asked him to "do a job on it," and added "Braden will be with you." This was on September 16 at 3.15 p. m. and Mr. McOsker testified that he and the mayor were alone at the time and that he went there on the mayor's solicitation. "The mayor said to me I want you to do everything in your power to prevent those names from being certified' said Mr. McOsker. "Mr. Braden will be with you and I think we can get the other two. I will promise Allard a reappointment. The public will believe you in preference to the other two.' Mr. McOsker also testified that the mayor called to his attention the fact that he appointed him to the commission when some one else might have been given the job.

Cross-examined by City Solicitor Tierney the witness said that no alleged forgery had been called to his attention until after certification had been completed.

"What did you do to correct any errors that might have arisen through forgery?" asked Mr. Tierney.

"We couldn't do anything," replied McOsker, "the petition had passed out of our hands."

Mr. Tierney asked him if he had not been shown affidavits in the mayor's office and while Mr. McOsker admitted that he had seen them there he said that they had not been given to him to read and didn't know their exact nature.

Mr. McOsker told of the meeting of the election commission when Mr. Clouatre had been temporarily appointed in the place of J. Omer Allard and the refusal of Messrs. Braden and Maguire to meet. He was asked by Mr. Tierney if Braden said: "I refuse to serve with that," pointing towards Mr. Clouatre. "He did," replied Mr. McOsker. Mr. McOsker explained the method followed in checking the signatures on the Plan B petition and said that the board acted at all times in accordance with instructions received from the secretary of the commonwealth.

Mr. Tierney at this time stated that the petition was filed with the election commission on Sept. 25 and with the city clerk on the 26th. He claimed this was most material and said that he would attempt to prove that this was the only time the petition was duly filed with the city clerk, although at that time only a few names had been checked.

Examined again by Attorney Howard, Mr. McOsker said that if the board had checked all the names with the original signatures on file, it would have required three months. He testified also that there was another petition filed with the board but was not used because a sufficient numbor of signatures was secured from the original petition.

Thomas H. Braden was then called to the witness stand and he repeated his testimony given before the city council relative to the mayor's visit to his office at the Middlesex street depot on the day the petition was filed. On cross-examination Mr. Tierney asked "Are you and the mayor friends?" and Mr. Braden replied, "Yes, sir, we always have been and I still am friendly with him."

J. Omer Allard testified in reply to questions by Attorney Howard that he called the office of the secretary of the commonwealth by telephone on Sept. 25 and was told by Mr. Boynton that the petition should be filed with the city clerk and that the five-day clause applied to the commission as well as to the city clerk. "Mr. Boynton told me," said Mr. Allard, "that the proper method of procedure was to certify the names on the petition from the check list and said that to compare each name with the original signature on file would have been a physical impossibility within the time limit."

City Clerk Flynn testified as to the time of filing the petition with him

JUSTICE DECOURCY

by Frederick H. Desmond and his subsequent certification to the city council.

Mayor Brown Testifies

Mayor Brown was the first witness called by Mr. Tierney on the petition which names the secretary of the commonwealth and the city clerk as respondents. The mayor admitted meeting Mr. McOsker in his office on the afternoon of Sept. 16, but denied Mr. McOsker's testimony for the most part. He said he told the chairman of the commission he believed a petition would be filed within a few days with 70 per cent of the signatures fraudulent.

"Mr. McOsker told me," said the mayor, "that both he and Mr. Braden were friendly disposed towards me and they assured me of every co-operation."

The mayor also told of the conversation with Mr. Braden in the latter's office, but said that all that took place consumed only a very few minutes and was restricted to conversation regarding how many names had been checked on that day.

"Just before we got through talking," said the mayor, "Mr. Braden told me that he was watching Mr. Maguire and that Mr. McOsker was watching Mr. Allard."

The mayor testified as to his investigation as to the alleged fraud and that 643 postal cards and many affidavits were offered as evidence.

He stated no personal motives were involved in his removal of the commissioners; nor did he have any interest in the Plan B petition other than his official duty.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howard, he was asked this question:

"You might not be elected mayor again if Plan B should go on the ballot and be accepted, is that not so?"

"That is possible, but not probable," replied the mayor.

"You appointed Mr. Tierney city solicitor and he has served as your personal counsel for some time?" asked Mr. Howard. The mayor replied in the negative.

Speaking of the hearing conducted by the city council after the first removal, Mr. Howard asked if it was not so that the city messenger had the second removal notices in his hand before the first reinstatement was voted by the council. The mayor replied that was not so.

Judge DeCourcy questioned the mayor at length regarding several of his statements. The mayor in reply said he removed the commission for the first time after it had refused to meet with Mr. Clouatre as a temporary member.

Mr. Howard jumped up and said: "You did not make that a basis of your removal when you filed your reasons, did you?"

"Well, I didn't specify it," replied the mayor.

"Your reasons for removal did not include that one at all?" asked Mr. Howard.

"No, they did not," said Mr. Brown.

"Have you ever said to any one within the past few days that if this

WERE NOT HUMAN BONES

Man Digs Trench in Centralville and Discovers Part of Skeleton

The bones unearthed in Bunker Hill section in Centralville last night by a man digging a trench in his back yard are not human bones, but the bones of some large domestic animal, either a horse or cow. This is the report given out today by Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith, who was called to that section of the city this morning.

Last night, about dusk, a resident of Bunker Hill avenue started to dig a trench in his back yard preparatory to putting in a concrete wall. To his concern he dug up several bones after he had dug down a few inches. Recalling the fact that a human skull had been unearthed in that section about two years ago, the digger ceased operations and notified a neighbor, Joseph E. Fontaine.

The latter immediately got in touch with Officer Gilbert Sheridan and the matter was reported at the station. This morning Lieut. Martin Maher and Dr. Smith went to the scene and examined the bones. Dr. Smith quickly realized that they were not human bones. They were again buried and the incident closed.

Meanwhile, detectives were checking up on newly acquired information, some of which was declared to be extremely important. Great secrecy as to the nature of it was maintained.

It was announced at County Prosecutor Stricker's office today that chemists who had analyzed earth from the spot where the bodies were found, had come to the conclusion that the slayings took place at that spot and that Mrs. Mills' throat had been cut after her heart stopped beating.

NEW HAMPSHIRE TEXTILE STRIKERS ATTEND MEETING HERE

Delegates From Various Cities Discuss Strike Conditions in New England—Meeting Held Under Auspices N. E. Strategy Board of United Textile Workers

Thirty delegates, representing textile strikers of various New Hampshire cities and Lowell, gathered in this city this morning to discuss textile strike conditions in various parts of New England. The meeting was held under the auspices of the New England strategy board of the United Textile Workers and present were representatives from Manchester, Dover, Nashua, Suncook and Somersworth, N. H., and Lowell.

The meeting, which was called at 10 o'clock, was presided over by John Hanley, chairman of the local strike committee. Reports from various cities were submitted and a lengthy report of strike conditions in Manchester, N. H., was given. The delegates from the Queen city reported that the conference between a strike committee, a citizens' committee and officials of the Amoskeag Mfg. Co., which was scheduled to be held yesterday, did not materialize and that the end of the strike is as far away as it ever was. It was stated that the strike and citizens' committees met at city hall and then went to the office of the Amoskeag Co., to meet Treasurer Dumaine, but word was sent them that unless they agreed to admit a committee of three strike breakers at the conference, the treasurer would have nothing to do with the committee. Word was sent right back to Treasurer Dumaine that the strikers would have nothing whatever to do with strike breakers, and the matter was brought to a sudden end without the conference materializing.

After discussing the strike conditions in various cities, the meeting voted its moral and financial support to the strikers and adjournment was taken, a great number of the delegates going to Manchester to attend a mass meeting this afternoon. The Lowell delegates at the meeting were John Hanley, Joseph E. Jemery, Frank Stimpson, Mrs. Annie Reagan and Organizer Thomas J. Reagan of the United Textile Workers of America.

MaADOO FLAYS ADMINISTRATION

Declares Harding's Policies Have Reduced Country to State of Appalling Disaster

Restriction of Farm Credits Forced Rapid Sale of Farm Products and Livestock

Depression Followed—Farmers Never Before in Such an Unfortunate Situation

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 18.—William G. McAdoo in a speech last night said deduction of farm credits "by the present administration in co-operation with the powerful influences of Wall street" and the "blighting effects of President Harding's policies of deflation and normalcy" have reduced the country "from a condition of unexampled prosperity to a state of appalling disaster."

Mr. McAdoo asserted that the restriction of farm credits under the republican administration had forced the rapid sale of farm products and livestock to such an extent that the value of those products for the entire country had been reduced from $14,000,000,000 in 1919 to $5,700,000,000 in 1921.

The former cabinet officer said business depression had followed the reduction in consequence of which the farmers and stockmen were "never before in such an unfortunate situation as they are today."

"Linked with this to the disadvantage of the farmer and stockman," Mr. McAdoo went on, "was the inauguration of the republican foreign policy, which has reduced export trade more than 40 per cent during the first year of the republican administration."

URGES BUSINESS MEN TO USE DAILY PAPERS

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—"If your business depends upon local distribution back up your long range campaign with close range methods. Utilize your daily newspapers. Place and use enough space in all your efforts to be specific and definite in describing your products. Simply because we and our associates may know all about our goods is no sign that the public knows us."

This was the theme of the address of Charles W. Myers, advertising manager of Morris & Co., packers, of Chicago, before the meeting of the Pilgrim Publicity association at the Hotel Bellevue yesterday afternoon.

"Advertising," he said, "takes root the very instant that a label is placed on an article. Each time the name is repeated, the function of advertising is apparent. The limits of its salability are determined by the policy of advertising.

"With all our knowledge of advertising and selling, some manufacturers and retailers through their advertising departments persist in sailing uncharted seas. They proclaim to themselves that their products are so different that the safe, sound and tried methods will not do. Frequently and most unfortunately, too, there is too wide an abyss between the head of the concern and the head of the advertising department."

E. Frederick Cullen also spoke. There were about 175 at the meeting and the luncheon that preceded it.

FAIR AND ENTERTAINMENT

The R. F. Butler Relief Corps will hold a fair, luncheon and entertainment in Memorial hall this evening from 6 o'clock until 10. Mrs. McQuade is chairman of the entertainment committee and has arranged a lengthy program of vocal and instrumental pieces.

THIRD LEG OF TEST

18 Horses Still in the Running in 300 Mile Endurance Grind

BURLINGTON, Vt. Oct. 18.—The field of horses competing in the annual 300 mile endurance test to determine the type most suitable for army mounts was further reduced at the start of today's 60 mile run. Cascade, a Morgan gelding, was withdrawn because of stiffness and fatigue, leaving 18 horses still in the running. John Gowette, riding Major S., came down, also wearied by the first two days and Captain Tate of Fort Ethan Allen replaced him as rider.

Thirteen of the 18 horses got away on the third installment of the test promptly at 6.30 this morning, the earliest possible starting time. The others idled out some minutes later.

In the cavalcade that swept down the autumnal roads the Morgans Fairlady and Gladstone, the crossbred Arab Bustem Bey, Touto Belle, an Anglo-Arab, and Pathfinder, a thoroughbred, seemed to have most spirit and to have stood up best under the strain of the test so far.

The run today was to St. Albans and return.

SOVIET ULTIMATUM TO PEKING GOVERNMENT

PEKING, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press) The Soviet government at Moscow, through its envoy here, Adolph Joffre, has presented a flat demand to the Peking foreign office that Chinese desist from permitting armed "white" forces to concentrate on Chinese territory for attacks on Siberian soil.

The Soviet government briefly charges that the authorities of North Manchuria are assisting the "whites" to deal a blow at the Russian people and enumerates in support of the charge a long series of attacks made against Siberian territory from China during the last three years.

REPORT SUCCESSES FOR RED ARMY

MOSCOW, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—Despatches from Chita claim a series of successes for the red army of the Far Eastern republic in its drive against the whites along the Trans-Siberian railway in the direction of Vladivostok.

Partisans of the reds report that they blew up Gen. Kappell's troop train near Grodekov, 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok, on Oct. 13, killing or wounding many soldiers.

The whites are understood to be entrenching in the region of Nikolsk and Ussuri, where they are bringing up ammunition and artillery in preparation for a stand.

OFFICER HOLLAND DEAD

Well Known Member of Police Department Passed Away Last Evening

James E. Holland, a member of the Lowell police department for 39 years and a faithful officer highly esteemed by his superiors and brothers of the rank, died last evening at his home, 34 Second avenue, after an illness of about seven weeks. The officer had been in failing health for some time previous to his last illness, but kept at work steadily, being detailed as inspector of minor licenses. He was obliged to relinquish his work a short time ago, however, by advice of his physician, but failed to rally.

Officer Holland was popular everywhere throughout the city, with a long and meritorious record of police work rarely equalled in local police department annals. He had been a resident of Lowell for many years and was appointed to the supernumerary police force as early as July, 1883. In January of the following year he was promoted to the regular force.

For many years he served as regular patrolman, giving excellent service at all times and having many trying experiences while performing his duties "on the line." After capable service as patrolman, Officer Holland was appointed wagon officer, holding the position up to about 10 years ago, when was made provisional sergeant of the liquor squad by former Mayor O'Donnell. For four or five years he discharged his duties faithfully and conscientiously. Later he was transferred to the license department as an inspector, performing these duties up to the time of his last illness.

Officer Holland held the esteem and confidence of his superiors and fellow officers. He was a man absolutely without fear, and his sole ambition was to carry out the orders given him by his superiors. Personally he was a most companionable citizen and had often regaled his friends with stories and incidents of his long term of service in the local police department.

Many of the men he was associated with in the early days of the local force have passed away, but Officer Holland always liked to discuss the characteristics and personalities of his late brothers in uniform, whom he always respected highly. He liked to tell his friends some of the striking points in the careers of other policemen who appealed to him as being worthy of mention when the lives and deeds of guardians of the law were being considered in conversations at police headquarters and elsewhere. Many Lowell citizens will remember the late officer as plain "Jim" Holland—a loyal friend, whose friendship was worth acquiring.

Deceased leaves besides his wife, Mrs. Mary (Dunfey) Holland, a niece, Mrs. E. I. Bissonette, Jr. The officer was a member of the Lowell Police Relief association, the Massachusetts State Police Relief association and Court Merrimack, F. of A.

Police Convention

through the building acted as escorts for others who later arrived.

As soon as the delegates arrived most of them went direct to the Auditorium where they were tagged with the little red silk badge that designated them as official members of the convention. Most of the delegates came over the road in machines and some of them went on tours of the city this morning. There were plenty of the townspeople willing and ready to point out places of interest and it was noticed that the delegates were being taken care of from all sides. The wideawake local committee started to function early last night and had representatives stationed at every hotel where the men were to stay, at every approach to the city and at the Auditorium.

Luncheon Served

Shortly after 9 o'clock a buffet luncheon was established in Liberty hall of the Auditorium where visitors, a bit chilled after long rides in the brisk morning air, were given hot coffee and sandwiches. The buffet will continue to function throughout the convention period.

Michael McDermott of Fall River, president of the association, took charge of the meeting at 1 o'clock. He called the session to order and after the usual preliminary business was gone over the convention got right down to business.

It was said that only routine business will be on tap this afternoon and that the election of officers will not be held until tomorrow. The convention will adjourn shortly before four o'clock to meet again tonight for the big banquet for which all arrangements have been completed.

Governor Will Attend

According to the committee Gov. Cox will be on hand at the banquet and will make a short address. Members of the courts for this county will be guests at the affair and it is expected that all of the district court officials will be in attendance.

The local committee in charge of the convention includes Edward F. Flannagan, Clyde Aldrich, Patrick Conroy, Jerome Cullen, William Liston, Thomas Riley, Henry Deering and John Fanning.

The police association at the present time has a total membership of 3233 members. The following cities and towns have sent delegates to this convention:

Plan B Is On Ballot

the court decides against putting question on ballot.

The question reads as follows: "Shall the city of Lowell adopt the form of government defined as Plan B, and consisting of a government by a mayor and councillors, elected partly at large and partly from wards or districts, with elections to be held annually, according to chapter forty-three of the general laws relating to city charters?"

There are five referendum questions on the ballot, two or three of which have caused more or less interest locally. The three most important ones are those having to do with a motion picture censorship, the enactment of a law that will hold the violators of the liquor laws liable to criminal prosecution under Chapter 427 of the Acts of 1922, and the question which says that a district attorney must be a member of the bar of the commonwealth.

The ballot received from Frederic W. Cook, secretary of the commonwealth, is one of the most lengthy received in years. The preface to the list of names and questions is under a Boston date line of Oct. 17 and reads as follows. "I certify that the following is a list of all the candidates duly nominated to be voted for in the Seventh and Eighth Middlesex senatorial district, November 7, 1922, and the form of all questions to be voted on at said elections."

Fined $1 a Word For His Remark

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Morris Leveritz was fined $1 a word by a magistrate today for a five word remark he was charged with having made in reference to Miss Gladys Edwards when a strong wind was blowing in Central Park. The charge was disorderly conduct.

YARDMASTERS GET INCREASE IN PAY

Five railroad men with excellent records in the local service of transportation lines covering the so-called Lowell district, are affected by the action of the United States railroad labor board in Chicago yesterday in granting an eight-hour day with overtime to about 2,000 yardmasters on 26 class 1 railroads and at six switching terminals. Men on all three of the principal roads entering Massachusetts will benefit by what is said to amount to nearly a 25 per cent increase in pay.

The yardmasters affected by the new ruling in the Lowell territory are:

Patrick Burke, of the North yard; Fred Pratt of the Bleachery yard; George LeClair of the Hale street yard; J. M. Ward, night yardmaster of the North yard; Herbert Currier, night yardmaster of the Bleachery yard.

This is the first time, The Sun was informed today at the local yards, that the railroad board has established rules and working conditions for yardmasters, who are now classified as subordinate officials and subject to the board's jurisdiction under the transportation act.

The new rules provide that yardmasters required to work seven days a week shall be given two days off each month.

NEVER CAN SMILE, BOY SUES FOR $10,000

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18—Nine year old Joe Bevilaque is asking a jury in county court to award him $10,000 because he never again can smile.

A year ago the boy was in an automobile accident, the touring car in which he was riding being demolished by a truck. His face was cut by flying glass and it was discovered when he came out of the hospital that he had lost control of the facial muscles.

Joe's father, acting as his guardian, is suing the owners of both machines involved in the accident.

OBJECT TO B. U. REPORT

In a report appearing yesterday relative to a meeting of members of the Boston University Alumni in North Chelmsford, it was stated that an entertainment followed the business session and names were used in connection with the impersonation of certain characters. The young ladies whose names appeared, object very much to the article as sent to the newspapers, because of the fact that no such impersonations were presented.

The organist of one of London's best known churches is a boy of 13 who has never had a lesson in his life.

MOSES RAPS BANKERS

Charges Selfish Designs in Advocacy of Cancellation of Foreign Debts

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 18.—Cancellation of the debts of Europe to this country is sought by international bankers to fortify their own private loans to Europe, which amount to at least half of the 11 billion dollar total owed to the United States, said Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire in an address here last night.

Senator Moses also charged William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, with responsibility for having acquired no security for the war loans.

The proposal for the cancellation of the debt Senator Moses said, is one of the methods by which the propagandists seek "to work the United States into the obligations and implications" of the treaty of Versailles.

The bankers, he said, "with extreme cunning had planted in the treaty a rake-off for themselves of six billion dollars at least."

"Balked in securing this money," Senator Moses continued, "by bringing the United States with its material resources to the support of the unconscionable reparations clauses of the treaty, they now seek through a cancellation of the 11 billion dollars which Europe owes to us to fortify their own private loans to Europe which amount to at least half that sum.

Their spokesman appearing before the convention of the American Bankers' association in New York, the other day adverted to this subject and warned the American people to quit fooling themselves about the foreign debt. I say that the American bankers should quit fooling themselves."

Senator Moses spoke at a rally in the interests of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and in place of the latter who is recovering from a cold.

TROTZKY MAKES DENIAL

Ridicules Idea That Russia Becoming Militaristic and Imperialistic

MOSCOW, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press.)—The idea advanced by some sections of the foreign press that Russia is becoming militaristic and imperialistic because of the revival of her naval forces, was ridiculed by War Minister Trotzky yesterday in an address before the Union of Young Communists. Quite the contrary was true, he said, as the fleet was being re-established for home defense only.

"We have absolutely no imperialistic aims," he said. "Therefore, we need no navy for any international purposes. We want peace. We want to re-establish our economics. But at the same time we must see to it that our doors are firmly locked to assure our own security."

ALLIES BAR THE TURKS

Refuse to Allow Kemalist Police on Way to Thrace to Enter Constantinople

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press) The allied missions reached a unanimous decision today forbidding the Kemalist gendarmerie destined for Thrace to enter Constantinople. The British navy has been ordered to stop all vessels bearing Turkish Nationalist police.

The order produced keen disappointment among the exuberant Turkish population which had made preparations on a vast scale to welcome the Kemalists.

URGES ACTION ON SHIP SUBSIDY BILL

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—Delay in enactment of the administration ship subsidy bill would mean "playing into the hands" of foreign shipping interests whose opposition to the legislation should make clear to the American people that it is vital to the future of their merchant marine. Commissioner Plummer of the United Stats Shipping board declared in an address today before the convention of industrial engineers on board the steamship President Harding here.

Mr. Plummer emphasized the importance of the provisions of the bill for co-ordinating railroad and shipping service for the benefit of American exporters which was possible he said, only through its government aid provisions and also what he believed would be its inevitable effect of generally reducing transportation costs at sea through American competition.

"GOOD AMERICAN JOKE"

Belgian Author Learns He Has Been a Professor of Princeton for Six Years

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—Dr. Henri Piorenne, noted historian and Belgian author, who is lecturing here this week, has been a professor of Princeton university for six years, but had no knowledge of the fact until he made his visit here. In 1916 after he had been deported into the interior of Germany from Belgium, where he taught in the University of Ghent, the members of the Princeton faculty arranged to have him made a lecturer in the university, and through President Wilson appealed to the kaiser for his release from prison.

The kaiser refused the request, and did not inform the captive of the activities in his behalf. It was not until he came here to speak on the "Origin of the Cities of Western Europe" that he was informed of his status as a faculty member. He called the affair a "good American joke."

CONTINUOUS STREAM OF REFUGEES

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Bulgaria, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press.)—Within the last six days this city has become a great refugee center. The flood of exiles from Eastern Thrace suddenly began Friday and since then the stream has been continuous.

The arrivals are principally Armenians who fled in panic at the first news of the impending return of the Turks. Many were robbed en route by Thracian bandits, and few have more than sufficient supplies for two or three days. A hastily organized relief committee composed mainly of local Americans and Armenians has sent an urgent appeal to Constantinople for aid from the near east relief and the American Red Cross.

BIG DECREASE IN R. R. FIRE LOSSES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Fire losses on railroads in this country declined nearly $3,000,000 in 1921 as compared with 1920, G. L. Ball, president, told the Railway Fire Protection association at the opening session of its convention. Railroad fire losses in 1921, he said, totalled $7,589,611 against $10,500,000 in 1920. Arrests May Be Made Today

Mills, wife of the church sexton and choir leader, to the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, was made today by the authorities as they continued their efforts to solve the mystery of the slaying of the couple Sept. 11.

Unaddressed and unsigned, the letters are filled with terms of endearment. In them the minister is often referred to as "sweet, adorable, babykins." They speak of "a love nest" of a woman's dreams of true love, and describe the varied moods of a woman loved and loving without the conventions.

Excerpts from the letters follow:

"'Dearest, dearest boy, wasn't I happy to find a sweet note for I didn't expect you would risk leaving one for me yesterday? Such delicious eclairs."

"My darling, how well you seem today. I am tired—want to lie and rest for hours."

"Oh, you sweet adorable babykins of mine."

"How glad I am school resumes tomorrow and I can be alone to write. I need my dream times, my hours alone, and other people irritate and disturb me."

"My love is deep, calm, quiet today. I am in a mood to listen to music."

"I'd build a waiting love nest. People would mean nothing. I had rather watch the bugs and ants as they crawl along. Don't you love to watch an ant as it creeps along, honey?"

"And darling, sweetheart, I long for our love to be the purest—ideal—as pure as we can make it, for then it is truest to nature."

"I know I'm a crazy cat."

"Darling mine, didn't you feel me purring blissfully contented? And close to you, too."

"Sweetheart, my true heart, I could crush you—Oh, I am wild tonight."

"I have the greatest of all blessings—a noble man's deep, true, eternal love and my heart is his—my life is his—all I have is his—I am his forever."

"I am holding my sweet babykin's face in my hands and looking deep into his heart and reading there the message that makes me live—gives me strength and life."

300,000 ACRES OF TIMBER PRESERVED

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—More than 300,000 acres of timber in the United States have been preserved this year for the future by the use of waste paper in the manufacture of new, Grellet Collins, president of the Book Paper Manufacturers' association told the members at their meeting here today. "The shortage of waste paper in the United States today is more than a business problem of the paper industry," he said. "It is a conservative problem involving the forests of the entire country.

"Every ton of waste paper that is used by the paper mills means just so much of our forest resources saved for the future."

Buick Model 23 - Six - 45

As remarkable as are the improvements in Buick body lines, finish and appointments, they tell but a small part of the 1923 achievement. The changes that have been made from an appearance standpoint are at once visible, but they only serve to indicate the great things that have been done to make the new Buick car more mechanically perfect. Buick engineers have gone to the very heart of the mechanism to promote increased efficiency, greater accessibility and durability. And they have improved Buick riding qualities, ease, smoothness and silence of operation.

Each of the fourteen passenger models for 1923 is an unusual value—the greatest value Buick has offered in twenty years of successful and consistent manufacturing. There is no question but what Buick could dispose of the entire production for the new season at higher prices, but with the greatest production Buick has ever planned, prices have been established to permit Buick a reasonable profit and to pass on to the motoring public the benefits accrued from skilled engineering and scientific manufacturing.

Plans Flight Across North Pole Next Year

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 18.—Captain Roald Amundsen plans his flight from Wainwright, Alaska, across the North Pole next May or June, according to Captain C. S. Cochran of the coast guard cutter Bear, which was here today from a voyage of 23,000 miles into the Arctic ocean. Ice in the Arctic is the worst since 1906, Captain Cochran reports. Captain Amundsen intends to go to Nome, Alaska, this winter by dog team and to return to Wainwright for his flight with Lieut. Oskar Omdahl he told Captain Cochran.

YOUTH SAVED LIVES OF 18 ON BURNING LINES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Roland Bolgiano of Baltimore, 18 years of age, second electrician of the steamer City of Honolulu, is credited with saving the lives of 18 passengers when that liner caught fire at sea last Thursday.

He and Fred Little, 17, a messboy, worked "shoulder to shoulder" when the fire was discovered and according to the ship's doctor, were responsible for getting many passengers safely from the fireswept vessel to the lifeboats.

Complimented on their arrival here, the boys explained it all with "Oh, we were trained as Boy Scouts."

PAMPHLETS FOR VOTERS

Big Job Next Week Under Direction of Secretary of State

(Special to The Sun)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Mailing of approximately 1,500,000 pamphlets containing information for voters, the greatest task of its kind ever attempted in this state, will begin next week, under the direction of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook.

One copy of the pamphlet is required, under the law, to be sent to each person in the state who is registered as a voter. Latest figures obtained by the secretary of state disclose the number of registered voters to be 1,258,000, but this figure does not include the many thousands who are being added to the lists, day by day, in the supplementary registration. When registration is closed, and all of the new voters have been certified to him, the secretary estimates that the number qualified to vote will be very close to 1,500,000.

The pamphlet is one of 44 closely printed pages, and contains the text of the five referendum questions which are to appear on the official ballot at the state election, for the decision of the voters.

As originally made up and printed, it was found that the cost of mailing each pamphlet would be two cents, or a total of nearly $30,000 for postage alone for the entire issue. Since the total amount made available by the legislature for preparing, printing and distributing the pamphlet was only $40,000, it was immediately determined that steps must be taken to reduce the mailing cost per pamphlet to one cent. This has been done, by the substitution of a light weight paper, by using small type, and by "trimming" the edges of printed pages to the smallest possible margins.

For three months and a half, a special force of clerks in the secretary's office has been busily at work addressing envelopes in which the pamphlets will be mailed. To guard against possible errors, each addressed envelope has then been compared with the original list as furnished by city and town clerks. If human machinery can make such a thing possible, Secretary Cook intends that the exact letter of the law shall be complied with, and that a copy of the pamphlet shall be mailed to every registered voter.

The great bulk of the pamphlet is directly attributable to the length of the act, passed by the legislature last year, which is known as the "State Volstead Act." It attempts to put into force in this state legislation substantially similar to the national Volstead act. It occupies approximately 27 pages of the pamphlet.

The remaining questions, in their order, are: Whether the constitution shall be changed to permit doing away with useless rollcalls in the general court; the bill permitting voluntary associations to sue and be sued; the movie censorship bill; and last, following the liquor question, the bill providing that district attorneys shall be members of the bar.

Fortunately for the state treasury, arguments for and against the proposed changes are included in only one instance, the movie censorship bill. This is due to a peculiar provision of law. The statutes provide that if those who seek a referendum file an argument in support of their position, the secretary of state shall obtain from the opposition a statement of their position as well, and shall print both in the pamphlet.

In none of the other questions did the opposition ask permission to print their arguments, but it appears that the "wet" forces have taken advantage of a technicality in the law, and have succeeded in getting their arguments into the pamphlet, although there is in it nothing in support of the so-called state Volstead act. This is due to a requirement that the pamphlet shall contain the complete legislative history of each measure, and in the case of the liquor measure, that history includes a formal dissenting report, submitted by three members of the committee on legal affairs, objecting to its passage. Naturally that report contains the principal arguments against the measure.

Now the "drys" are wondering if their opponents didn't have this very technicality in mind when the minority report was prepared and filed. At any rate, the "wets" appeared to have gained a decided advantage, for their argument against the bill is the only one the voters will find in the official pamphlet. HOYT.

There are nearly 1,500,000 men in the Chinese standing army.

Schooner Aground—Crew Taken Off

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 18.—The three masted British schooner Seaman A. O., Jersey City to Parrsboro, N. S., with hard coal, grounded on Sow and Pigs Reef at 3.30 this morning. She is taking water rapidly and a freshening breeze from the western quarter is considered as spoiling all chances of floating her at high tide this afternoon. The vessel is expected to be a total loss. Captain Morrissey and his crew of seven, were taken off by the Cuttyhunk coast guard station crew.

The City of Honolulu's grave was more than 600 miles southwest of San Francisco.

MASS. VOTERS TO PASS ON FOUR LAWS, NOV. 7

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—As the state election approaches there is increasing evidence that the questions which appear at the tail-end of the ballot are to receive far more attention than in some previous years.

Several important subjects are to be put up to the voters to decide for themselves. In each case the legislature has passed a law and its operation has been suspended until a referendum has been held. It is in effect the application or the initiative and referendum amendment to the state constitution adopted four years ago.

The "I & R," as it is popularly called, provides that if an act of the legislature is distasteful to a large number of persons they may, by filing a petition containing the signatures of 15,000 registered voters, have the question of acceptance placed before the voters at the next state election.

There should be no doubt in the mind of the voter that when he votes "Yes" he is indorsing the act and that when he votes "No" he is against it.

Individual questions have often in past elections aroused considerable excitement during the campaign, but here is the initiative and referendum submitted to test. Therefore the voters must decide whether they want a state censorship of moving pictures, whether the state liquor laws shall onform with those of the federal law known as the Volstead Act, whether voluntary associations may sue or be sued, and whether a district attorney shall be a member of the bar.

Shall They Become Laws?

Each of these four questions will be couched in legal phraseology as prepared for the ballot. But the question is clear, nevertheless, if one will look sharp. In each instance the question is put to the voter, "Shall a law, etc., etc. (then comes a description of the act) be approved?" It ought not to puzzle a voter to answer such a question. Phrased in another way the question is, "Do you approve of such an act as an act of the legislature becoming law?"

The motion picture censorship act was passed by the general court in 1921 and was to have become operative Jan. 1, 1922. The opponents of the act invoked the aid of the initiative and referendum and hence it goes to the people.

Now, then, it is up to the voters to say if they want a law which says "it shall be unlawful for any person to exhibit or display publicly in this state any motion picture film unless the said film has been submitted to and approved by the commissioner of public safety." The act further provides that the commissioner of public safety "shall approve such films or parts thereof as are not obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, or such as do not tend to debase or corrupt the morals or incite crime."

The Prohibition Law

The legislature of 1921 attempted to frame a law which would make the laws of Massachusetts conform with those of the United States in the enforcement of the prohibition amendment to the constitution of the United States. There were those in the legislature who contended the proposed act was faulty and wanted it submitted to the supreme court for an opinion as to its constitutionality.

There was no fight over allowing the supreme court to pass on the measure and it was so referred. The supreme court made its report after the close of the 1921 session. The 1922 session, however, was ready to act and a bill was drawn to meet the objections raised by the supreme court to the previous bill.

The question as it stands on the ballot will be whether the voter wishes to approve a law "enacted to enforce in Massachusetts the 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States."

On the question of whether there shall be a law to provide that a voluntary association may sue or be sued there will be much interest, especially among members of organized labor. This act was also passed by the legislature of 1921 after much debate and discussion. Organized labor contended it was a drive at them and urged the governor to veto the bill. The framers of the bill asserted that voluntary associations should be no different from individuals or corporations in the eyes of the law.

Although there were other measures in which organized labor was interested and which for a time they thought they might submit to the voters through the referendum it was decided to center all strength upon this particular act.

Next comes the act which provides that a district attorney shall be a member of the bar. The petition of more than 15,000 voters by means of which this question is put up to the voters was circulated by Ex-Dist. Atty. Joseph C. Pelletier, who has repeatedly asserted the act was aimed at him.

The act was a product of this year's session of the legislature and was filed after Ex-Dist Atty. Nathan A. Tufts and Mr. Pelletier had been removed from office and their membership in the Massachusetts bar revoked by the supreme court.

If the act is passed, no one who is not a member of the bar may serve as district attorney, which would seem to make definite the qualifications for the office to which heretofore any citizen has been eligible.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headache, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c. and 30c.—Adv.

A Retired Doctor Gives Her Opinion

Utica, N. Y.—"I can endorse every one of Dr. Pierce's remedies as thoroughly reliable and I truly think they are the best there is. The 'Pleasant Pellets' are a perfectly splendid laxative, mild, yet effective; and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a tonic and nervine that is unequalled for women. The fact that these medicines are made entirely of roots and herbs, without alcohol, brought them to my attention years ago and I approve of every ingredient used in their manufacture."—Dr. Eliza A. O'Brien, 1119 Taylor street.

EDUCATIONAL CLUB HEARS MR. SHEPPARD

William Trull Sheppard, who recently returned from a European tour, was the principal speaker at yesterday's meeting of the Educational club, his talk being mainly on his experiences across and his opinion on present conditions in European countries as a result of the World war. Mr. Sheppard went to Europe as a representative of the American Baptist Missionary society and traveled with Dr. Abernathy.

In the course of his address Mr. Sheppard predicted that Germany will become a monarchy as soon as she is able to regain her strength, but he said the Hohenzollern family will never again be in power. He said if Woodrow Wilson had never made his unfortunate trip to Europe the League of Nations would now be an established fact and Europe would be well on her way to peace and prosperity. He further stated that England is now ready to pay her debts to the United States, but she believes her debts should be wiped off the slate. Referring to Czecho-Slovakia, Esthonia, Lithuania and Latvia, the speaker said they were all looking to this country for political and economic salvation. In closing, Mr. Sheppard said we ought not to build a wall about the country, as China did in reality several thousand years ago, but to merge our nationality in the great tide of existence of which we are so naturally a political and economic part.

LICENSES REVOKED BY COMMISSION

Two soft drink licenses were revoked by the license commission last night as the result of complaints brought by officers of the liquor squad that intoxicants were being sold in the places mentioned. Spanor & Co. operate both stores and the manager of each establishment appeared before the commission last night. The first complaint heard was that against Thomas Safas, manager of the store at 59 Moody street, who confessed that he had paid a fine of $100 in the district court for liquor selling on Sept. 23 and a week later was fined $175 for a similar offence. Charles Spanos was the second defendant, and he also told officers that he had paid a $100 fine for illegal keeping.

HARVEST SUPPER

The harvest supper for the members of the Chelmsford Unitarian church and their friends took place last evening in the church vestry, which was handsomely decorated with autumn foliage. The supper was served at 6.30 o'clock under the direction of Mrs Walter Jewett and Mrs. A. L. Harmon. The latter part of the evening was taken up with the following program. Vocal duet, Miss Elizabeth F. Warren, Miss Laura Greene; reading, Miss Helen Casey of Lowell; vocal solo, Miss Green; reading, Miss Casey; clarinet solo, Miss Mildam Warren; duet, Miss Warren and Miss Green; reading, Miss Casey. Members of Mrs. Dane's Sunday school class acted as waitresses for the supper.

GEOMETRIC PRINCIPLE

Interesting Talk On Its Relation to Plant and Insect Life

The importance of the geometric principle and the part it plays in the growth of floral and insect life of the world, was explained in detail with many new illustrations by Edgar A. Hoadley, instructor of practical science at the Lowell State Normal school, yesterday afternoon, more than 200 woman students and several guests listening to the discourse. Numerous lantern photographs and drawings were shown bearing upon the speaker's subject.

Ancient Greek architecture, the speaker said, was worked out with the square as a base. The Egyptians started measurements, with the triangle used and developed. Figurative examples were given showing the wonderful structure of raindrops, frost, hail and snow. The great possibilities of the square were also explained, showing how rectangles, triangles and spirals in unlimited number can be worked out with the square as a base.

American Women Are Careless

Women are too apt to overestimate their strength and overtax it. When feeling well they take unnecessary chances, which in the long run cause much pain and trouble. Wet feet, exposure to cold, lifting heavy burdens and overwork will often develop troubles which cause no end of suffering. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing remedy in such cases. Thousands of American women will testify to this fact who have regained health and strength by its use. If you are suffering it will pay you to give it a fair trial.—Adv.

FORGET-ME-NOT DAY

At the regular meeting of Lowell branch, Disabled Veterans of the World War, held last night in Memorial hall, plans for the annual "Forget-Me-Not" day were discussed, and the date for this year set at Nov. 1. The purpose of this day is to collect funds for aiding worthy disabled veterans. The following committee was appointed to arrange for the day: John J. McNabb, chairman; Comrades Geo. B. Walton, Edward Desautier, Walter Sanborn, Edward Garrity, Ezra Bowden, Edward H. Sullivan and William Broderick. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 24.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Chelmsford Village Improvement association, held last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. C. A. Dane; vice president, Paul Dutton; treasurer, Joseph E. Warren; secretary, Mrs. Edith Hemenway; executive committee, Mrs. C. V. Hazeltine, Mrs. D. E. Haley, Mrs. R. P. Adams, William H. Hall. In the course of the meeting suggestions for improvements in the village were submitted and a committee was appointed to prepare resolutions on the death of Miss Mary Elizabeth Richardson, a charter member of the organization.

COAL FOR SCHOOLS

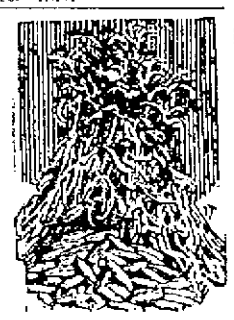

According to the purchasing agent's department it will be possible to obtain enough coal to keep the school buildings warm this winter. The buildings that are heated by soft coal have enough on hand while those using hard coal will be supplied. The Memorial Auditorium and Chelmsford street hospital will also be taken care of. The warm weather of this month has aided the coal men greatly and has given them time to catch up on orders.

WILL TAKE OFF ALL EXCESS FAT

Do you know that there is a simple, harmless, effective remedy for overfatness that may be used safely and secretly by any man or woman who is losing the slimness of youth? There is; and it is none other than the tablet form of the now famous Marmola Prescription, known as Marmola Prescription Tablets. You can well expect to reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a case, or you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich., on receipt of price.—Adv.

SCIENTIST CAN HELP

Could Enable Manufacturer Make Better Goods for Less Money, Says Howe

BOSTON, Oct. 18—The scientist, particularly the chemical engineer, can help the manufacturer make better goods for less money and new goods that will create and hold a popular demand, said Harrison P. Howe of Washington, in an address today at the annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

"Whatever we may think of the return of peaceful, normal times with tax and tariff settled for the time being," he said, "we are certainly entering into the most highly competitive age we have ever known. We may as well recognize that the far east with its great number of workers is becoming more and more able to compete with us in their own markets. Misfortunes have taught Europe patience, thrift, economy and hard work, and the whole world seems certain soon to engage upon a race for commercial and industrial supremacy unprecedented in the history of the world."

GASTON SCORES LODGE'S TARIFF ARGUMENT

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 18.—Col. William A. Gaston, democratic candidate for United States senator, John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for governor, and the other democratic speakers, who have been touring western Massachusetts, addressed rallies last night in this city, Holyoke, Chicopee and Westfield.

Col. Gaston declared "indefensible" Senator Lodge's argument, that the present tariff is necessary to keep foreign goods out of the American market. He urged that any duty imposed should represent only the difference between the cost of production here and abroad.

Mr. Fitzgerald continued his attacks on the republican policy as it affects the farmers.

"The republican state convention," he said, "which hissed the progressive republicans and cheered the name of Newberry found plenty of space in the party platform to lament atrocities in Smyrna, but gave expression to not a single idea of value for agriculture and side-stepped every important issue in the daily life of our people here at home."

Rally In Greenfield

GREENFIELD, Oct. 18.—The Gaston-Fitzgerald campaigners arrived in Greenfield at noon yesterday and after a short conference with local democrats the car of Thomas F. Cassidy, candidate for congress from the 1st District, was driven to the side of the street for a speakers' stand. Harold R. Gowey of Pittsfield introduced the speakers, the first being James H. Vahey.

John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for governor, said the democratic state committee will, so far as possible, bring the truth to the people by word of mouth in the campaign. He said 90 per cent of the newspapers are under republican control and are not giving the public the truth on most questions.

John F. Doherty, candidate for lieutenant-governor, disputed assertions that the republican administration has saved millions of dollars. John F. Swift, candidate for attorney-general, and Dewitt C. Dewolf spoke briefly.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A very pretty birthday party was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs Rose Correia in honor of her daughter Mary's 15th birthday. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent with Morey's orchestra furnishing the music. A piano solo was given by Mrs. Kate Fratus, also solos by the Messrs. Jose Souza and Paul Correia. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at a late hour, wishing the hostess, who was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, many happy returns of the day.

In the entire breeding season—about three months—a single pair of flies will be responsible for about 63 tons of flies.

TO SUPPORT COL. GASTON

Liberal Republican League Favors Democratic Candidate for Senator

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—The Liberal Republican League of Massachusetts, formed several months ago with the avowed purpose of "permanently liberalizing the republican party in the state," decided at a meeting here yesterday to support William A. Gaston, democratic candidate for United States senator. The preamble to the resolution adopted was:

"The overshadowing moral and political issue is the imperative need of eliminating Henry Cabot Lodge from the position of leadership that he now occupies in the republican party and the assertion of a new liberal, forward looking leadership which will redeem our party from its present reactionary bondage and make possible its reorganization in accordance with the principles of Lincoln and Roosevelt."

Joseph Walker, who was supported by the league when he disputed the republican nomination for United States senator with Mr. Lodge was present at the meeting.

BAR OPERATION ON HEAD OF NOTORIOUS BANDIT

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Oct. 18.—The department of justice has refused to permit an operation on the head of Roy Gardner, notorious bandit, who is confined in the federal penitentiary here, according to notification to Warden W. I. Biddle today from Washington.

The decision was based on a report by Dr. A. F. Yoho, prison physician, who, with several other surgeons, examined Gardner's skull. Gardner asked that a trepanning operation be performed, claiming an injury during his youth is responsible for his criminal tendencies.

FLOUR DEALERS ARE NOT WORRYING

Local flour dealers are not worrying for the present over the shortage of freight cars reported to be interfering seriously with the business of flour and grain traders in various cities of New England. Warren G. Torrey, chairman of the grain board of the Boston chamber of commerce, has received reports within the past 10 days, covering a wide territory in Massachusetts, and finds a serious shortage of grain and flour supplies in many quarters, with numerous receivers of products inconvenienced by tardy deliveries of small shipments.

A trip around town taking in the large wholesale flour houses in Lowell today, elicited information of a reassuring brand so far as staple supplies are concerned here. A large Middlesex street flour supply house reported plenty of stocks on hand and more on the way later in the week. Another flour dealer who also conducts a large grain business on Dutton street, furnished similar information, and nowhere could there be found any local vendor of the principal food staples who appeared to be having any transportation troubles, with the exception of deliveries on "futures," which were coming along slowly.

Local dealers have been notified that many flour mills in the middle and far west are able to operate only on part time for the present and some are able to operate at only half capacity because of the lack of trains.

The Buffalo chamber of commerce reports that the Buffalo port is jammed and the grain elevators there filled to capacity. Many vessels are waiting there to unload and in order that coal may be moved first, it has been necessary to relieve the elevators and vessels by diverting freight cars to Buffalo for flour and grain shipments. The matter is now under consideration of the Interstate Commerce commission.

DEATH RATE HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

The death rate for this city is higher than last year, according to a statement made by Francis J. O'Hare of the board of health. The number of deaths so far this year is 1137 as against 1109 up to this time last year. The death rate last year was the lowest in the history of the city and when it is considered that only 28 more deaths have occurred this year, the rate is not so high in comparison with other years.

LABOR UNION OFFICIAL CAMPAIGNING HERE

John Van Vaerenewyck, vice president of the Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor, who is campaigning in Lowell against the passage of the so-called moving picture censorship bill and the voluntary association act, two referenda, which will appear on the ballot at the coming state election, addressed several meetings last evening.

Mr. Vaerenewyck was one of the principal speakers at the mass meeting of car shop strikers, which was held in Colonial theatre, Middlesex street, last evening, and he also addressed gatherings at meetings of the Barbers' union, Woolen Weavers' and Wool Sorters' unions, while he also spoke at the mass meeting of Bleachery workers held in Trades & Labor hall in Central street.

BEWARE OF THE REAR LAMP FAKIR

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18. "Beware the rear lamp fakir."

This, in substance, is the warning sent out today by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, to automobile owners and dealers.

Registrar Goodwin states he has found that unscrupulous salesmen are going about the state, attempting to sell their goods with the statement that they have "inside information" that their particular rear lamp is to be approved by the motor vehicle registry.

"The list of lamps approved for real end use will be issued by this department on Nov. 15, and not before," Mr. Goodwin declared today. "Until that day, no one other than myself will know what lamps are to be included in it.

"For that reason I take this occasion to warn all dealers and owners not to purchase any rear lamps at this time. If they do so, they may find it necessary to purchase another when the law passed this year becomes effective."

The law to which Mr. Goodwin refers reads as follows:

"No rear lamp shall be used upon any motor vehicle unless approved by the registrar. Application for the approval of a lens or other device, or of a rear lamp, accompanied by a fee of fifty dollars, may be made to the registrar by any manufacturer or dealer therein." HOYT.

The Gideons have traveled all over the country and have delighted thousands with their renderings and interpretations of their songs. Their artistry is perfect, due to long study and careful observation of the countries whose songs they interpret. They have also sung in many foreign countries. With the Gideons will come Marjorie Patten Weaver, a 'cellist of appealing and fascinating presence. The concert promises to be a memorable one and few can afford to miss it. Tickets are $1.50 and $1 and are on sale at Steinert's, 130 Merrimack st. Tel. 1060.

LOWELL BLEACHERY EMPLOYES MEET

A largely attended meeting of employes of the Lowell Bleachery took place last evening in Trades & Labor hall under the auspices of the Lowell Textile council, an organization composed of representatives of the various local unions affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America.

The principal speaker was Organizer Thomas J. Reagan, who spoke at length on the benefits to be derived from such an organization as the U.T.W. of A. He urged his listeners to join the organization and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the work accomplished by the organization only recently when through its efforts the wage cut was restored. At the close of the meeting many of those present signed membership applications.

STILL IN RHODE ISLAND

Harry G. Sheldon of Lowell still continues to fill the position of supervisory prohibition officer of Rhode Island, and has not been transferred to Maine as reported a few days ago.

MAY BE NAMED IN SEALED INDICTMENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—In the event that he may be named in the sealed federal indictments filed recently in Tacoma, Wash., in connection with the death of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite on Oct. 25, 1918, Robert Rosenbluth, former army captain who has figured in the case, has called with his attorney, Jonah J. Goldstein, on United States Attorney Hayward for the purpose, he said, of giving the prosecuting officials his present address.

Rosenbluth was referred to John E. Joyce, assistant United States attorney in charge of the Cronkhite case, who requested him to return to the federal courthouse today. Rosenbluth was arrested in New York on Mar. 26, 1921. Major Cronkhite was shot on the outskirts of Camp Lewis military reservation. Rosenbluth, four days after his arrest, gave $25,000 bail in Liberty bonds to go to the state of Washington to answer any charges officials there might make against him. The New York authorities investigated the shooting and declined to proceed against Rosenbluth. His bail was then released and it was supposed the inquiry had ended.

AT ALL SOULS' CHURCH

At the parish house of All Souls' church last night, the first of a series of monthly suppers was given by the ladies of the parish, headed by Miss Helen W. Barnes. Hallowe'en games and stunts followed the supper, special numbers being rendered by Allan Dumas and John Walcott. Under the direction of Harold Nickerson, an "aeroplane stunt" was given, while Miss Harriet Cooper played the fortune teller role. Similar gatherings will be held each month during the winter season.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES—No. 88.

All day Jack had been planning on a means of escape. He finally decided that the only means would be to get down to the ground on some kind of a ladder. He quickly pulled all the bed clothes from the bed and tied them end to end.

Jack waited until midnight. Then he tied one end of his sheet ladder to the bed post. He then climbed out quietly and started down. His faithful dog, Flip, was waiting below and barked a greeting. Jack slid down the rope hurriedly but quietly.

"Be still, Flip," said Jack as he neared the ground. "Do you want to wake the guard up?" The boy then dropped off the end of the ladder. Flip didn't bark again but he jumped up and pawed at Jack. He was glad to see him again. Continued.

SAYS TWINS A HOAX

Nothing More Than Cleverly Constructed Dolls, Says Mrs. Hazel McNally

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 18.—Accused by her husband of killing twin babies which he said were born to her last December, Mrs. Hazel McNally, 24, faced trial here today, claiming the missing twins were nothing more than cleverly constructed dolls, mothered by her until last April to satisfy her husband's ambition to be known to the world as a father.

Both Frank McNally, the 56-year-old husband and his estranged wife, asserted their claims would be proved by witnesses called to testify at the trial.

In support of her claim, Mrs. McNally declared she told her husband shortly after their marriage that it was impossible for her to become a mother.

"But that failed to still his desire to be a parent," Mrs. McNally said. "On one occasion we inserted an advertisement offering to adopt a child, but nothing came of it. Finally his mania to pose as a father became so acute that we contrived the hoax."

All of his wife's story, McNally said, "is the desperate defense of a woman who has done away with her children."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By the Theatres Own Press Agents)

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the very best vaudeville shows this city has known, not alone this year, but in several seasons, is that one which is being given this week at the B. F. Keith theatre. The array of acts is specially good, with Julia Nash and C. H. O'Donnell in "Almost Single" as the topnotcher. Then there are Blanche and Jimmie Creighton in a rube skit that is good all the way through. The novelty by The Briants is all in a class by itself, while Misses Morgan and Binder give a chatty musical skit that is a hummer. Mazie Lunette, aerialist, is one of the most graceful of performers. Others on the bill are: Boudini & Bernard, in accordeon playing, and the Faden trio, musicians and comedians.

RIALTO THEATRE

D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle, "Way Down East," which opens a two-day engagement at the Rialto theatre today seems assured a wonderful reception. The hundreds who have already seen the great spectacle in this city are waiting for the return engagement, for it has endeared itself in their hearts as one of the most likable productions ever exhibited.

To those who are not already familiar with the wonderful scenes in this picture it is a picturization of that delightful story of New England rural life which Lottie Blair Parker and Joseph R. Grismer made so familiar upon the American stage covering a period of more than a decade. By Griffith's treatment it becomes a new art, vibrant with a life that is fast passing from view and infused with the finest mingling of pastoral scenes ever conceived for an American drama. The thrilling rescue of the heroine from the great ice jam is one of the scenes not easily forgotten in this production. Richard Barthelmess and Lillian Gish are the two leading actors. Other strong attractions support "Way Down East" for the two-day showing.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performances of "The Old Homestead," with Theodore Roberts and an all-star supporting cast will be given this evening at the Merrimack Square theatre. Don't fail to see this big production before it leaves Lowell.

The features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "The Ghost Breaker," an intensely entertaining comedy romance with Wallace Reid and Lila Lee in the leading roles, and "The Cowboy and the Lady," a dramatic production starring Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore.

"The Ghost Breaker," is a genuinely entertaining picture. The story starts off with a succession of thrills, the action moving from feuds in Kentucky to castle in Spain, with a joyous happy-go-lucky interlude in New York city. The sequence of ghost episodes, which occur in the Spanish castle, are one sizzling alternation of laughter and thrills and the ending, as happy as it is sudden, will send you home in an amiable frame of mind.

Lila Lee is charming as the Spanish senorita. Walter Hiers, playing his first black-face role has nothing better to his credit than his interpretation of Rusty Snow, the negro valet. There are other popular players in the cast, all of whom acquitted themselves with credit.

"The Cowboy and the Lady," the other big feature for the week-end, first came into being as a stage play by Clyde Fitch. It is a love story of the boundless west, wherein a young man from the east makes good in such fashion that he decides to stay there. His adventures form the basis of a mighty interesting story. With Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore in the leading roles, the photoplay can't help being good.

A comedy and the latest International News will complete the bill.

"SILVER WINGS" COMING

"Silver Wings," the William Fox special, with Mary Carr, as the starring character, is scheduled for presentation at the Strand next week. Noticed.

THE STRAND

A better series of photoplays, clustered under one program, could not be found in New England, than the one to be shown for the last time today at the Strand. See "Human Hearts" interpreted by an all-star cast, headed by House Peters; "Don't Shoot," one of Herbert Rawlinson's melodramatic crook stories; Billy Franey's latest comedy; and musical numbers of excellence. It's a picture offering, the equal of which cannot be duplicated hereabouts.

On the wings of the wind, at breakneck pace, to the limit of his horse's endurance, heedless of everything but the need of speed, Tom Mix rides the sands of Arizona. Many things are in the balance—life, love, property—he wins them all, for red blood is in his veins, and the throb to give battle is there also. This is just a word-picture of one of the many exciting glimpses of "For Big Stakes," the newest Mix photoplay to open a three day's engagement at the Strand on Thursday. Can you afford to miss it? We'll say no.

Gladys Brockwell and Stuart Holmes are two of the several noted screen stars to appear in "Paid Back," on the same bill. Superb, polished villainy and consummate love making, such as Irving Cummings creates for the screen, is well reflected in this highly dramatic picture story. We recommend it to all.

OPERA HOUSE

An entourage of more than 50, including some of the prettiest and most fascinating girls ever seen on a musical stage, two carloads of scenery and a wardrobe more extensive than Lowell has seen in ten years, is what the patrons of the Opera House are seeing this week in the presentation of the great Marcus show of 1922. It's peppery, up to the minute and clean. It's the kind of show that everyone can enjoy, for it's clean and wholesome. The musical hits are being whistled about town. Crowded houses at every performance testify to its popularity. Order your tickets in advance.

THE AUDITORIUM

Seats are selling rapidly for the Irene Castle entertainment, "Fashions and Dances of 1923," to be given at the Memorial Auditorium Oct. 26, under the direction of Albert Edmund Brown.

Miss Castle will appear in the person that evening and will display costumes which she has never worn before and which will be just a little bit ahead of anything yet turned out even by the smartest shops. Supported by the Moscow orchestra and the Castle ensemble she will also demonstrate some of the latest and most graceful dances as only she can do.

The advance man for Miss Castle's New York management, Ernest Briggs, Inc., was in Lowell yesterday afternoon and visited the Auditorium where the famous star is to appear a week from tomorrow night. He was enthusiastic over the opportunity Lowell's splendid new building will afford Miss Castle to demonstrate her skill and grace. Stage dimensions were secured in order to have the Castle properties properly arranged for the appearance of the star here.

Miss Castle will not appear in any other city near Lowell this fall. She has even cancelled a Boston date in order to be one of the first stars to give a performance at the new Auditorium. There are still plenty of good seats at Steinert's, 130 Merrimack st. Tel. 1065.

Y.M.C.A. STUDY COURSES

Arrangements have been made by the Y.M.C.A. to offer study courses in Lowell in conjunction with Northeastern university of Boston. The first of these courses will start on Oct. 25 and will consist of public speaking, salesmanship, foremanship and radio. Additional information may be secured at the "Y."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Eating Too Much Meat May Clog Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts

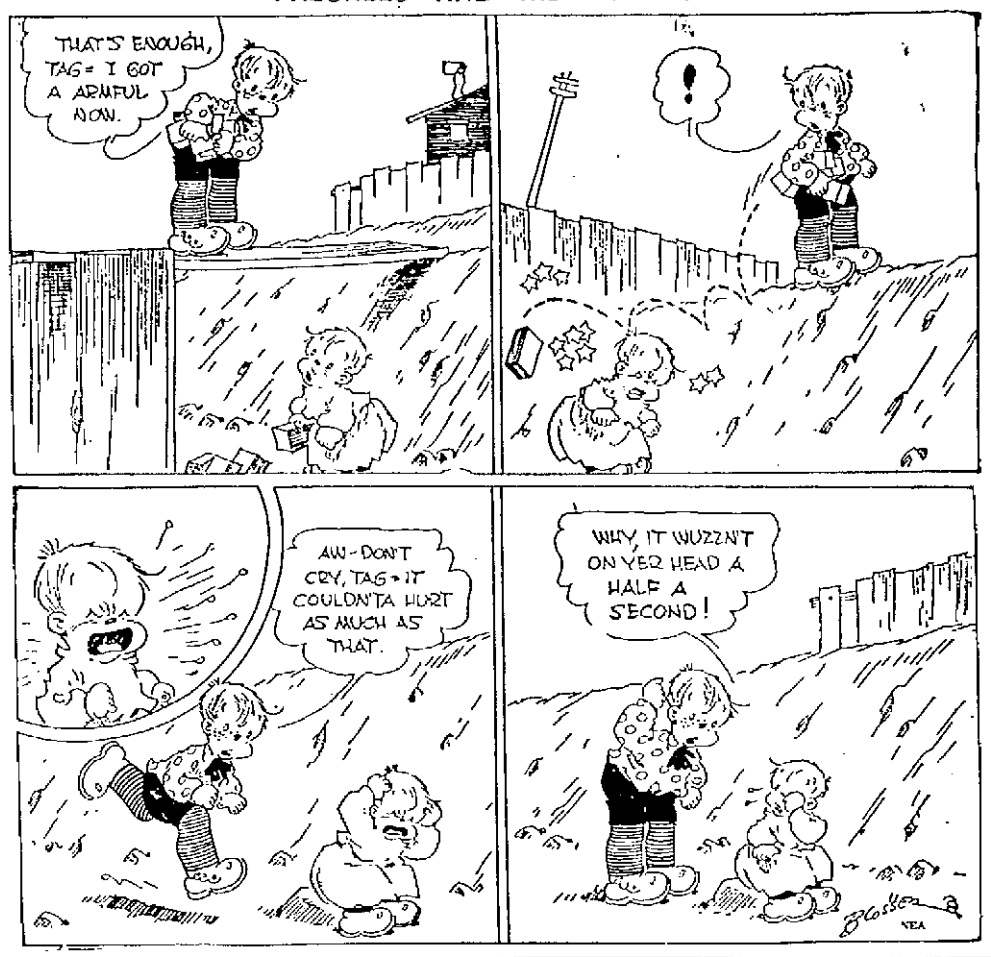

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

HARDING BOOSTING HIS PARTY

President Harding in a letter to Congressman Mondell of Wyoming praises the work of the 66th and the 67th congress, setting forth in great detail the alleged difficulties they had to overcome in facing the problems of reconstruction. He compared the problems before congress since the World war with those following the Civil war, and reasoned that the latter were less difficult because the country could then rest upon the aid of other nations, whereas since the World war the other nations want to lean on us. He failed to show that after the Civil war this nation was aided by others or that we have done much of anything for other nations since the World war, except to aid the starving in Russia, which was a spontaneous movement by the American people.

That is specious reasoning but false and illogical. It is, however, the kind of stuff that may be expected from republican speakers in this campaign when defending an administration that wasted practically two years in a vain search for political capital in the records of the war.

The party leaders now claim the credit for restoring business by passing a tariff law; but the inherent recuperative powers of the country would have brought a return of prosperity at least one year ago had not the republican congress delayed the passage of its promised tariff law.

The industries of the country have been held in suspense awaiting the time when they could look ahead and plan for continued activity on something like a definite financial basis.

The present tendency to inflation is the result of a bound forward by our industries just as soon as the pending tariff uncertainty was removed. The tariff, however, will bring retaliation from foreign nations that will militate against our foreign trade. The industries can continue their present spell of activity until their storehouses are filled; but then, without a foreign market for their goods, they cannot continue. The domestic market cannot dispose of the entire output of our factories and if there is no foreign demand for the surplus, then prosperity cannot be permanent.

The republicans will make the most of the present spell of improved business activity but, as already stated, it would have come much sooner but for the delays, and the do-nothing policy of congress. At present and probably as an unwelcome accompaniment of the November election, we shall have a coal famine, due to President Harding's lack of tact and courage in dealing with the coal strike and the railroad strike. In addition, our merchant marine is lying practically idle with the prospect that eventually the ships will have to be sold to private parties. That will be the natural result of the republican tariff policy. It was that policy which destroyed our merchant marine in the past when our flag was honored in the harbors of the world. Even the ship subsidies advocated by President Harding will hardly save our merchant marine from the blighting influence of the excessive republican tariff. Nobody nowadays denies the necessity of reasonable protection against foreign competition, but the Fordney-McCumber tariff has been dictated by special interests for their own benefit and as a result, it will increase the cost of living at least $4,000,000,000 in the next year. That will show the benevolence of the republican protective policy.

AS TO BRITISH PROPAGANDA

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir: Is it true that England censors the news sent from Ireland or that most of what the newspapers publish in this country relative to Ireland is propaganda either for England or the Irish Free State?

Truly yours,
J. F. M.

It is not true. The parties who make such statements either do not know what they are talking about or else deliberately misrepresent the situation for an ulterior purpose. Practically everything that is published in the reputable newspapers in this country relative to Ireland is confirmed by the Irish press, which is free to publish the news without interference. Correspondents of American newspapers send to this country whatever they please, and this they would not be allowed to do if any rigid censorship such as alleged were exercised.

The Hibernian Journal of Ireland, just at hand, states that since the truce was signed in July, the property damage alone, done by the activities of the Irregulars, would net forty million pounds or two billion dollars, which is probably more than the British ever did at any period in the same length of time. Moreover a large proportion of this damage will have to be met by the people of the districts in which the damage is done. This method is adopted to induce the people to use their influence against such outrages. The Hibernian paper referred to, is neutral as between the parties in Ireland, but yet it has a summary of the daily happenings, which is more shocking than would appear from the accounts published in the American press. If its account were printed here without naming the source, the people referred to by the correspondent above would pronounce it the worst kind of British propaganda, which, of course, would only prove our statement.

ORIGIN OF THE POTATO

Thirteen feet above sea level in the mountains of northern Ecuador, the region which is believed by scientists to be the cradle of the potato race, there has been found a wild, true species of this plant, which is quite different from the discoveries that were made by Wilson Popence of the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture, some time ago. Our own well developed potatoes would be just as proud of these gigantic mountain Murphies as a certain gentleman is of the anthropoid apes; for the Andean variety from which our own has sprung, is too small to be of economic importance. Plant breeders in this country, however, hope that tests may show characteristics which will make it worth while to combine them with our cultivated kinds by crossing. The wild tubers produce seed rather freely, but are also subject to one of the potato diseases of which their cultured brothers are often victims.

ROOTING FOR LODGE

Ex-Senator Root is to come to Massachusetts in an effort to save Senator Lodge. He throws out a bait to the former progressives by saying that he knows Senator Lodge was in full sympathy with President Roosevelt in all his policies. If that were true, Mr. Lodge would have gone out with Roosevelt when he bolted the republican convention and launched the Bull Moose party.

Mr. Root evidently regards Lodge as a good man for the republican party and an experienced manipulator of the republican machine; but if Mr. Root would justify Lodge's course as senator, he should explain why he allowed the port of Boston to be left practically idle through railroad discrimination in favor of other Atlantic ports farther south.

NEW HOTEL PROJECT

It looks now as if the chamber of commerce will put through the movement for a new hotel, the only thing Lowell needs to put her in line with other very pretentious cities. With such a splendid convention hall as that provided in the Memorial Auditorium, the enterprise of the city should be directed in real earnest to the realization of this hotel idea. A city of diversified industries such as Lowell is behind the times if it has not at least one first class hotel.

It is safe to say, that in spite of the croakers who calumniate the chamber of commerce as they assail every progressive step for the benefit of the community, the enterprising men of Lowell who have a pride in their city will aid this movement by every means in their power.

FIGHTING LLOYD GEORGE

Now comes the French envoy who dealt with Kemal Pasha in the recent unpleasantness and avers that it was the pacific policy of France and not the belligerent policy of Lloyd George that averted war in the Near East. This, at a time when the British premier was taking all the honor of handling the situation, will be welcome political ammunition for his enemies. Moreover, the fact that he referred to the Kemalist forces as "warlike animals" has stirred the followers of the Turkish leader to indignation. France seems to be on the inside with the Turks, and Lloyd George is fighting his enemies at home and abroad with the chances as usual in his favor.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER

Now that the women have the suffrage, it is hoped they will get registered so as to be able to use it on election day. There are 1,200,000 voters in Massachusetts and nearly as many who are eligible to vote if they were registered. There are thousands of women in Lowell, and perhaps nearly as many men, who are not registered and yet an election of great importance is at hand. This is the last day for registration. The election board will be in session till 10 p. m. Don't get left.

WHEAT

The price of wheat never would fall below $1.25 a bushel or rise above $1.50 if the grain market were stabilized by a government fund of $100,000,000. So claims Arthur R. Roberts, commission broker, member of the Chicago board of trade.

The fund, according to Roberts' suggestion, would be used to buy up grain surplus at seasonal times. It is worth considering. A hundred million dollars, suddenly taking a hand in the situation, should be powerful enough to stabilize any market.

BRITAIN OBJECTS

Britain rejects Secretary Hughes' plan for the extension of reciprocal search and seizure beyond the three-mile limit. The secretary asks England to revive some of the intolerable navigation customs, to wipe out which this country went to war with England in 1812. The right of search, therefore, will remain restricted, as it properly should be, to the three-mile limit. It would not be wise to revert to the age of piracy, even on the pretext of enforcing the prohibition law.

The "stunt" craze that induces a girl aviator to swing from a rope attached to an airplane, holding only by her teeth, is a form of insanity that does not respond to the usual tests applied by the alienists.

The Massachusetts Police association is specially welcomed to Lowell as being the first state organization to hold a convention in our Memorial Auditorium. May all their deliberations be harmonious and successful.

The office of district attorney is one from which politics should be barred. That will be the order of things if James C. Reilly is elected.

Superintendent Doherty is not responsible for the delays due to the railroads.

The detectives in the Hall-Mills murder case are getting down to business.

In All Humility

"How do you think the financial relationships of the world ought to be adjusted?" "Taint for me to say," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "I can't even get the mortgage paid off of a 60-acre farm."—Washington Star.

A Thought

It offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings who for the most part are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb show and noise.—Shakespeare.

Might Lund in Cellar

"As Sancho Panza says, 'When they give you a heifer, have the rope ready.' That's good advice. Here's something else worth remembering." "Well?" "When a promoter offers to let you in on the ground floor, look out for trap doors."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Woman's Answer

The lady was being heckled, but she was holding her own and the motley crowd of loafers to whom she was talking were spurred to further efforts. "Hi, missus," shouted a tough, "you look cold! Why don't you turn your collar up, like me?" "Well, you see," she answered sweetly, "I've got a clean neck!"

Nonskidding Mud

"O, but, judge," protested the motorist when the rural magistrate had imposed a $10 fine for speeding. "Just look at our roads! No car could have gone more than eight miles an hour through that mud." "That's jest it," said his honor severely. "'Twarn't nothin' but that thar mud of ours as held ye back."—Detroit Free Press.

What They Were

A dinner party was in progress and owing to the shortage of servants and as an emergency, a stable boy had been brought in to assist. The youth was terribly embarrassed, and as he tremblingly thrust forward a dish of tartlets the hostess inquired languidly: "What are these, John?" "I really don't know, ma'am," he replied, "but I think they're five cents apiece." —New York Mail.

The New "Dicer"

"Boss, does yo' 'member dat hat I bought fum you, fo' my boy Sat-dy?" "Yes. What about it?" "Well, it am entirely too small fo' him." "All right, I will exchange it for one a little larger. What size do you want?" "I dunno. Wat's de size ob dat one what I brung back?" "It is size six and seven-eighths." "Well, if dat hat am six, seben, eight, Boss, I spec yo' betteh gimme a nine, ten, eleben."—Judge.

Tiresome Sameness

A man who always went to the same restaurant became tired of the uniformity of the diet. He went in one day and was handed a menu by a new waitress. He looked at it and said something to the girl. She went over to her fellow workers and said: "That old duffer's crazy. When I ran over the bill of fare to him he just grunted, 'Hebrews 13 and eight.'" Some one hunted up the reference in the bible and found: "The same yesterday, today, and forever."

Willie Was Interested

The Sunday school lesson was on Job. The superintendent of the primary department was earnestly endeavoring to picture the painful existence of Job to his youthful audience. To this end he was dwelling at length upon poor Job's sufferings and the futility of all medical treatment. A small boy down front who had been absorbed in the tale suddenly held up his hand. "What is it, Willie?" asked the superintendent. "Have they tried Dr. Smith?" asked Willie, loyally naming the family physician.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Favorite Picture Star

Your favorite picture star: She is a spoiled, lazy creature who spends the day in bed and rises at six o'clock in the morning to prepare her own breakfast in her personal, diamond studded kitchen that she carries with her wherever she goes. She is a lover of domestic peace and tranquility and has been married six times. She has an angelic disposition and flies into a rage at the slightest provocation. She is athletic, often playing polo in her swimming suit, and seldom goes out of doors except on business. She was born in 1888 and is nineteen years old. —Life.

What Mother Said

The poor old modern father has the greatest job in the world to get the better of his far more modern daughter. Whatever the aforesaid poor old modern father may say or attempt to say, Miss 1922 has an apt and ready reply. "That young man stays to an unearthly hour every night," said the irate modern father to his youngest daughter one morning. "What does your mother say about it?" "Well, dad," the modern young woman replied, as she turned to go upstairs, "she says that men haven't changed a bit!"

The Pilot

Oh, pilot, 'tis a fearful night, there's danger on the deep;
I'll come and pace the deck with thee, I do not dare to sleep.
Go down! the sailor cried, go down; this is no place for thee;
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

Ah, pilot, dangers often met we all are apt to slight,
And thou hast known these raging waves but to subdue their might.
It is not apathy, he cried, that gives this strength to me;
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

On such a night the sea engulfed my father's lifeless form;
My only brother's boat went down in just so wild a storm.
And such, perhaps, may be my fate, but still I say to thee:
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

This is the time of the year when city folks like to run out into the country and buy winter apples of such varieties as the Baldwin, right at the farmers' doors. Some find it the cheapest way to stock up on apples for the winter. Many object to the Sunday sales by the farmers along the highways, however, as stores in the cities and towns are not allowed to sell on Sunday. The Sunday law does not seem to be enforced against the farmers.

The choice of George H. Wood as chairman of the special committee on "High School Spirit" of the Lowell Ad club, was an excellent one in every respect. This committee will seek the co-operation of the club in supporting and boosting high school activities. The idea is to arouse a lively school spirit, to boost the "Lowell spirit" and Lowell. This committee ought to be heard from a little later on. It has a lot of work cut out for it.

The recent quarterly meeting of the Lowell Historical society recalls the interesting fact that this organization is now 54 years old, having been established in 1868. The incorporation came in 1902. One of the excellent committees this year that is always busy, so to speak, is composed of Charles H. McIntire, William B. Goodwin and Joseph M. Wilson, who comprise the committee on genealogy.

Mme. Kalich, the actress, returns from Europe where she had a long talk with the cynical kidder, George Bernard Shaw. She says Shaw is weakening on his decision not to visit America, and he might come if he could shake off his fear that he would have to attend American banquets. If George waits a couple more years, he can visit us safely, for prohibition is rapidly driving the banquet to extinction. Oratory, except of the highest grade, goes begging when liquor is not served as an incentive to applaud.

New York holds a celebration of the 102nd anniversary of the birth of Madame Goldschmidt, the "Swedish Nightingale," known in musical history as Jenny Lind. A statue will be erected to this famous coloratura soprano, in Battery park. There was only one Jenny Lind, just as there will never be another Caruso. Old-timers say that to hear her was to get a glimpse of paradise. Music is one of life's most intimate contacts with the spiritual.

Soldier boys will be interested in the story of big Jim Hanbery, formerly a Kansas school teacher who was wounded 44 times during the war, left on the field for dead, and honored by funeral and memorial services in many towns. However, he showed up living, is now a reporter in Omaha, and recently was decorated with the distinguished service cross. Forty-four wounds! And he's still alive. Hypochondriacs, morbidly terrified at the slightest ache and pain, should paste this in their hats.

Birds of paradise plumes and wings, $15,000 worth of them, are seized in raids on nine millinery shops in New York city. To get their property back, the owners must prove that the plumage was legally in their possession before the passage of the wild bird feather exclusion law in October, 1913. Gents with red noses might view this as "infringement on personal liberty." What is the difference between prohibiting booze and prohibiting feathers?

I would suggest to the superintendent of streets that a sign indicating the road to Nashua be placed on the beacon at the junction of Merrimack and Pawtucket streets. As everybody familiar with that district knows, Merrimack street ends bluntly in Pawtucket street in front of the C.M.A.C. building, while the car tracks extend to the left and right. When tourists who are on their way to New Hampshire arrive at that spot, they are at a loss to know just where to go. Of course both roads lead to the Pawtucket boulevard; but this is not known by tourists with the result that in many cases they are forced to make inquiries. If a suitable sign were placed on the beacon, pointing in the direction of the Pawtucket bridge, it would prove a great relief to those who are traveling in that direction who are not acquainted with the road. Such a sign would entail but a small expense.

There is one happy man in Lowell and he is George Skalkeas, one of the proprietors of the People's market in Market street, for George has just received cheering news from the old country. When the Turks invaded Asia Minor some time ago, the Lowell man's sister, her two children and two brothers disappeared from Smyrna and all efforts to locate them had proved fruitless. Cablegrams were sent to Smyrna and Constantinople and Athens in an attempt to locate the missing people, but all in vain, and finally all hopes of ever seeing them alive were abandoned. A couple of days ago Mr. Skalkeas received a letter from his sister, stating that she was safe with her two children and a brother on the Island of Chios. She states that her brother was forced to throw himself into the sea to escape death at the hands of the Turks and he was picked up by an English ship. The whereabouts of the other brother is not known. Mr. Skalkeas will now endeavor to have the party come to this country and he has already taken the preliminary steps for the passports and voyage.

A friend of mine working in a local bank tells an amusing story of a patron of foreign extraction, who has an account with his bank and who went to the institution recently, presumably for the purpose of drawing out his money. The clerk was extremely busy at the time and offered to make out a draft for the man, but he insisted on getting the real cold cash. The clerk naturally obliged and after counting out the money, handed it to his client. The latter, with a smile on his face, counted and recounted the new bills to his evident satisfaction and then handed them back to the clerk with the remark: "Here, put this back. I just wanted to find out if it was all there."

PRISONERS BREAK FROM SLIGO JAIL

SLIGO, Ire., Oct. 18—(By the Associated Press) Heavy firing early yesterday proved to be for the purpose of covering the escape of 13 irregular army prisoners from the jail.

The men constructed ladders out of torn blankets filed through the bars, let themselves down into an alleyway, scaled the outer wall and lowered themselves to the ground.

The fugitives met a number of armed men but sympathizers began firing and the prisoners got away clear.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

DREAMS

I've steadily stuck to my knitting,
I've plodded along here at home,
I've never had chances for flitting,
Although I've been crazy to roam;
But oh the great dreams I unravel,
The visions I've had by the score
Of how I might travel and travel,
And after that—travel some more!

By thoughts of adventure I'm hunted,
But, being uncommonly meek,
I never have got what I wanted,
I never have found what I seek;
The fault is my own, I can't cavil
If life is at times quite a bore,
Because I can't travel and travel,
And after that travel some more!

But when I am done with existence,
And tasks that are hum-drum and stale,
I hope I can roam through the distance,
And follow each heavenly trail;
Beyond all this grime and this gravel,
I'm longing for stars to explore,
To travel and travel and travel,

PROBLEMS SOLVED BY RADIO

English fans are using the radio to help them in their school studies. Broadcasting stations have been sending out valuable information in connection with the various school-room lectures and the boys are taking advantage of this help in solving their more difficult problems. Here are two enthusiasts learning facts about the sun and its life, by radio.

"SPARK HAMS" GET RADIO BARGAIN

(By N.E.A. Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Radio amateurs with the old-fashioned spark sets have recorded a financial victory.

Radio dealers are offering to sell each of these "spark hams" a complete radio outfit of the modern kind, at wholesale prices!

The reason for this is that the dealers who have an interest in broadcasting want to eliminate the interference they have been getting from the spark sets of the older amateurs. There is no law against spark transmission, so the only way out of the difficulty was to propose an enticing bargain to the amateurs.

Interference from spark transmitters has been almost as bad as static in this district. To make their broadcasting programs more enjoyable, dealers have decided the only way out was to induce spark amateurs to relinquish their sets for the modern tube sets. Their part in affording this change would be the sale of apparatus to such amateurs at wholesale rates.

Although this plan is proposed only for the sixth district, it may be applied to the whole country if it proves satisfactory here. It is subject to general acceptance by the amateurs, say the dealers.

SEND FLOWERS BY RADIO

If you want to send a bouquet to a friend in Europe, send it by radio.

That is the suggestion made by a London firm of florists. It is based on actual orders for flowers by means of radio telegraphy. When the radio telephone is perfected so that transoceanic talk will be possible, orders may be given directly for the kind of flowers wanted.

According to members of this firm, 2300 agents deliver flowers for them in the United States and Canada. They, in turn, get similar orders from these agents. Heretofore they have been coming by cable.

Now it has become another use for radio.

RADIO MAY STOP TRAIN WRECKS

Radio may be the means of averting train wrecks.

Experts are already working on the possibilities of wireless in the saving of lives and property along railroad rights of way. Their idea is to invent a system of signaling by radio which would be absolutely fool proof.

Entire elimination of the human factor is the ultimate goal and radio may be a step toward it. A signal sent out from a stalled train could be caught by the engineer of an approaching train in time to avert a collision.

This is possible at present with the semaphore system, but experts believe radio warnings will make it foolproof. If the engineer for some reason disregards a radio warning, some sort of radio-controlled apparatus may be used to stop the train before it is too late.

NAVY NIGHT BY RADIO

"Navy Night" once a month is to be held by fans who listen in on WJZ, Newark, N. J., broadcasting station. On these nights, the navy department will broadcast information and other material about itself, through this station. The navy band will play and other bits of entertainment will be provided by naval men.

ENGINES DROWN RADIO

The United States army is making a special study of radio, especially in the direction of devising some plan by which the noise of airplane engines will not drown out radio reception. This has been one of the main difficulties in the operation of wireless on airplanes.

WRITING BY RADIO

Correspondence might be conducted by radio. This suggestion has been made in several quarters on basis of the recent invention of the teletype, a radio operated typewriter. If this can be done, mails would be supplanted by radio.

EARLY AND CORRECT ELECTION RETURNS

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Unusual efforts are to be made by Governor Cox and his official council this year to make certain that the election returns are submitted speedily and without error.

Under the law, the governor and council constitute the official canvassing body for all state election returns. The statutes provide that within ten days after the election the clerk of each city and town shall forward to the governor's office a correct return of all the votes cast within his jurisdiction, and when all have been received, the councilors tabulate the figures and make announcement of the results.

In the past the work has been delayed every year, usually by the clerk of some small town who either failed to send in his figures on time, or, by failing to read his instructions carefully sent in an erroneous return.

This year the governor has decided to make a personal appeal to the city and town clerks, asking them to do their part in expediting the handling of the tremendous task. His letter, sent out today by Charles A. Southworth, secretary of the executive council, reads:—

"To City and Town Clerks:—
Gentlemen:—

The governor and council, who under the constitution are charged with officially canvassing the returns of votes cast at state elections, have asked me to impress upon you individually the importance of making these returns within the ten days after the election prescribed by law, and also seeing to it that they are more accurate than they have been in many instances heretofore. Returns have often been extremely incomplete and erroneous, necessitating requests for amended returns, telephonic conversations for verification, etc., which has held up the work of tabulating for a considerable time.

May I urge you personally to see that the number of votes cast for each candidate or upon each question is written legibly in longhand and also expressed at the right of the sheet in figures,—that the total number of voted given is actually the sum of the other figures on the sheet,—and that the returns are properly signed; also that if request is made for an amended return it be forwarded immediately.

Your kind compliance with these requests will be greatly appreciated by the governor and council.

Sincerely yours,
C. A. SOUTHWORTH,
Executive Secretary."

Don t Envy Perfect Health---Enjoy It!

You Can't Be Happy When Every Day Brings that Nagging Backache and That Tired, Weak, All-Worn-Out Feeling

ARE you one of those unfortunate folks who is always envying the good health and happiness of others? Do you arise in the morning lame and stiff? Drag through the day with your back a dull, unceasing ache? Evening find you "all played out," thinking only of a little rest before tomorrow's weary grind? Do friends and family wonder why you are so discouraged and out of sorts?

It's time, then, you were giving some attention to your kidneys! The kidneys, you know, are the blood-filters. Let them fall behind and the effect on blood and nerves is quickly apparent. Your back aches, you suffer, sharp, stabbing pains and feel dull, nervous, irritable and depressed. Your head aches, you are dizzy, and apt to be annoyed by bladder irregularities.

Heed these early warnings! Realize that your kidneys have fallen behind, and give them the help they need before some serious kidney sickness develops. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have brought new health and strength to thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These LOWELL Folks:

GEORGE V. MORRISON, Machinist 118 Lincoln St., Says:

"I worked in the paint shop for a while and the turpentine fumes knocked my kidneys out. I had severe pains in my back and to stoop over felt as though someone were pulling my back to pieces. I had to pass the kidney secretions quite frequently and they were highly colored and scalding. Everything went around in circles at times. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and half a dozen boxes cured me completely. My cure has lasted."

MRS. C. P. LYNDE 30 Puffer St., Says:

"I can hardly describe the misery I endured from lumbago. My back was so bad that for days at a time I couldn't straighten and went around all bent over. Mornings I was all played out. My kidneys did not act right and my feet swelled so badly I had to unlace my shoes. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and secured some at Lewis' Drug Store. They rid me of the trouble."

TO PROMOTE A NEW EVANGELISM

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The formation by a group of Episcopal clergymen of the Modern Churchmen's union in America to "promote a new evangelism among the unchurched classes," was announced here today. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith, rector emeritus of St. John's church, Washington, D. C., is the first president of the organization.

Spokesmen for the organization said it was an outgrowth of the war "which shook the church and caused profound changes in its attitude." The Modern Churchman's union will not be concerned with administrative affairs of the church, it was stated, but its members are loyal churchmen anxious to spread the teaching of Jesus Christ in accordance with the development of modern civilization.

One of the purposes in a tentative program of the organization will be to "maintain the right to interpret the historic expressions of our faith in accordance with the results of modern and Biblical scholarship."

FALL RASPBERRIES FROM DRACUT

October hot waves or freezing temperatures have no terrors for the ripe, red, autumnal raspberries of delectable flavor that thrive on the sturdy everbearing shoots in the gardens of J. E. Park, Dracut.

Today by special delivery to the editor of The Sun came a dainty, be-ribboned candy box that appeared to carry chocolate-sweet confections familiarly known to all purchasers of tidbits in the local candy stores. When the padded cover of the candy box was removed, after the ribbon was untied, the editor's desk became a magnet for many prying eyes.

Within the dainty confection carrier, instead of the usual many-variety bon bons, were glowing red raspberries, sun-colored, all of good size and laden with luscious sweetness and flavor fit for a June garden Lucullian banquet.

Not always are raspberries found at this season of the year, even in gardens where the ever-bearing fruit is not at all a rarity. As a rule these vines stop bearing earlier than this, and many small frosts kill the tiny fruit stems. The weather man has reported at least four heavy frosts during the past three weeks, all of which killed most of the vinous plants in and around Lowell. But the raspberry vines of our good friend and neighbor, Mr. Park, of Dracut, evidently withstood all attacks of the weather sling-shot artists, for these red raspberries, of excellent flavor every one and as colorful as the pictures you see in the garden nursery magazines that advertise them, would easily capture a prize for both quality and size.

The Dracut reader of The Sun may be assured that his unexpected gift of October 16, though a little late in the season, is none the less highly acceptable, and the exhibition of these fall raspberries with the summer delectability and attractiveness, is one worthy of special mention in place of the usual no-coal story and the snow-shovel price lists, even ahead of the latest congressional district campaign scrap.

The Sun hopes to hear from Brother Park again. Any man who can raise raspberries in the middle of October must have something worth [illegible] about, and this is the story in full.

Even if you have never tried to make biscuits before, just follow this recipe, using Mazola as indicated. You will be surprised with the wonderful results.

Revolt Threatened if Command Is Moved to London

BY JOHN O'DONNELL
N.E.A. Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Salvation Army of America will break cleanly from the English parent organization and establish itself as an absolutely independent unit with Evangeline C. Booth as commander-in-chief if the "insurgent officers" who number 90 per cent. of the American Salvation Army are able to translate their present plans into action.

This is the result of the order of General W. Brainwell Booth which he issued in London through the newspapers recalling his sister from the American command which she has held for 18 years.

Only one obstacle halts the insurgents. That obstacle is the loyalty of Commander Booth to the tradition of discipline instilled by her father, the founder of the organization. Against this barrier is the pressure from insurgents within the organization and friends from without.

"The spirit and blood of a soldier are in my veins," said Commander Booth. "I have never had a thought of doing anything other than obeying orders, even when they entail a sacrifice. But I will say that I have never before been called upon to make such a sacrifice as this order of my brother entails."

American Organization Indignant

Reports of bitter indignation have been pouring into the New York headquarters ever since General Booth's announcement about his sister's removal has become known.

The order was criticised first on the grounds of the "insulting and unmilitary" manner of issuance. It was first given to the press and then an official copy was sent to America. It was scored for its "heartlessness" in the removal against her wishes of a commander who had been in America for 18 years. No excuse of organization custom could be given, as the officers with whom General Booth has surrounded himself in London have held their places for 20 and 30 years.

But the fact that caused the move for independence on the part of the American Salvation Army was the decision by General Booth to have no national head in America and to divide responsibilities among three commissioners each of whom would be individually responsible to London.

This would prevent such unified work as the Salvation Army accomplished in America during the war. It was this that caused the independence movement to gain ground so rapidly.

"I am in absolute ignorance of where I shall be sent or how soon I shall have to go," said Commander Booth today. "I have not yet had any definite word from my brother relative to my removal."

Transfer Not a Promotion

"Have you any reason to doubt that he intends to take you from America?" she was asked.

"The newspaper statement was over his signature and I have no reason to doubt its authenticity," she replied.

"There is no command equal to that of America either in responsibility or importance," the commander replied when asked if her transfer could in any way be construed as a promotion.

"Will not your brother's decision to do away with a national head impair the loyalty of the organization?" she was asked.

During this part of the interview it was easy to see that the commander was making a sincere but futile effort to defend her brother's order and to protect the Salvation Army discipline.

"The Salvation Army organization in America is in harmony with America's ideal of national unity," she replied. "The separate divisions achieve unity under a single national head. While my brother is doing away with our national head I do not think he is doing this with any purpose to break up the Salvation Army organization in this country."

Will Obey Orders, She Says

"But won't the breaking up of the American organization be the sole and inevitable result?" she was asked.

"Well, I only hope it won't then. In unity there is strength."

When asked about the strong sentiment in the Salvation Army in America which believes that it should break away from London control and ignore the recall, Commander Booth replied:

"I have never had a thought of doing anything other than obeying orders, even when they entail a sacrifice.

"The spirit and blood of a soldier are in my veins. There are no influences that could make me rebellious to discipline. Obedience to this order is the hardest thing I have ever had to do.

"But I shall go."

CHEQUES MAILED TO WORLD SERIES PLAYERS

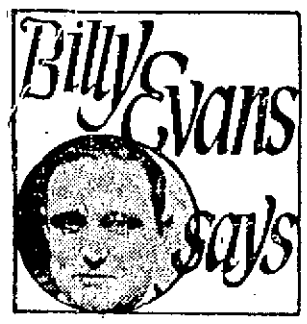

CHICAGO, Oct. 18, (By the Associated Press)—Cheques ranging in sums from $50 to $1545.71 were mailed yesterday from the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to 74 men who participated in the 1922 world series games at the Polo grounds, New York. Three cheques each for $2812.55, were handed to Players Joe Dush, Waite Hoyt and Fred Hofman of the Yankees, when they were leaving Chicago last Sunday, en route to Japan.

Eighteen Giants, including Manager John McGraw and Coach Jennings, each received a cheque for $4545.71. Five members of the Giants were given individual cheques for $4545.70, which is one cent less than the amounts received by the highest group. One of them was "Cozy" Dolan, the veteran assistant coach.

The veteran pitcher, Jesse Barnes, received one cent more than his brother, Virgil, who also is a pitcher. The cheques of 12 others, including players who were lately added to the Giants' roster, groundkeepers, trainers, mascots, etc., ranged from $200 to $2272.85.

Of the 29 cheques mailed yesterday to members of the Yankee club 23 were for $2812.55 each, and two for $2812.55. The remaining seven cheques represented sums ranging from $50 to $1121.13. The total amount of the cheques mailed yesterday was $177,259.37, of which $110,617.01 went to the members of the Giants, and $66,642 13 to the Yankees.

Cheques to the umpires who officiated in the baseball classic and to the players in the two major leagues will be mailed later.

Did the Giants win four straight games in the world series?

That question has been put to me time and again since the close of the series. It seems there is a slight difference of opinion on that point.

Back in 1907 the Chicago Cubs played the Detroit Tigers. The first game resulted in a tie. Then the Cubs proceeded to take four in a row. At the close of the series there was some discussion as to whether or not the Cubs won in four straight.

The consensus was that the Cubs had beaten the Tigers in four straight games. It was easy to argue the point because after the first game ended in a tie, the Cubs did go out and win four straight.

When the point is raised about a team winning four straight games in a world series, the inference is that one team will capture four straight before the other club wins a game.

A tie is not a victory of course, as a matter of fact, since no decision is reached in such a game, it is really regarded in the light of no contest.

There are those who argue that the Giants did not win four straight. They insist the Giants won the first game, that the second was a tie, breaking the winning streak, and that the Giants then proceeded to win three in a row.

There is really little logic and no sportsmanship to such an argument. A club wins until it loses. The fact that the second game was a tie does not enter into the discussion. The Giants won four games in the series, and the Yankees didn't win a single game, hence the Giants must have won four in a row.

PRAYING COLONELS TO ARRIVE TOMORROW

DANVILLE, Ky., Oct. 18.—The praying colonels of Centre college entrained here early today for their trip to the Harvard stadium, where next Saturday the third annual Harvard-Centre football game will be played. Twenty-five players, Coaches Moran and Bond, Dr. C. E. Allen, faculty representative, and Student Manager Berryman made up the party.

Coach Moran's schedule called for arrival of the party at Boston Thursday noon, practice by the squad Thursday afternoon at the stadium or Braves field, and the final workout in the stadium Friday morning.

Players selected to make the trip were Roberts (captain), Gregor, Corlington, Lemon, Bartlett, Hudgins, Tanner, Green, Snowday, Johnson, Liggett, Hunter, Thornasson, Kimbel, Ruharth, Wood, Kubale, Lynch, G. Jones, C. Jones, Cecil Coombs, Rowland, Gordy and Shadoan.

MORE SWIMMING RECORDS SET UP

HONOLULU, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—More world's records were smashed here last night, the second of the swimming trials in the Outrigger club tank. Warren Kealoha broke his own world's record for the 100 meter back stroke by swimming it in one minute 12 3-5 seconds. His former record was 1.14.

Gwilha Shand of New Zealand swam the 440-yard free style in six minutes 14 2-5 seconds, thus bettering Sybil Bauer's record of 6.16.

Marieehen Wehselau made a new American record when she swam 50 yards free style in 28 4-5 seconds. The previous record was 29 flat.

Brains Big Factor on Gridiron

By "BO" McMILLIN
All-America Quarterback

What part does brute strength play in modern football?

Is brain and speed more essential than brawn in the open play that now features the grid game?

When a coach looks over his available material what style player has the most appeal?

The good old game of football has changed much in the last 10 years. The successful coach must adapt himself to existing conditions. A coaching system that was successful 10 year back would be an absolute failure today.

Brawn Not Essential

There was a time when football games were won by brute strength and awkwardness, but today we can't find a place on a successful team for the man with "a million-dollar body and a ten-cent head."

My experience has proved conclusively to me that this scientific game of football is still in the embryonic stage, therefore it is imperative that we choose the most active and intelligent men for our eleven.

Each season we are introducing new modes of attack and our field general is constantly changing his defense in order to successfully cope with these strong offensive experiments.

The general conception of a quarterback is one who directs the attack, but today both the defense and offense is directed by the wise field general.

Must Shift Styles

It has been my pleasure to act as field general for Centre college during the past four years. It was necessary to change our style of play for each game.

From my experience at Cambridge in 1920 it was evident that our success in 1921 depended upon the ability of our field general to instantly diagnose each Harvard formation and meet it with the proper defense. As I backed up the line I was in a position to direct my linemen.

Those of you who saw the game will remember that I had my center out of the line on practically every pass that Buell attempted. Although our 1921 line was lighter than the line which Harvard whipped in 1920 we were able to stop their line thrusts because our center had been shifted up into the line.

I have always tried to direct an offense which would require the least bit of energy because when we shift to the defense we want our backs and ends to have plenty of speed to come in fast on opponents' offense.

Resort to Strategy

In the Tulane, Auburn and Washington & Lee games last year our secondary defense always came in exceptionally fast and never allowed our opponents to gain around the ends or by forward passes.

Our team was criticised by a number of sport writers for getting our plays off so slow, especially was this noticeable in the Harvard game. Centre had a reason for using such methods.

On our close formations I would call a series which would indicate the point of attack. We would then try to widen the hole in the defense by calling short series of signals and shifting to and fro to pull the defense over. Just as soon as the hole was assured the snapping signal was called and our backs were through the hole like a streak.

Yes, it takes a smart team to play that kind of football, but, as I said before, 75 per cent of the game of football is played above the shoulders.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Young Tansey, Boston's sensational lightweight, is training every day with the best boxers in Boston and vicinity, as he wants to be in perfect condition when he steps into the ring at the Moody club on Thursday night to meet the hard hitting Joe St. Hilaire of Somersworth in the feature event of 10 rounds.

Tansey is out to win over St. Hilaire in impressive fashion and then he will go gunning for a match with Phinney Boyle, lightweight champion of Lowell. Tansey avers he will show the Lowell fans that he is a worthy opponent for Boyle, and a bout with the popular local boy is his immediate objective.

Jackie Williams, who formerly managed Boyle, is handling Tansey, and while he admits Phinney is now boxing better than he has for five years he feels Tansey is the man to take his measure. Williams says Tansey is a great puncher, and while he may not be as skilful as some of the other lightweights in this vicinity, his hitting ability, he says, will more than offset any difference in cleverness.

Young Flaherty is scheduled to meet Spike Hennessy in the semi-final, and this number is expected to develop into a heavy hitting battle. Johnny Hebert and Johnny Nelson are all set for their preliminary go and Larry Robson and George Gosselin are to perform in the other.

Lowell will be well represented at the resumption of boxing in Lawrence on Friday night, when three local battlers will appear on the card. Jimmy Demas of Lowell will meet Young Ketchell of Lawrence in the semi-final, Eddie Purtell of this city will meet Ray Bancourt of Lawrence for the third time in a month, in a preliminary, and Lefty Williams, also of Lowell, will tackle Joe Delmont, Mike Castle of Lawrence and Boddy Dyson of New Bedford are to meet in the main event.

Pancho Villa, flyweight champion, is to meet Danny Edwards at the Boston Arena on next Monday night.

Charley Parker of Boston, who recently won a decision over Louis Hamlin of Nashua, is anxious for a bout with Phipney Boyle. Parker and Boyle have met three times, with the local boy winning twice and Parker once. Parker is training carefully and says he is ready to jump in any time against the local boxer.

The O. M. I. Cadets and the Butler A. A., two of the fastest football teams in this vicinity at their weight, are having it through the columns of the papers, but the place to settle their claims and counter claims is on the gridiron. No doubt the rival managers will soon get together and agree to lineup against each other. When they do football fans are in for a treat.

Manager Ty Cobb of Detroit is strong for "Bip" Collins, who is to come to the Tigers next year in a trade with Boston. Collins has perhaps more stuff than any right hander in the American league, but has never been very successful. Lack of control, and a manager who could bring out the best that is in him, has had much to do with the failure of Collins to shine.

Nine games was the longest winning streak enjoyed by any American league pitcher last year. Joe Bush of the Yankees and Eddie Rommel of the Athletics shared this honor. During the 1921 season no American league pitcher won more than nine straight.

Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati Reds, while attending the world series, laid stress on the fact that Cincinnati had a great chance to stage the event in 1923. Moran, who made a sensational finish with the Reds, taking second place on the last day of the season by winning a double header from Pittsburgh, is confident his club will make things merry for the Giants.

Ed Walsh, in his day one of the greatest pitchers the game ever produced, will not be a member of the American league staff of umpires next year. Walsh was forced out of the game late in the season because of illness and has decided to give up the national pastime. He is acting as a deputy sheriff at Meriden, Conn., his home.

SISLER SAYS YANKEES PLAYED BELOW FORM

George Sisler, selected as the most valuable player in baseball, picked the New York Yankees to beat the Giants.

Like practically every other expert in the country, George was made to look very bad by the Yankees losing four straight.

However, George need not worry over the failure of the Yankees to come through. Just prior to the series 12 players on the Brooklyn team in the National league were asked for an opinion. Nine of the 12 said the Yankees would win easily.

"I predicted that either the New York Yankees or the St. Louis Browns would beat the Giants in short series. Despite the downfall of the Yankees I stand on the statement that the Browns could have turned the trick" says Sisler.

"The Yankees have great strength but seldom make use of it. Slow thinking has kept them from being a remarkable club. The Yankees during the season are either very good or very bad. In the series they were very bad.

"The overwhelming defeat of the Yankees casts a reflection on the American league that is decidedly undeserved.

"Despite the fact that the Yankees failed to win a game, no contest was decided by a greater margin than three runs. In every game but Scott's shutout and the tie the Yankees were out in front. In two of the games rallies in the eighth inning by the Giants decided the issue."

BOUTS AT MASS. MILL

The Mass. Athletic association will stage another of its high class amateur boxing tournaments at the mill on Friday night. Five four round bouts, between well matched and ambitious youngsters will be on the program. Joe Noel and Jack Cheswick are busy on the plans for the tourney and they expect to make the coming bouts real action producers.

DELANEY TO BOX GREB

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 18.—Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, has been signed to meet Harry Greb, light heavyweight champion of America, in a 10 round decision fight at Oklahoma City, November 11.

An ostrich lives about 30 years and the average annual yield of a bird in captivity is from two to four pounds of feathers.

BUTLERS ACCEPT CADETS' CHALLENGE

On hearing the foundation of the O.M.I. Cadets' challenge, the management of the Butler A. A. wishes to state that the Butlers are ready at any time to meet the Cadets on the gridiron for the championship of the city, which the Butlers now hold.

The management of the Butler A. A. fully understands that the Cadets have somewhat strengthened their lineup since they last met, also that they have been playing stellar football all this season.

In regard to the Butlers' record for the present season we have to date defeated some of the strongest teams hereabouts and expect to continue in the same capacity not excepting the Cadets.

Mgr. Lowcraft of the Butlers would like to meet Mgr. O'Connor of the Cadets at the earliest convenience to arrange for a game Oct. 22.

Ukulele Is Pipp's Hobby

WALTER PIPP

Every ball player has his pet hobby. Walter Pipp of the New York Yankees is strong for the ukulele.

Walter Pipp is a husky six-footer. The ukulele seems a bit out of harmony with his makeup. But to Wally the ukulele is as necessary as his favorite glove or bat.

After the game, or in the evening, Walter serenades the guests on his floor of the hotel where the Yankees are staying. The ukulele is his constant companion off the field.

"Music makes you forget the worries of the ball field," explained Pipp. Which caused Babe Ruth to remark:

"You don't call strumming the 'uke' music, do you?"

Walter Pipp, by the way, was perhaps the most valuable player on the New York Americans the past season. Pipp's timely hitting and fine fielding won many a game for the Yankees.

There is a little story back of the sudden improvement in Pipp's play, which has Ruth as the central figure. As usual the Babe was the goat in the affair.

Pipp, always a mild-mannered individual, seldom gets into trouble. One day last summer in a game at St. Louis, Pipp did something that displeased Ruth. Some tobasco words passed between the two. Ruth was very rough in his criticism. Pipp resented it.

According to the story, Pipp told Ruth he wouldn't say "them there" words in the seclusion of the clubhouse. Ruth said he would and did. However, before he had finished his speech Pipp had treated him to a boxing lesson that would have done credit to Benny Leonard.

When the affair was stopped Pipp was awarded the decision by a wide margin. Pipp's pugilistic outburst, backed up by a clean-cut victory, added much to his prestige in the Yankee ranks.

Incidentally it seemed to fire Pipp with a spirit that he never before had shown. The result was that he played the best game of his career in 1922.

BUSH GIVES HIS VERSION OF DISPUTE

When a kid did you ever have some one purposely trip you, and then when you started to cry, pat you on the back and tell you how sorry they were and they didn't mean to do it?

Joe Bush played the role of the bad boy in the world series. When he kicked against the orders of Manager Huggins to purposely miss Young, he assumed the r le of Peck's Bad Boy.

To make matters worse he let the world know how he felt about it. When he finally agreed to obey orders he shouted:

"All right." In a sarcastic voice that could be heard all over the Polo grounds. To make matters even worse he threw a fast one in Kelly's groove that broke up the ball game.

"My action was a great injustice to Huggins," is the viewpoint now taken by Bush. "I always have had a temper and it gets the better of me every now and then. I acted like a 'school-boy.'"

After emitting the apology which helps a bit, but doesn't in any way erase the act, Bush says:

"However, I still think Huggins was wrong. Kelly had made three hits off me previously. Young had not been so successful. With first base open I could have worked on Young and tried to make him hit bad balls.

"If I failed I still had a chance with Kelly. With the bases loaded and Kelly up I couldn't waste any balls and felt compelled to try and get them over for Kelly. He singled on the second pitch."

THREE HORSES QUIT

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 18.—Three of the 18 horses that left Burlington today for the third day's run of the 300-mile army endurance test dropped out on the trip here.

The first mount to quit was Fleuret, W. R. Brown's Arab mare, which was ruled out by the judges eight miles from Burlington, after she had developed a bad hock. After another four miles Mr. Brown's gray Arab Omar was also ruled out. Eighteen miles from the start Mr. Brown withdrew his pure bred Arab stallion Sargon, the smallest horse in the test. Sargon was fatigued.

FINAL OVERHAULING OF SCHOONER BLUENOSE

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 18.—The Canadian schooner Bluenose, here to defend her honors as the champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, went on the marine railway today for a final overhauling preparatory to the first race of the championship series on Saturday.

The Gloucesterman Henry Ford, the challenger, was also the subject of attention this morning. Work was begun on bending a new mainsail, after which Capt. Clayton Morrissey said he might take his schooner for a trial spin. The Ford will probably go on the ways tomorrow for her last inspection.

The hull of the Bluenose was to be painted and scraped today and the schooner was to be officially measured. Light airs and a thick haze combined yesterday to forestall the defender's first trial on Massachusetts bay.

NEW HIGH PEAK IN COAL PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Coal production on Monday reached a new high peak, according to reports to the car service division of the American Railway association, which placed the day's bituminous output at 11,201 cars, estimated to amount to about 2,250,000 tons. This daily total has been exceeded only once in recent years, on Dec. 20, 1920, when the output was 12,000 cars. Anthracite production on Monday dropped back slightly, 5951 carloads being turned over to the railroads as compared with an average of more than 6000 a day in recent week.

SISTERS ADMIT 150 ROBBERIES

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 18.—Miss Maude Darrington and Mrs. Gertrude Stiles, sisters, under arrest here today in connection with a robbery, admitted, according to the police, that they were implicated in 150 robberies in the San Francisco bay district in the last two years.

According to the police, the young women said "the game was fascinating and we needed the money."

Two automobile loads of property were found in their homes. Their value is estimated at $10,000.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Belief that the farmer will be among the first to get substantial recognition in a "new era of activity and prosperity" now on the way, was expressed by President Harding in a letter written to Secretary Wallace of the Agriculture department and made public today at the White House.

BIG ATTACK BY IRREGULARS

Strong Bodies Attack National Ports in Sligo, Last Night and This Morning

Jail, Courthouse, Ulster Bank and Town Hall Attacked—Din Terrific

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Strong bodies of irregulars attacked the national posts in Sligo last night and this morning including in their assaults the jail, the courthouse, the Ulster bank and the town hall, says a press association despatch from Belfast. The din of rifle and machine gun fire and the exploding of bombs was terrific. Some of the principal thoroughfares were riddled with bullets. Many of the inhabitants who were asleep in their beds, had narrow escapes, concludes the despatch.

GIBERSON MURDER TRIAL

Ex-Judge Berry Asks Jury Not to Be Swayed Because Defendant a Woman

TOM'S RIVER, N. J., Oct. 18.—A plea that the jury be not swayed by the fact that the defendant was a woman, was made today by former Judge Berry in summing up for the prosecution in the trial of Mrs. Ivy Giberson, charged with murdering her husband William, at Lakehurst last August.

Mr. Berry asserted the prosecution had showed that Mrs. Giberson was the only other person in the house on the night on which she had asserted two robbers had killed her husband.

Also he continued, Mrs. Giberson had said the two men had robbed her husband of $600, yet she testified she had not gone into his room after the shooting.

"How did she know a robbery had been committed?" Mr. Berry asked.

CONTEMPT PROCEEDINGS

Hearing of Charges Against Three Former Officials of Hanover Trust Company

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—A hearing on contempt proceedings instituted by Attorney General J. Weston Allen against Henry H. Chielinski, former president of the Hanover Trust Co., William S. McNary, former treasurer, and Charley Pizzi, a director, began in superior court today. The charges followed the attorney general's discharge of a special session of the Suffolk county grand jury on the ground that attempts had been made to tamper with it.

Chmielinski and McNary are charged with having sent letters to the jurors. Pizzi is alleged to have intervieWed witnesses. Counsel for the defendants admitted transmittal of letters, but denied sending clippings received by the jurors, as well as a letter purporting to be from Walter G. Conway, a New York clothing manufacturer.

Sixteen members of the special grand jury were in court but only one was called to testify.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN GREECE SERIOUS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Economic conditions in Greece are described as serious in a cablegram received today at the department of commerce from Acting Commercial Attache Hall at Athens. The employment situation was said to be alarming, and business dull, with no demands. Because of the demoralized condition of transportation growing out of the movement of refugees from Smyrna, foreign vessels temporarily have been admitted to the Greek coastwise trade.

The consortium of Greek banks has been abolished. At a rate to be fixed by the government, the national bank will collect and retain for government use, all exchange arising from the exportation of tobacco, currants, olive oil and furs, and at the rate of the open market 15 per cent. of other exchange bought by other banks. Speculation has been prohibited. This arrangement, the despatch adds, will greatly facilitate emigrant remittances to Greece.

TWO MURDERERS AND ROBBER, AT LIBERTY 24 HOURS, CAUGHT

Herbert Wilson, Adam Blaszky and Guido Spignola, Who Escaped From Los Angeles, Taken Without a Struggle in Home of Former Convict

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Herbert Wilson, former evangelist, mail bandit and convicted murderer, Adam Blaszyk, convicted murderer, and Guido Spignola, convicted robber, who broke jail here yesterday were recaptured here today after 24 hours' liberty. They were taken without a struggle in the home of a former convict.

The fugitives were taken in a house not far from where they abandoned the automobile which they had stolen.

The capture resulted from the use of plans Wilson had formulated for concealment after the attempted break last April, which was frustrated by sheriffs' deputies and in which Herbert Cox, partner of Wilson, was killed. Wilson was convicted of murder as a result. The three who escaped yesterday were captured in the place where they had planned to hide last April.

The same sangfroid the former evangelist had exhibited since he became known to the authorities was present in Wilson's greeting to the captors. There was no confusion and Wilson and his fellow fugitives peaceably surrendered when they saw the large number around the house.

"Thoughtful Mothers!" Are You One of Them?

All mothers—bless them—are loving and devoted. How often we are led to respect and admire the "thoughtful mother" who provides for emergencies and saves her loved ones from hours of suffering and herself from needless anxiety and sleepless vigil.

The season for colds, coughs, pneumonia, influenza and catarrhal ailments is drawing near, when the "thoughtful mother" makes up a full pint of pure, quickly effective cold and cough syrup; made at home by using pure concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene (2½ ozs.) mixed with simple sugar syrup or strained honey. A pint of sugar and a half pint of water makes the syrup in three minutes. The essence and the syrup are then poured into a pint bottle and is ready to use to prevent bad colds and coughs getting worse. The very first dose gives wonderful relief and in a few days all trace of the congestion and catarrhal symptoms are usually gone. The joy of seeing the quick freedom from colds, coughs and dangerous complications the freedom from anxiety and sleepless nights to say nothing of the real economy of this home remedy—is "worth its weight in gold."

The drug store supplies the Essence Mentho-Laxene. "Best ever sold for cough or cold". Send 5 cts. in stamps for trial bottle to The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 18.—The textile strikers' board of strategy today voted to endorse the action of the conference committee which yesterday refused to meet representatives of the Amoskeag Manufacturing company, if present employes were to attend.

With the refusal after five hours' discussion, efforts of the citizens' mediation committee broke down and the committee was discharged after reporting to the mayor and aldermen. The textile strike, now in its 37th week, today was apparently no nearer a settlement than before.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Stock prices moved upward in rapid fashion at the opening of the market today in response to a broad demand for railroad, equipment and copper shares, and a remarkable bullish demonstration in National Biscuit which soared 17 points to 245, a new high record. Mexican Petroleum, which was the individual feature yesterday, opened at 227½, up 1½, and then reacted to 222. Pan-American A also opened higher and then slipped back, while Standard Oil of New Jersey moved up 3 points. Lehigh Valley and Atlantic Coast line led the rail group, each at gains of one point while coppers, under leadership of American Smelting, moved up 2, and Utah Copper up 1. American Can, up 3, was the outstanding equipment but gains of 1 to 2½ points also were registered by Baldwin and American Locomotives, Pullman and General Electric. New highs for the year were established by United Fruit, Manhattan Shirt and Atlas Powder, the gains ranging from 1 to nearly 4 points. Studebaker was one of the few exceptions to the upward trend.

Weakness of U. S. Steel and other shares of that group encouraged selling for both accounts in later dealings. Most of the active issues receded 1 to 4 points below yesterday's final figures. The closing was heavy.

ELECTRICAL WIZARDS MEET

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The two electrical wizards, Thomas A. Edison and Charles P. Steinmetz, met today in Dr. Steinmetz's laboratory, at the plant of the General Electric Co., here.

Dr. Steinmetz produced artificial lightning for his visitors' benefit. Another demonstration which elicited expressions of wonder and admiration from Mr. Edison, was a device for the reproduction of the tones of the human voice on a film by means of vabration of pin points of light. The invention is claimed by its originator to be a step in solving the problem of the "speaking movies."

Lowell Ad Club Meeting

Rising Clubs' convention committee for the Rhode Island gathering of "Ad men," Nov. 16, 17 and 18, came to Lowell with Harris W. Pearson of the Providence Town Criers and a former Lowell boy. Both got a fine reception.

A speaker not down on the program and who received a splendid greeting, was Maurice E. McCormick, new manager of the Lowell division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, who gave the Ad men a brief survey of local street railroad conditions and promised to do what he could to remedy some things complained of in the past. He promised to speak a little more on this subject at some future meeting.

High School Principal

Another speaker on the afternoon program, Principal Henry Harris of the Lowell high school, was warmly greeted when he appeared to thank the Ad men for their lively campaign now under way to promote and aid, financially, all athletic activities at the high school.

Mr. Harris described the needs of the athletic teams and players engaged in baseball, football and track activities, and said he believed concerted effort on the part of the Ad men would greatly aid the future programs mapped out for the athletes of Lowell's higher grade schools.

Brother Cooney asked for a rising vote of the members anxious to support high school athletics, and it was unanimous. Various speakers boosted the Lowell-Woburn football match to be held Nov. 4, and it was announced that Ad men would sell tickets as well as members of the Rotary club, K. of C. and members of the chamber of commerce. It is expected to raise between $5000 and $6000 for the High School Athletic association.

Supt. Harris described conditions at Spalding park and declared that it is not suitable until it has proper seating capacities, athletic quarters, etc. He praised the Ad men for their interest in the school athletics, and said their support would greatly aid in profitable sport for the athletes, who have not been supported very well in a financial way by Lowell citizens in the past. Shower baths are needed as well as proper field arrangements, the superintendent said. Mr. Harris reviewed the history of local track games.

Announcement was made of the Ad Club's Halloween party coming two weeks from today in Girls' club hall. The Scheming circle will meet a week from Monday night.

Mr. Bliss came to Lowell, he said, to strongly urge members of the Lowell Ad club to attend the convention in Providence next month.

The convention plans were outlined and then Mr. Pearson added a word or two, praising the Ad men's co-operation and speaking a good word for the Providence gathering.

New Hotel Question

Referring to Lowell's agitation for a new hotel, Mr. Pearson said:

"You can build a new hotel here. It can be done very easily. Providence had no better hotels than you have, but we raised thousands of dollars and got what we wanted. I am glad to say that when the campaign lagged at one time, the Town Criers started out with the 'Zero club' and got the rest of the money. And you can do the same thing right here in Lowell. We had 40 canvassers on the job in Providence and were worse off in some respects than Lowell."

Street Railway Manager McCormick declared that he was not ready to discuss plans for the improvement of local street railway conditions at present, although during his brief residence here he had found many things of interest that would help to solve some of the problems. He said he could promise that the local division would give the people of Lowell and vicinity all the service that it deserved.

After the meeting it was announced that the Ad club committee to sell the "dollar tickets" for the Nov. 4 football game would consist of George H. Wood, chairman; Edward J. Cooney, Edward W. Gallagher and Edward McGilley, treasurer, and three local newspapermen.

War Veterans Parade Today

keys from Legion posts from every state in the Union, from Alaska, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Great Britain, Africa and China.

Today's business session was slow in getting under way.

The announcement by Alvin M. Owsley of Texas, that he would accept the nomination for the national commandership, if it were offered him, appeared to be crystallizing the sentiment of the south.

Mr. Owsley, a former attorney general of Texas and chairman for two years of the Americanization committee of the Legion, brought in a report this week, as spokesman of the commission in which it was declared that a deliberate effort was being made to inject a pro-German account of the world war into the school text books in many parts of America.

The report also contained a declaration in favor of total exclusion of immigrations for the United States and asserting again the stand of the Legion in opposition to the recognition by the government of Soviet Russia.

"Tomorrow comes the fireworks," were the closing words of Hanford MacNider, national commander at yesterday's convention session.

Greetings from the British Legion, signed by the Prince of Wales and Gen. Haig, commander-in-chief of the British army, were brought to today's session by Major J. R. Brunnell—Cohn, member of the British parliament, who told of the progress of the British organization in establishing a spirit of democracy among British veterans. The major lost both legs in service. Speaking from a chair, he advocated co-operation between American and British legions.

An enlisted man, he said, heads the British legion and his support includes both the Prince of Wales and General Haig, working on a common footing.

Unanimous for Bonus

Demand for a roll call in the American legion convention today so that "the world may know where we stand on the bonus question," was followed by a viva voce affirmation of a resolutions committee which declared the legion will "continue to fight for the legislation until it is enacted into law."

A division called for by Commander MacNider resulted in announcement that the vote was unanimous. One delegate who voted "no" by mistake cried out his apology when hundreds of delegates yelled "Who is he?"

Based on Justice, Says Landis

Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, former federal district judge in Chicago, and avowed friend of service men, today told the convention that their stand on adjusted compensation was based on justice.

The former judge told of his efforts to get an ex-service man a job and how he was refused on the ground that veterans "are flighty." He corrected that opinion, he said, and added: "But if I had gone through what that man did I would have been shot every day for flightiness, unless I had been the army's commander-in-chief.

"If the American people knew what we have not done for those who served," he continued, "I tell you there would be little sleep for the civilian population in this land. We have been derelict in duty. We must set out to fix it so that no civilian money can buy him better hospital service than the government can."

Adventures of the Twins

TWINS RESCUED! GREEN WIZARD'S MAGIC MAKES 'EM INVISIBLE

THEY CLIMBED ON COMET-LEGS' STAR AND SOARED AWAY

Light Fingers and Comet-Legs were after Nancy and Nick, and Nancy and Nick, you must know, were likely to be caught. They were in the Fairy Queen's automobile and were stuck in a muddy ditch beside the road.

But the Green Wizard saw the danger and just as the two bad fairies reached the car he threw an enchanted sheet over the Twins, automobile and all, and they became invisible at once.

"For goodness sakes!" cried Light Fingers, "I must be going blind. Tell me, Comet-Legs, did I or did I not see the magic automobile with the Twins in it?"

"You did!" declared Comet-Legs, "for I saw it myself. But I don't see it now. Something must have happened. Now, what do you suppose it was?"

The two bad fairies wondered and wondered, but that's all the good it did them.

By and by they wandered off, then they climbed on Comet-Legs' star again and sailed away to tell Twelve Toes the bad news.

"Not yet," answered the Green Wizard took off the enchanted sheet and there were Nancy and Nick in plain view again.

"Oh, thank you," said Nancy. "Now we can take the automobile back to the Fairy Queen."

"Not yet," answered the Green Wizard. "You are stuck in magic mud and I don't know any charm that will get you out. I'll have to go to the Chimney Sweep and get some ashes and soot to sprinkle 'round. You stay here until I come back."

So off he strode over the tree-tops to the place the Sweep lived.

Knock, knock, knock, went the Green Wizard on the big chimney, and the Sweep stuck out his head.

"Howdy," said he, "what can I do for you?"

PROBE DEATH OF KING OF HEALERS---NURSE HELD

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—A woman said to have been in attendance at the death of Francis Schlatter, who became nationally known a quarter of a century ago through his claim of power to heal, was sought today by the police, and a coroner's inquest was ordered to determine whether a mystery was involved or a hemorrhage induced by pneumonia was responsible for death. Schlatter died in a rooming-house here Monday night. The woman told a physician she was the aged healer's nurse and that she was leaving to visit a spiritualist in St. Louis county.

Mrs. Agnes Schlatter, a lecturer for a church publication, came here from Kansas City, Mo., last night and declared she believed her husband had met with foul play.

A death certificate was withheld until the coroner's jury could determine cause of death.

Schlatter is said to have attracted wide attention by "cures" at Denver, Col., in 1895, and became known as a "miracle man" and "king of healers." Once he was given national publicity as the man who cured Mrs. McKinley, mother of President McKinley.

MAY DELAY NEAR EAST PEACE CONFERENCE

LONDON, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press.)—Allied closely to the ministerial crisis here and that impending in Italy, is the question of the general near eastern peace conference which it is feared, must be postponed until the situations in London and Rome are settled.

Remarking upon this contingency, the diplomatic expert of the Daily Telegraph writes: "The disadvantages of postponement might, however, be compensated in some measure if a postponement which will carry the conference well beyond the coming American elections should enable the Washington administration to ascertain the real strength of public feeling in the United States concerning American participation—at least within certain limits—in the proposed near eastern settlement."

WINS SMYRNA BRIDE

Burning of Asia Minor Port Sends "Picture Bride" to Lawrence Man

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Y. Chatellan, an Armenian of Lawrence, Mass., thought the burning of Smyrna was a terrible tragedy when he read about it in the papers. But he changed his mind somewhat after his arrival in New York yesterday.

Miss Victoria Melkonian, a "picture bride," caused Chatellan's change of mind. She told him that if her home in the Asia Minor port had not been destroyed in the conflagration, she probably would have decided against taking a chance on his desirability as a husband.

Miss Melkonian arrived on the Olympic last week and was sent to Ellis Island, where she caused a stir by proclaiming she was a "bride by destiny as much as by choice." She brought with her a vivid story of the burning of her home and the disappearance of her parents. She has dark eyes and a Grecian profile and Chatellan now thinks it would have been terrible if something had not happened to influence Miss Melkonian to come to this country.

THE NEW BOARD ABSENT

Commissioner Maguire Holds Fort at Registration Sessions—All Day Session

Mayor Brown's temporary elections commission failed to respond to registration sessions yesterday afternoon and evening held at city hall and Joseph H. Maguire, of the ousted board held the fort all day and night.

It wasn't expected that the temporary commission would be on hand during the afternoon session as a pressing engagement in Boston was detaining the members of both boards. However, the ousted board was on hand last night to assist Commissioner Maguire in his work. Members of the temporary board were not present, according to Mr. Maguire.

Mr. Maguire is at city hall again today taking charge of the all-day registration session there. This is the last day for registering before the state election. The office will be open from noon today until 10 o'clock tonight. It will be possible to register at any hour during this period.

Many telephonic queries have been coming into the elections commission office asking if the present difficulty would prevent people from registering. Commissioner Maguire said that all who desired to register would be taken care of just as if no controversy was going on. A total of 277 people registered yesterday.

VERDICTS FOR THE DEFENDANTS

Verdicts for the defendant were returned this morning at the civil session of the superior court in the double action of tort brought against John J. Long by John F. Gallagher and Charles Hanchett. In this case the plaintiffs were seeking to recover for work done in a building owned by the defendant. Mr. Gallagher's claim, which was for electrical work, was $800, while Mr. Hanchett was endeavoring to recover $500 for plumbing. James E. Markham and William A. Hogan appeared for the defendant.

The next case to go to trial was an action of tort, the ad damnum of which is $1000, which was brought by Mrs. Lalia M. Pearson of this city against the Boston & Maine railroad. Mrs. Pearson is endeavoring to recover damages for alleged personal injuries, which she claims she sustained when she fell on a slippery floor at the North station in Boston on Oct. 17, 1919, the condition of the floor being due to the overflowing of a drinking fountain.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT

Judge Enright Makes New Ruling Relative to Continued Cases

Before taking up the small docket in the district court this morning, Judge Enright addressed the members of the bar who were present, telling them that hereafter, under no circumstances, would he grant continuances of cases more than a third time. The new ruling, he explained, comes as the result of a liquor case heard yesterday after having been continued at least ten times.

Although the docket was very small, much time was consumed in hearing the evidence connected with the assault and battery charge and drunkenness against William Mercier and Frank J. Dolan. Testimony was shown, that on the night of Sept. 23, the defendants were raising ructions in Race street in the vicinity of the Lawrence Manufacturing company. About 10 o'clock in the evening, the attention of Special Officer Lawrence was called to the scene of the revelling and when he attempted to place them under arrest, they forcibly resisted, it as alleged.

Another officer of the concern, Officer Buxton was called to aid Officer Lawrence, and upon his arrival, Mercier and Dooley assaulted him. So great did the struggles of the pair become that it was necessary to use physical force in quieting them and as a result both men landed in the hospital for treatment. After weighing the evidence, Judge Enright found both guilty of drunkenness and fined them $10 each for that offence. They were also found guilty of assault on an officer and sentenced to the house of correction for a period of three months. They appealed.

Georgia Recoutes was before the court for assault and battery on Henry Dagenais. She agreed to make a settlement out of court. Elizabeth Donnelly got out of the house of correction last Monday and was arrested last night for drunkenness. She appeared in the district court this morning and on her promise to get out of Lowell, and stay out, before next Monday, she was released." Frank N. Leclerc and Alphee Ostiguy pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawful keeping and paid fines of $100. Stanley Bindos, for being drunk and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to five months in the house of correction, from which he appealed. Manuel P. Reis, for operating an automobile in a manner to endanger the lives of the public, had his case continued until Oct. 24. A continuance of ten days was granted Frank A. Collins. He is charged with drunkenness.

Sensational Testimony

court granted the mandamus petition of the election commission and ordered you to recognize them as the legally empowered board, that you would again remove them?" asked Mr. Howard.

"I have never made any such statement," replied the mayor.

Testimony given by Joseph A. Clountre included a statement that the temporary board had examined 310 signatures upon affidavits with signatures on the petition and also with original signatures on file in the office of the election commission.

In rebuttal to this testimony Mr. Allard said he watched the temporary board in action for more than ten minutes and at that time they were only checking signatures on the affidavits with signatures on the petition. He also said the temporary board worked only eight hours in all and that it would take three days at least to properly check back the signatures on the affidavits with the original ones.

The last witness called with City Messenger Monahan. He admitted to Mr. Howard that he had stood in the council chamber on the night of the first hearing with the second removal notices in his hand and that this was before the first reinstatement had occurred. He later testified, however, that he had informed the mayor of the council's unanimous reinstatement of the commission, that the mayor had gone into his private office and had returned immediately with the second notices of removal.

Asked by Mr. Howard how long the mayor was in his private office, the city messenger said: "Not more than a minute."

Adjourned for the noon recess at 1 o'clock.

YESTERDAY'S COURT SESSION

The Lowell cases were reached after 3.30 o'clock yesterday. Inasmuch as the petition of the original election commission was the first of the two filed, Judge DeCourcy ruled it should be given the right of way and Albert S. Howard, counsel for the commission, began his pleading.

Mr. Howard asked that certain signers of the Plan B petition be allowed to enter as interveners, but the court denied the request, although granting permission to file a brief.

On the question of allowing the original board to enter as interveners in the mayor's petition, however, the court ruled they were directly involved and accepted a brief filed for them by counsel. City Solicitor Tierney thought otherwise, but the court sustained Mr. Howard's contention.

Attorney Howard brought out the fact that neither the secretary of the commonwealth nor City Clerk Stephen Flynn had any material interest in the mayor's petition and informed the court that their counsel would not present argument, but will leave it with the plaintiffs to prove their case. This contention was substantiated by the representative of the attorney general's office and Fisher Pearson, representing Clerk Flynn.

During the forenoon opposing counsel in conference had arrived on a common ground in regard to many of the allegations set forth in the original election commission's petition and therefore, several of them were admitted as facts as read by Mr. Howard.

The fifth allegation, however, to the effect that the original commission had forwarded a certification of sufficiency to the secretary of the commonwealth after its work of checking the charter petition had been completed, was denied by Mr. Tierney on grounds that the commission had no duty to so certify under the law. He maintained this was a duty solely of the city clerk. Justice DeCourcy ruled the question as a whole of little material consequence.

In several instances allegations were admitted in principle by the city solicitor, but were amplified by counter allegations, bringing in the mayor's campaign of investigation, including the securing of sworn affidavits and unsworn denials of having signed the petition as included in the post cards received by His Honor.

The 12th allegation, that the mayor had acted in bad faith in removing the commission for the second, third and fourth times, charging him with improper motive and an attempt to keep the charter question off the ballot by the appointment of a temporary board who certified to an insufficiency of names, was denied by the solicitor, as was the 14th, which charged the temporary commission with interference with the duties and work of the original board.

Attorney Howard had hardly begun his pleadings in the second case, which names the secretary of the commonwealth and the city clerk as respondents, when the court adjourned.

Of the 555 officers of the regular United States army retired for disability since the World war, only 54 suffered wounds in battle.

STOLE RIDE ON EXPRESS

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—Covered with grime and his face reddened from the wind, 14-year-old Joe Jackson of Brooklyn, N. Y., was being held by police today after being taken from the tender of the New York Central Twentieth Century Limited early today following a fast ride on the engine tender from Albany, N. Y. Attempts were being made to get in touch with his parents.

It seems that this is the second attack of "travelin' blues" Joe has had recently, and it cost his parents $55 railroad fare to get him back from his previous venture. He said the object of his present tour was a job in Chicago, to enable him to repay the $55.

"But now it's all off again," he said. "I suppose I'll catch everything when I get home. I did the last time."

According to Joe, his father is a consulting engineer and former naval captain.

Molly Varnum Chapter Hears Congressman Rogers On Near East Situation

The situation in the Near East and its relation to the policies of the United States and other nations of the globe were described in an interesting manner yesterday by Hon. John Jacob Rogers, who spoke before the members and guests of Molly Varnum chapter, D.A.R., at the Spalding house. The congressman outlined Near East conditions and revealed many interesting details not generally known to the public.

Mr. Rogers referred at length to the great question of Islamism, which he declared this country cannot ignore. With the Turks now given practically everything that they had before the war, Mr. Rogers said the causes that actuated the big nations in granting their former war enemy so many things at this time, must be better understand. England has to recognize that more than 100,000,000 Islams are now under British authority. They are to be reckoned with. Lord Northcliffe once declared that not a nation on the face of the earth was safe from the future surge of Islamism. The doctrines of this church are spreading constantly.

Mr. Rogers declared further that the United States can play its most useful part in the problems of reconstruction and the questions in dispute, "not by throwing armies into the field, but by asking nations to regard it as a common friend and mediator, and have them come to us and talk things over." But these things cannot be done in a day, the congressman added.

After the meeting there was a social hour, with refreshments served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. C. E. Howe, chairman.

The Auditorium exercises will be free to the public, seats being reserved only for organizations desiring to attend in a body.

COKE AND COAL BURNED

Spectacular Night Fire Caused Damage Estimated at Several Thousand Dollars

Fire gutted the sheds of the Preston Coal & Coke company in Wilden street, off Moore, last night, causing damage estimated at several thousand dollars. The flames, fanned by a high wind, soared into the air, endangering property over a wide area. The fire, which was highly spectacular, attracted many people to the scene.

The alarm came in from box 18 about 10.30 o'clock and when the firefighters arrived the sheds were burning rapidly. It was thought useless to attempt to save the buildings and the department directed most of its efforts in preventing the spread of the blaze.

Police officers and railroad employes working near the Bleachery saw the flames and ran to the barns from which four horses were taken from the stalls unharmed. A number of wagons were stored in the sheds, and while a few were removed, many were burned.

The fire apparently started in a shed used to store paper bags. According to one member of the firm, about $6000 worth of paper bags were stored in the shed.

It is claimed that there was no hard coal in the sheds but that a number of tons of coke and some bituminous were stored there. The amount of coke is estimated at 300 tons.

The sheds were owned by Frederick B. and John H. Preston, with the latter acting as general manager. The men have been in business here about 12 years. It is said the loss is covered by insurance.

Dr. Lamere is a former Lowell boy, and was graduated from the Lowell high school, and the Harvard Dental school. After a two weeks' trip to New York and Washington, the couple will reside at 97 Pleasant street, Fitchburg, Mass.

Miss Anna Flanagan was bridesmaid, while the best man was Mr. William Bayley. After Dec. 1 the couple will be at home to their friends at 586 Merrimack street.

SENSATIONAL TESTIMONY AT MANDAMUS HEARINGS

Election Commissioner Testifies That Mayor Brown Asked Him to "Do a Job" on Plan B Petition

Hugh C. McOsker Gives Startling Testimony in Lowell Mandamus Hearings in Supreme Court—Commissioner's Testimony Denied By Mayor—Evidence is All In—Arguments Scheduled For This Afternoon

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—All evidence in the two mandamus cases that have grown out of Lowell's Plan B charter controversy was completed before Judge Charles A. DeCourcy, of the supreme court at the time of noon recess today and arguments of counsel were scheduled for 2 p. m. It is believed the court will reserve decision in each case.

This morning's session was replete with sensational testimony of Hugh C. McOsker, Thomas H. Braden and J. Omer Allard of the original election commission, Mayor Brown, Joseph A. Clouatre, City Clerk Flynn and City Messenger Monahan also took the witness stand.

Mr. McOsker, first witness called by Attorney Howard, created a sensation when he testified that the mayor called him into his office at city hall nine days before the petition was filed, and asked him to "do a job on it," and added "Braden will be with you." This was on September 16 at 3.15 p. m. and Mr. McOsker testified that he and the mayor were alone at the time and that he went there on the mayor's solicitation. "The mayor said to me I want you to do everything in your power to prevent those names from being certified' said Mr. McOsker. "Mr. Braden will be with you and I think we can get the other two. I will promise Allard a reappointment. The public will believe you in preference to the other two.' Mr. McOsker also testified that the mayor called to his attention the fact that he appointed him to the commission when some one else might have been given the job.

Cross-examined by City Solicitor Tierney the witness said that no alleged forgery had been called to his attention until after certification had been completed.

"What did you do to correct any errors that might have arisen through forgery?" asked Mr. Tierney.

"We couldn't do anything," replied Mr. McOsker, "the petition had passed out of our hands."

Mr. Tierney asked him if he had not been shown affidavits in the mayor's office and while Mr. McOsker admitted that he had seen them there he said that they had not been given to him to read and didn't know their exact nature.

Mr. McOsker told of the meeting of the election commission when Mr. Clouatre had been temporarily appointed in the place of J. Omer Allard and the refusal of Messrs. Braden and Maguire to meet. He was asked by Mr. Tierney if Braden said: "I refuse to serve with that," pointing towards Mr. Clouatre. "He did," replied Mr. McOsker. Mr. McOsker explained the method followed in checking the signatures on the Plan B petition and said that the board acted at all times in accordance with instructions received from the secretary of the commonwealth.

Mr. Tierney at this time stated that the petition was filed with the election commission on Sept. 25 and with the city clerk on the 26th. He claimed this was most material and said that he would attempt to prove that this was the only time the petition was duly filed with the city clerk, although at that time only a few names had been checked.

Examined again by Attorney Howard, Mr. McOsker said that if the board had checked all the names with the original signatures on file, it would have required three months. He testified also that there was another petition filed with the board but was not used because a sufficient number of signatures was secured from the original petition.

Thomas H. Braden was then called to the witness stand and he repeated his testimony given before the city council relative to the mayor's visit to his office at the Middlesex street depot on the day the petition was filed. On cross-examination Mr. Tierney asked "Are you and the mayor friends?" and Mr. Braden replied, "Yes, sir, we always have been and I still am friendly with him."

J. Omer Allard testified in reply to questions by Attorney Howard that he called the office of the secretary of the commonwealth by telephone on Sept. 25 and was told by Mr. Boynton that the petition should be filed with the city clerk and that the five-day clause applied to the commission as well as to the city clerk. "Mr. Boynton told me," said Mr. Allard, "that the proper method of procedure was to certify the names on the petition from the check list and said that to compare each name with the original signature on file would have been a physical impossibility within the time limit."

City Clerk Flynn testified as to the time of filing the petition with him and that Mr. McOsker was watching Mr. Allard."

JUSTICE DECOURCY

by Frederick H. Desmond and his subsequent certification to the city council.

Mayor Brown Testifies

Mayor Brown was the first witness called by Mr. Tierney on the petition which names the secretary of the commonwealth and the city clerk as respondents. The mayor admitted meeting Mr. McOsker in his office on the afternoon of Sept. 16, but denied Mr. McOsker's testimony for the most part. He said he told the chairman of the commission he believed a petition would be filed within a few days with 70 per cent of the signatures fraudulent.

"Mr. McOsker told me," said the mayor, "that both he and Mr. Braden were friendly disposed towards me and they assured me of every co-operation."

The mayor also told of the conversation with Mr. Braden in the latter's office, but said that all that took place consumed only a very few minutes and was restricted to conversation regarding how many names had been checked on that day.

"Just before we got through talking," said the mayor, "Mr. Braden told me that he was watching Mr. Maguire and that Mr. McOsker was watching Mr. Allard."

The mayor testified as to his investigation as to the alleged fraud and that 643 postal cards and many affidavits were offered as evidence.

He stated no personal motives were involved in his removal of the commissioners; nor did he have any interest in the Plan B petition other than his official duty.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howard, he was asked this question:

"You might not be elected mayor again if Plan B should go on the ballot and be accepted, is that not so?"

"That is possible, but not probable," replied the mayor.

"You appointed Mr. Tierney city solicitor and he has served as your personal counsel for some time?" asked Mr. Howard. The mayor replied in the negative.

Speaking of the hearing conducted by the city council after the first removal, Mr. Howard asked if it was not so that the city messenger had the second removal notices in his hand before the first reinstatement was voted by the council. The mayor replied that was not so.

Judge DeCourcy questioned the mayor at length regarding several of his statements. The mayor in reply said he removed the commission for the first time after it had refused to meet with Mr. Clouatre as a temporary member.

Mr. Howard jumped up and said: "You did not make that a basis of your removal when you filed your reasons, did you?"

"Well, I didn't specify it," replied the mayor.

"Your reasons for removal did not include that one at all?" asked Mr. Howard.

"No, they did not," said Mr. Brown.

"Have you ever said to any one within the past few days that if this

Man Digs Trench in Centralville and Discovers Part of Skeleton

The bones unearthed in Bunker Hill section in Centralville last night by a man digging a trench in his back yard are not human bones, but the bones of some large domestic animal, either a horse or cow. This is the report given out today by Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith, who was called to that section of the city this morning.

Last night, about dusk, a resident of Bunker Hill avenue started to dig a trench in his back yard preparatory to putting in a concrete wall. To his concern he dug up several bones after he had dug down a few inches. Recalling the fact that a human skull had been unearthed in that section about two years ago, the digger ceased operations and notified a neighbor, Joseph E. Fontaine.

The latter immediately got in touch with Officer Gilbert Sheridan and the matter was reported at the station. This morning Lieut. Martin Maher and Dr. Smith went to the scene and examined the bones. Dr. Smith quickly realized that they were not human bones. They were again buried and the incident closed.

Second Series of Notes Said to Have Been Written By Mrs. Mills Made Public

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—No arrests until late this afternoon—if then—was the word of authorities investigating the Hall-Mills murder today as they resumed their intensive pursuit of clues in the double murder mystery.

Mrs. Francis Stevens Hall, widow of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, was summoned from her home this morning to open her safety deposit vault at the People's National bank. What was found in the vault was not disclosed.

Meanwhile, detectives were checking up on newly acquired information, some of which was declared to be extremely important. Great secrecy as to the nature of it was maintained.

It was announced at County Prosecutor Stricker's office today that chemists who had analyzed earth from the spot where the bodies were found, had come to the conclusion that the slayings took place at that spot and that Mrs. Mills' throat had been cut after her heart stopped beating.

GROUP OF DELEGATES TO POLICE CONVENTION IN SESSION HERE

Early Arrivals Express Approval of Building in Which Their 23rd Annual Convention is Held—Buffet Luncheon Served in Liberty Hall—Governor Cox to Be Guest of Honor at Big Banquet Tonight

Delegates from 37 cities and 33 towns in this state participated in the 23d annual convention of the Massachusetts Police association, which opened in the Memorial Auditorium this afternoon and which will be in session until late tomorrow. With officials pouring into the city all during the morning, together with the advance delegation which put in an appearance last night, it is estimated that nearly 250 delegates are assembled. This convention is the first to be held in the new Auditorium and if the arrangements made are carried through on schedule it is certain that this maiden convention will be a grand success from every angle.

From 9 o'clock this morning until the convention opened shortly before 1 o'clock there was a steady stream of visitors being shown through the building. One and all were unanimous in saying that the building is one of the finest in the country. Expressions of "wonderful! great! splendid! and magnificent!" were heard from all sides as the delegates were shown from place to place. NEW HAMPSHIRE TEXTILE STRIKERS ATTEND MEETING HERE

Delegates From Various Cities Discuss Strike Conditions in New England—Meeting Held Under Auspices N. E. Strategy Board of United Textile Workers

Thirty delegates, representing textile strikers of various New Hampshire cities and Lowell, gathered in this city this morning to discuss textile strike conditions in various parts of New England. The meeting was held under the auspices of the New England strategy board of the United Textile Workers and present were representatives from Manchester, Dover, Nashua, Suncook and Somersworth, N. H., and Lowell.

The meeting, which was called at 10 o'clock, was presided over by John Hanley, chairman of the local strike committee. Reports from various cities were submitted and a lengthy report of strike conditions in Manchester, N. H., was given. The delegates from the Queen city reported that the conference between a strike committee, a citizens' committee and officials of the Amoskeag Mfg. Co., which was scheduled to be held yesterday, did not materialize and that the end of the strike is as far away as it ever was. It was stated that the strike and citizens' committees met at city hall and then went to the office of the Amoskeag Co., to meet Treasurer Dumaine, but word was sent them that unless they agreed to admit a committee of three strike breakers at the conference, the treasurer would have nothing to do with the committee. Word was sent right back to Treasurer Dumaine that the strikers would have nothing whatever to do with strike breakers, and the matter was brought to a sudden end without the conference materializing.

After discussing the strike conditions in various cities, the meeting voted its moral and financial support to the strikers and adjournment was taken, a great number of the delegates going to Manchester to attend a mass meeting this afternoon. The Lowell delegates at the meeting were John Hanley, Joseph E. Jemery, Frank Stimpson, Mrs. Annie Reagan and Organizer Thomas J. Reagan of the United Textile Workers of America.

THaADOO FLAYS ADMINISTRATION

Declares Harding's Policies Have Reduced Country to State of Appalling Disaster

Restriction of Farm Credits Forced Rapid Sale of Farm Products and Livestock

Depression Followed—Farmers Never Before in Such an Unfortunate Situation

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 18.—William G. McAdoo in a speech last night said deduction of farm credits "by the present administration in co-operation with the powerful influences of Wall street" and the "blighting effects of President Harding's policies of deflation and normalcy" have reduced the country "from a condition of unexampled prosperity to a state of appalling disaster."

Mr. McAdoo asserted that the restriction of farm credits under the republican administration had forced the rapid sale of farm products and livestock to such an extent that the value of those products for the entire country had been reduced from $14,000,000,000 in 1919 to $5,700,000,000 in 1921.

The former cabinet officer said business depression had followed the reduction in consequence of which the farmers and stockmen were "never before in such an unfortunate situation as they are today."

"Linked with this to the disadvantage of the farmer and stockman," Mr. McAdoo went on, "was the inauguration of the republican foreign policy, which has reduced export trade more than 40 per cent during the first year of the republican administration."

URGES BUSINESS MEN TO USE DAILY PAPERS

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—"If your business depends upon local distribution back up your long range campaign with close range methods. Utilize your daily newspapers. Place and use enough space in all your efforts to be specific and definite in describing your products. Simply because we and our associates may know all about our goods is no sign that the public knows us."

This was the theme of the address of Charles W. Myers, advertising manager of Morris & Co., packers, of Chicago, before the meeting of the Pilgrim Publicity association at the Hotel Bellevue yesterday afternoon.

"Advertising," he said, "takes root the very instant that a label is placed on an article. Each time the name is repeated, the function of advertising is apparent. The limits of its salability are determined by the policy of advertising.

"With all our knowledge of advertising and selling, some manufacturers and retailers through their advertising departments persist in sailing uncharted seas. They proclaim to themselves that their products are so different that the safe, sound and tried methods will not do. Frequently and most unfortunately, too, there is too wide an abyss between the head of the concern and the head of the advertising department."

E. Frederick Cullen also spoke. There were about 175 at the meeting and the luncheon that preceded it.

FAIR AND ENTERTAINMENT

The B. F. Butler Relief Corps will hold a fair, luncheon and entertainment in Memorial hall this evening from 6 o'clock until 10. Mrs. McQuade is chairman of the entertainment committee and has arranged a lengthy program of vocal and instrumental pieces.

THIRD LEG OF TEST

18 Horses Still in the Running in 300 Mile Endurance Grind

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 18.—The field of horses competing in the annual 300 mile endurance test to determine the type most suitable for army mounts was further reduced at the start of today's 60 mile run. Cascade, a Morgan gelding, was withdrawn because of stiffness and fatigue, leaving 18 horses still in the running. John Gowette, riding Major S., came down, also wearied by the first two days and Captain Tate of Fort Ethan Allen replaced him as rider.

Thirteen of the 18 horses got away on the third installment of the test promptly at 6.30 this morning, the earliest possible starting time. The others idled out some minutes later.

In the cavalcade that swept down the autumnal roads the Morgans Fairlady and Gladstone, the crossbred Arab Bastem Bey, Toute Belle, an Anglo-Arab, and Pathfinder, a thoroughbred, seemed to have most spirit and to have stood up best under the strain of the test so far.

The run today was to St. Albans and return.

SOVIET ULTIMATUM TO PEKING GOVERNMENT

PEKING, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press) The Soviet government at Moscow, through its envoy here, Adolph Joffre, has presented a flat demand to the Peking foreign office that Chinese desist from permitting armed "white" forces to concentrate on Chinese territory for attacks on Siberian soil.

The Soviet government briefly charges that the authorities of North Manchuria are assisting the "whites" to deal a blow at the Russian people and enumerates in support of the charge a long series of attacks made against Siberian territory from China during the last three years.

REPORT SUCCESSES FOR RED ARMY

MOSCOW, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—Despatches from Chita claim a series of successes for the red army of the Far Eastern republic in its drive against the whites along the Trans-Siberian railway in the direction of Vladivostok.

Partisans of the reds report that they blew up Gen. Kappell's troop train near Grodekov, 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok, on Oct. 13, killing or wounding many soldiers.

The whites are understood to be entrenching in the region of Nikolsk and Ussuri, where they are bringing up ammunition and artillery in preparation for a stand.

OFFICER HOLLAND DEAD

Well Known Member of Police Department Passed Away Last Evening

James E. Holland, a member of the Lowell police department for 39 years and a faithful officer highly esteemed by his superiors and brothers of the rank, died last evening at his home, 34 Second avenue, after an illness of about seven weeks. The officer had been in failing health for some time previous to his last illness, but kept at work steadily, being detailed as inspector of minor licenses. He was obliged to relinquish his work a short time ago, however, by advice of his physician, but failed to rally.

Officer Holland was popular everywhere throughout the city, with a long and meritorious record of police work rarely equalled in local police department annals. He had been a resident of Lowell for many years and was appointed to the supernumerary police force as early as July, 1883. In January of the following year he was promoted to the regular force.

For many years he served as regular patrolman, giving excellent service at all times and having many trying experiences while performing his duties "on the line." After capable service as patrolman, Officer Holland was appointed wagon officer, holding the position up to about 10 years ago, when was made provisional sergeant of the liquor squad by former Mayor O'Donnell. For four or five years he discharged his duties faithfully and conscientiously. Later he was transferred to the license department as an inspector, performing these duties up to the time of his last illness.

Officer Holland held the esteem and confidence of his superiors and fellow officers. He was a man absolutely without fear, and his sole ambition was to carry out the orders given him by his superiors. Personally he was a most companionable citizen and had often regaled his friends with stories and incidents of his long term of service in the local police department.

Many of the men he was associated with in the early days of the local force have passed away, but Officer Holland always liked to discuss the characteristics and personalities of his late brothers in uniform, whom he always respected highly. He liked to tell his friends some of the striking points in the careers of other policeman who appealed to him as being worthy of mention when the lives and deeds of guardians of the law were being considered in conversations at police headquarters and elsewhere. Many Lowell citizens will remember the late officer as plain "Jim" Holland—a loyal friend, whose friendship was worth acquiring.

Deceased leaves besides his wife, Mrs. Mary (Dunfey) Holland, a niece, Mrs. Z. I. Bissonette, Jr. The officer was a member of the Lowell Police Relief association, the Massachusetts State Police Relief association and Court Merrimack, F. of A.

Police Convention

through the building acted as escorts for others who later arrived.

As soon as the delegates arrived most of them went direct to the Auditorium where they were tagged with the little red silk badge that designated them as official members of the convention. Most of the delegates came over the road in machines and some of them went on tours of the city this morning. There were plenty of the townspeople willing and ready to point out places of interest and it was noticed that the delegates were being taken care of from all sides. The wide-awake local committee started to function early last night and had representatives stationed at every hotel where the men were to stay, at every approach to the city and at the Auditorium.

Luncheon Served

Shortly after 9 o'clock a buffet luncheon was established in Liberty hall of the Auditorium where visitors, a bit chilled after long rides in the brisk morning air, were given hot coffee and sandwiches. The buffet will continue to function throughout the convention period.

Michael McDermott of Fall River, president of the association, took charge of the meeting at 1 o'clock. He called the session to order and after the usual preliminary business was gone over the convention got right down to business.

It was said that only routine business will be on tap this afternoon and that the election of officers will not be held until tomorrow. The convention will adjourn shortly before four o'clock to meet again tonight for the big banquet for which all arrangements have been completed.

Governor Will Attend

According to the committee Gov. Cox will be on hand at the banquet and will make a short address. Members of the courts for this county will be guests at the affair and it is expected that all of the district court officials will be in attendance.

The local committee in charge of the convention includes Edward F. Flanagan, Clyde Aldrich, Patrick Conroy, Jerome Cullen, William Liston, Thomas Riley, Henry Deering and John Fanning.

The police association at the present time has a total membership of 3233 members. The following cities and towns have sent delegates to this convention:

the court decides against putting question on ballot.

The question reads as follows: "Shall the city of Lowell adopt the form of government defined as Plan B, and consisting of a government by a mayor and councilors, elected partly at large and partly from wards or districts, with elections to be held annually, according to chapter forty-three of the general laws relating to city charters?"

There are five referendum questions on the ballot, two or three of which have caused more or less interest locally. The three most important ones are those having to do with a motion picture censorship, the enactment of a law that will hold the violators of the liquor laws liable to criminal prosecution under Chapter 427 of the Acts of 1922, and the question which says that a district attorney must be a member of the bar of the commonwealth.

The ballot received from Frederic W. Cook, secretary of the commonwealth, is one of the most lengthy received in years. The preface to the list of names and questions is under a Boston date line of Oct. 17 and reads as follows. "I certify that the following is a list of all the candidates duly nominated to be voted for in the Seventh and Eighth Middlesex senatorial district, November 7, 1922, and the form of all questions to be voted on at said elections."

YARDMASTERS GET INCREASE IN PAY

Five railroad men with excellent records in the local service of transportation lines covering the so-called Lowell district, are affected by the action of the United States railroad labor board in Chicago yesterday in granting an eight-hour day with overtime to about 2,000 yardmasters on 26 class 1 railroads and at six switching terminals. Men on all three of the principal roads entering Massachusetts will benefit by what is said to amount to nearly a 25 per cent increase in pay.

The yardmasters affected by the new ruling in the Lowell territory are:

Patrick Burke, of the North yard; Fred Pratt of the Bleachery yard; George LeClair of the Hale street yard; J. M. Ward, night yardmaster of the North yard; Herbert Currier, night yardmaster of the Bleachery yard.

This is the first time The Sun was informed today at the local yards, that the railroad board has established rules and working conditions for yardmasters, who are now classified as subordinate officials and subject to board's jurisdiction under the transportation act.

The new rules provide that yardmasters required to work seven days a week shall be given two days off each month.

NEVER CAN SMILE, BOY SUES FOR $10,000

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18—Nine year old Joe Bevlaque is asking a jury in county court to award him $10,000 because he never again can smile.

A year ago the boy was in an automobile accident, the touring car in which he was riding being demolished by a truck. His face was cut by flying glass and it was discovered when he came out of the hospital that he had lost control of the facial muscles.

Joe's father, acting as his guardian, is suing the owners of both machines involved in the accident.

OBJECT TO B. U. REPORT

In a report appearing yesterday relative to a meeting of members of the Boston University Alumni in North Chelmsford, it was stated that an entertainment followed the business session and names were used in connection with the impersonation of certain characters. The young ladies whose names appeared, object very much to the article as sent to the newspapers, because of the fact that no such impersonations were presented.

The organist of one of London's best known churches is a boy of 13 who has never had a lesson in his life.

THaADOO FLAYS ADMINISTRATION

Restriction of Farm Credits Forced Rapid Sale of Farm Products and Livestock

Depression Followed—Farmers Never Before in Such an Unfortunate Situation

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 18.—William G. McAdoo in a speech last night said deduction of farm credits "by the present administration in co-operation with the powerful influences of Wall street" and the "blighting effects of President Harding's policies of deflation and normalcy" have reduced the country "from a condition of unexampled prosperity to a state of appalling disaster."

Mr. McAdoo asserted that the restriction of farm credits under the republican administration had forced the rapid sale of farm products and livestock to such an extent that the value of those products for the entire country had been reduced from $14,000,000,000 in 1919 to $5,700,000,000 in 1921.

The former cabinet officer said business depression had followed the reduction in consequence of which the farmers and stockmen were "never before in such an unfortunate situation as they are today."

"Linked with this to the disadvantage of the farmer and stockman," Mr. McAdoo went on, "was the inauguration of the republican foreign policy, which has reduced export trade more than 40 per cent during the first year of the republican administration."

URGES BUSINESS MEN TO USE DAILY PAPERS

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—"If your business depends upon local distribution back up your long range campaign with close range methods. Utilize your daily newspapers. Place and use enough space in all your efforts to be specific and definite in describing your products. Simply because we and our associates may know all about our goods is no sign that the public knows us."

This was the theme of the address of Charles W. Myers, advertising manager of Morris & Co., packers, of Chicago, before the meeting of the Pilgrim Publicity association at the Hotel Bellevue yesterday afternoon.

"Advertising," he said, "takes root the very instant that a label is placed on an article. Each time the name is repeated, the function of advertising is apparent. The limits of its salability are determined by the policy of advertising.

"With all our knowledge of advertising and selling, some manufacturers and retailers through their advertising departments persist in sailing uncharted seas. They proclaim to themselves that their products are so different that the safe, sound and tried methods will not do. Frequently and most unfortunately, too, there is too wide an abyss between the head of the concern and the head of the advertising department."

E. Frederick Cullen also spoke. There were about 175 at the meeting and the luncheon that preceded it.

THIRD LEG OF TEST

18 Horses Still in the Running in 300 Mile Endurance Grind

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 18.—The field of horses competing in the annual 300 mile endurance test to determine the type most suitable for army mounts was further reduced at the start of today's 60 mile run. Cascade, a Morgan gelding, was withdrawn because of stiffness and fatigue, leaving 18 horses still in the running. John Gowette, riding Major S., came down, also wearied by the first two days and Captain Tate of Fort Ethan Allen replaced him as rider.

Thirteen of the 18 horses got away on the third installment of the test promptly at 6.30 this morning, the earliest possible starting time. The others idled out some minutes later.

In the cavalcade that swept down the autumnal roads the Morgans Fairlady and Gladstone, the crossbred Arab Bustem Bey, Toute Belle, an Anglo-Arab, and Pathfinder, a thoroughbred, seemed to have most spirit and to have stood up best under the strain of the test so far.

The run today was to St. Albans and return.

SOVIET ULTIMATUM TO PEKING GOVERNMENT

PEKING, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press) The Soviet government at Moscow, through its envoy here, Adolph Joffre, has presented a flat demand to the Peking foreign office that Chinese desist from permitting armed "white" forces to concentrate on Chinese territory for attacks on Siberian soil.

The Soviet government briefly charges that the authorities of North Manchuria are assisting the "whites" to deal a blow at the Russian people and enumerates in support of the charge a long series of attacks made against Siberian territory from China during the last three years.

REPORT SUCCESSES FOR RED ARMY

MOSCOW, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—Despatches from Chita claim a series of successes for the red army of the Far Eastern republic in its drive against the whites along the Trans-Siberian railway in the direction of Vladivostok.

Partisans of the reds report that they blew up Gen. Kappell's troop train near Gradekay, 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok, on Oct. 13, killing or wounding many soldiers.

The whites are understood to be entrenching in the region of Nikolsk and Ussuri, where they are bringing up ammunition and artillery in preparation for a stand.

OFFICER HOLLAND DEAD

Well Known Member of Police Department Passed Away Last Evening

James E. Holland, a member of the Lowell police department for 39 years and a faithful officer highly esteemed by his superiors and brothers of the rank, died last evening at his home, 34 Second avenue, after an illness of about seven weeks. The officer had been in failing health for some time previous to his last illness, but kept at work steadily, being detailed as inspector of minor licenses. He was obliged to relinquish his work a short time ago, however, by advice of his physician, but failed to rally.

Officer Holland was popular everywhere throughout the city, with a long and meritorious record of police work rarely equalled in local police department annals. He had been a resident of Lowell for many years and was appointed to the supernumerary police force as early as July, 1883. In January of the following year he was promoted to the regular force.

For many years he served as regular patrolman, giving excellent service at all times and having many trying experiences while performing his duties "on the line." After capable service as patrolman, Officer Holland was appointed wagon officer, holding the position up to about 10 years ago, when was made provisional sergeant of the liquor squad by former Mayor O'Donnell. For four or five years he discharged his duties faithfully and conscientiously. Later he was transferred to the license department as an inspector, performing these duties up to the time of his last illness.

Officer Holland held the esteem and confidence of his superiors and fellow officers. He was a man absolutely without fear, and his sole ambition was to carry out the orders given him by his superiors. Personally he was a most companionable citizen and had often regaled his friends with stories and incidents of his long term of service in the local police department.

Many of the men he was associated with in the early days of the local force have passed away, but Officer Holland always liked to discuss the characteristics and personalities of his late brothers in uniform, whom he always respected highly. He liked to tell his friends some of the striking points in the careers of other policemen who appealed to him as being worthy of mention when the lives and deeds of guardians of the law were being considered in conversations at police headquarters and elsewhere. Many Lowell citizens will remember the late officer as plain "Jim" Holland—a loyal friend, whose friendship was worth acquiring.

Deceased leaves besides his wife, Mrs. Mary (Dunfey) Holland, a niece, Mrs. Z. I. Bissonette, Jr. The officer was a member of the Lowell Police Relief association, the Massachusetts State Police Relief association and Court Merrimack, F. of A.

Police Convention

through the building acted as escorts for others who later arrived.

As soon as the delegates arrived most of them went direct to the Auditorium where they were tagged with the little red silk badge that designated them as official members of the convention. Most of the delegates came over the road in machines and some of them went on tours of the city this morning. There were plenty of the townspeople willing and ready to point out places of interest and it was noticed that the delegates were being taken care of from all sides. The wide-awake local committee started to function early last night and had representatives stationed at every hotel where the men were to stay, at every approach to the city and at the Auditorium.

Luncheon Served

Shortly after 9 o'clock a buffet luncheon was established in Liberty hall of the Auditorium where visitors, a bit chilled after long rides in the brisk morning air, were given hot coffee and sandwiches. The buffet will continue to function throughout the convention period.

Michael McDermott of Fall River, president of the association, took charge of the meeting at 1 o'clock. He called the session to order and after the usual preliminary business was gone over the convention got right down to business.

It was said that only routine business will be on tap this afternoon and that the election of officers will not be held until tomorrow. The convention will adjourn shortly before four o'clock to meet again tonight for the big banquet for which all arrangements have been completed.

Governor Will Attend

According to the committee Gov. Cox will be on hand at the banquet and will make a short address. Members of the courts for this county will be guests at the affair and it is expected that all of the district court officials will be in attendance.

The local committee in charge of the convention includes Edward F. Flannagan, Clyde Aldrich, Patrick Conroy, Jerome Cullen, William Liston, Thomas Riley, Henry Deering and John Fanning.

The police association at the present time has a total membership of 3233 members. The following cities and towns have sent delegates to this convention:

the court decides against putting question on ballot.

The question reads as follows: "Shall the city of Lowell adopt the form of government defined as Plan B, and consisting of a government by a mayor and councilors, elected partly at large and partly from wards or districts, with elections to be held annually, according to chapter forty-three of the general laws relating to city charters?"

There are five referendum questions on the ballot, two or three of which have caused more or less interest locally. The three most important ones are those having to do with a motion picture censorship, the enactment of a law that will hold the violators of the liquor laws liable to criminal prosecution under Chapter 427 of the Acts of 1922, and the question which says that a district attorney must be a member of the bar of the commonwealth.

The ballot received from Frederic W. Cook, secretary of the commonwealth, is one of the most lengthy received in years. The preface to the list of names and questions is under a Boston date line of Oct. 17 and reads as follows. "I certify that the following is a list of all the candidates duly nominated to be voted for in the Seventh and Eighth Middlesex senatorial district, November 7, 1922, and the form of all questions to be voted on at said elections."

Fined $1 a Word For His Remark

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Morris Leveritz was fined $1 a word by a magistrate today for a five word remark he was charged with having made in reference to Miss Gladys Edwards when a strong wind was blowing in Central Park. The charge was disorderly conduct.

YARDMASTERS GET INCREASE IN PAY

Five railroad men with excellent records in the local service of transportation lines covering the so-called Lowell district, are affected by the action of the United States railroad labor board in Chicago yesterday in granting an eight-hour day with overtime to about 2,000 yardmasters on 26 class 1 railroads and at six switching terminals. Men on all three of the principal roads entering Massachusetts will benefit by what is said to amount to nearly a 25 per cent increase in pay.

The yardmasters affected by the new ruling in the Lowell territory are:

Patrick Burke, of the North yard; Fred Pratt of the Bleachery yard; George LeClair of the Hale street yard; J. M. Ward, night yardmaster of the North yard; Herbert Currier, night yardmaster of the Bleachery yard.

This is the first time The Sun was informed today at the local yards, that the railroad board has established rules and working conditions for yardmasters, who are now classified as subordinate officials and subject to the board's jurisdiction under the transportation act.

The new rules provide that yardmasters required to work seven days a week shall be given two days off each month.

NEVER CAN SMILE, BOY SUES FOR $10,000

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18—Nine year old Joe Bevilaque is asking a jury in county court to award him $10,000 because he never again can smile.

A year ago the boy was in an automobile accident, the touring car in which he was riding being demolished by a truck. His face was cut by flying glass and it was discovered when he came out of the hospital that he had lost control of the facial muscles.

Joe's father, acting as his guardian, is suing the owners of both machines involved in the accident.

OBJECT TO H. H. REPORT

In a report appearing yesterday relative to a meeting of members of the Boston University Alumni in North Chelmsford, it was stated that an entertainment followed the business session and names were used in connection with the impersonation of certain characters. The young ladies whose names appeared, object very much to the article as sent to the newspapers, because of the fact that no such impersonations were presented.

The organist of one of London's best known churches is a boy of 13 who has never had a lesson in his life.

MOSES RAPS BANKERS

Charges Selfish Designs in Advocacy of Cancellation of Foreign Debts

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 18.—Cancellation of the debts of Europe to this country is sought by International bankers to fortify their own private loans to Europe, which amount to at least half of the 11 billion dollar total owed to the United States, said Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire in an address here last night.

Senator Moses also charged William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, with responsibility for having acquired no security for the war loans.

The proposal for the cancellation of the debt Senator Moses said, is one of the methods by which the propagandists seek "to work the United States into the obligations and implications" of the treaty of Versailles.

The bankers, he said, "with extreme cunning had planted in the treaty a rake-off for themselves of six billion dollars at least."

"Balked in securing this money," Senator Moses continued, "by bringing the United States with its material resources to the support of the unconscionable reparations clauses of the treaty, they now seek through a cancellation of the 11 billion dollars which Europe owes to us to fortify their own private loans to Europe which amount to at least half that sum.

Their spokesman appearing before the convention of the American Bankers' association in New York, the other day adverted to this subject and warned the American people to quit fooling themselves about the foreign debt. I say that the American bankers should quit fooling themselves."

Senator Moses spoke at a rally in the interests of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and in place of the latter who is recovering from a cold.

TROTZKY MAKES DENIAL

Ridicules Idea That Russia Becoming Militaristic and Imperialistic

MOSCOW, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press.)—The idea advanced by some sections of the foreign press that Russia is becoming militaristic and imperialistic because of the revival of her naval forces, was ridiculed by War Minister Trotzky yesterday in an address before the Union of Young Communists. Quite the contrary was true, he said, as the fleet was being re-established for home defense only.

"We have absolutely no imperialistic aims," he said. "Therefore, we need no navy for any international purposes. We want peace. We want to re-establish our economics. But at the same time we must see to it that our doors are firmly locked to assure our own security."

ALLIES BAR THE TURKS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press) The allied missions reached a unanimous decision today forbidding the Kemalist gendarmerie destined for Thrace to enter Constantinople. The British navy has been ordered to stop all vessels bearing Turkish Nationalist police.

The order produced keen disappointment among the exuberant Turkish population which had made preparations on a vast scale to welcome the Kemalists

URGES ACTION ON SHIP SUBSIDY BILL

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—Delay in enactment of the administration ship subsidy bill would mean "playing into the hands" of foreign shipping interests whose opposition to the legislation should make clear to the American people that it is vital to the future of their merchant marine, Commissioner Plummer of the United State Shipping board declared in an address today before the convention of industrial engineers on board the steamship President Harding here.

Mr. Plummer emphasized the importance of the provisions of the bill for co-ordinating railroad and shipping service for the benefit of American exporters which was possible he said, only through its government aid provisions and also what he believed would be its inevitable effect of generally reducing transportation costs at sea through American competition.

"GOOD AMERICAN JOKE"

Belgian Author Learns He Has Been a Professor of Princeton for Six Years

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—Dr. Henri Pierenne, noted historian and Belgian author, who is lecturing here this week, has been a professor of Princeton university for six years, but had no knowledge of the fact until he made his visit here. In 1916 after he had been deported into the interior of Germany from Belgium, where he taught in the University of Ghent, the members of the Princeton faculty arranged to have him made a lecturer in the university, and through President Wilson appealed to the kaiser for his release from prison.

The kaiser refused the request, and did not inform the captive of the activities in his behalf. It was not until he came here to speak on the "Origin of the Cities of Western Europe" that he was informed of his status as a faculty member. He called the affair a "good American joke."

CONTINUOUS STREAM OF REFUGEES

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Bulgaria, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press.)—Within the last six days this city has become a great refugee center. The flood of exiles from Eastern Thrace suddenly began Friday and since then the stream has been continuous.

The arrivals are principally Armenians who fled in panic at the first news of the impending return of the Turks. Many were robbed en route by Thracian bandits, and few have more than sufficient supplies for two or three days. A hastily organized relief committee composed mainly of local Americans and Armonians has sent an urgent appeal to Constantinople for aid from the near east relief and the American Red Cross.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Fire losses on railroads in this country declined nearly $3,000,000 in 1921 as compared with 1920, G. L. Arrests May Be Made Today

Mills, wife of the church sexton and choir leader, to the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, was made today by the authorities as they continued their efforts to solve the mystery of the slaying of the couple Sept. 14.

Unaddressed and unsigned, the letters are filled with terms of endearment. In them the minister is often referred to as "sweet, adorable, babykins." They speak of "a love nest" of a woman's dreams of true love, and describe the varied moods of a woman loved and loving without the conventions.

Excerpts from the letters follow:

"Dearest, dearest boy, wasn't I happy to find a sweet note for I didn't expect you would risk leaving one for me yesterday? Such delicious eclairs."

"My darling, how well you seem today. I am tired—want to lie and rest for hours."

"Oh, you sweet adorable babykins of mine."

"How glad I am school resumes tomorrow and I can be alone to write. I need my dream times, my hours alone, and other people irritate and disturb me."

"My love is deep, calm, quiet today. I am in a mood to listen to music."

"I'd build a waiting love nest. People would mean nothing. I had rather watch the bugs and ants as they crawl along. Don't you love to watch an ant as it creeps along, honey?"

"And darling, sweetheart, I long for our love to be the purest—ideal—as pure as we can make it, for then it is truest to nature."

"I know I'm a crazy cat."

"Darling mine, didn't you feel me purring blissfully contented? And close to you, too."

"Sweetheart, my true heart, I could crush you—Oh, I am wild tonight."

"I have the greatest of all blessings—a noble man's deep, true, eternal love and my heart is his—my life is his—all I have is his—I am his forever."

"I am holding my sweet babykin's face in my hands and looking deep into his heart and reading there the message that makes me live—gives me strength and life."

300,000 ACRES OF TIMBER PRESERVED

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—More than 300,000 acres of timber in the United States have been preserved this year for the future by the use of waste paper in the manufacture of new, Grellet Collins, president of the Book Paper Manufacturers' association told the members at their meeting here today. "The shortage of waste paper in the United States today is more than a business problem of the paper industry," he said. "It is a conservative problem involving the forests of the entire country.

"Every ton of waste paper that is used by the paper mills means just so much of our forest resources saved for the future."

Buick Model 23 - Six - 45

As remarkable as are the improvements in Buick body lines, finish and appointments, they tell but a small part of the 1923 achievement. The changes that have been made from an appearance standpoint are at once visible, but they only serve to indicate the great things that have been done to make the new Buick car more mechanically perfect. Buick engineers have gone to the very heart of the mechanism to promote increased efficiency, greater accessibility and durability. And they have improved Buick riding qualities, ease, smoothness and silence of operation.

Each of the fourteen passenger models for 1923 is an unusual value—the greatest value Buick has offered in twenty years of successful and consistent manufacturing. There is no question but what Buick could dispose of the entire production for the new season at higher prices, but with the greatest production Buick has ever planned, prices have been established to permit Buick a reasonable profit and to pass on to the motoring public the benefits accrued from skilled engineering and scientific manufacturing.

Plans Flight Across North Pole Next Year

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 18.—Captain Roald Amundsen plans his flight from Wainwright, Alaska, across the North Pole next May or June, according to Captain C. S. Cochran of the coast guard cutter Bear, which was here today from a voyage of 23,000 miles into the Arctic ocean. Ice in the Arctic is the worst since 1906, Captain Cochran reports. Captain Amundsen intends to go to Nome, Alaska, this winter by dog team and to return to Wainwright for his flight with Lieut. Oskar Omdahl he told Captain Cochran.

YOUTH SAVED LIVES OF 18 ON BURNING LINES

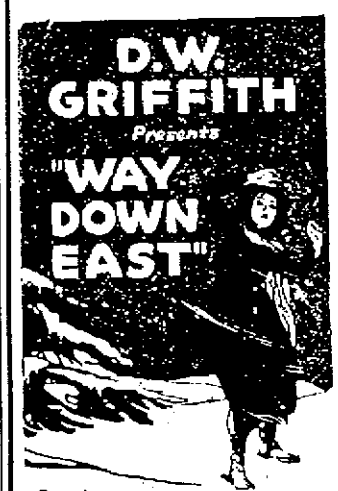

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Roland Bolgiano of Baltimore, 18 years of age, second electrician of the steamer City of Honolulu, is credited with saving the lives of 12 passengers when that liner caught fire at sea last Thursday.

He and Fred Little, 17, a messboy, worked "shoulder to shoulder" when the fire was discovered and according to the ship's doctor, were responsible for getting many passengers safely from the fireswept vessel to the lifeboats.

Complimented on their arrival here, the boys explained it all with "Oh, we were trained as Boy Scouts."

PAMPHLETS FOR VOTERS

Big Job Next Week Under Direction of Secretary of State

(Special to The Sun)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Mailing of approximately 1,500,000 pamphlets containing information for voters, the greatest task of its kind ever attempted in this state, will begin next week, under the direction of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook.

One copy of the pamphlet is required, under the law, to be sent to each person in the state who is registered as a voter. Latest figures obtained by the secretary of state disclose the number of registered voters to be 1,258,000, but this figure does not include the many thousands who are being added to the lists, day by day, in the supplementary registration. When registration is closed, and all of the new voters have been certified to him, the secretary estimates that the number qualified to vote will be very close to 1,500,000.

The pamphlet is one of 44 closely printed pages, and contains the text of the five referendum questions which are to appear on the official ballot at the state election, for the decision of the voters.

As originally made up and printed, it was found that the cost of mailing each pamphlet would be two cents, or a total of nearly $30,000 for postage alone for the entire issue. Since the total amount made available by the legislature for preparing, printing and distributing the pamphlet was only $40,000, it was immediately determined that steps must be taken to reduce the mailing cost per pamphlet to one cent. This has been done, by the substitution of a light weight paper, by using small type, and by "trimming" the edges of printed pages to the smallest possible margins.

For three months and a half, a special force of clerks in the secretary's office has been busily at work addressing envelopes in which the pamphlets will be mailed. To guard against possible errors, each addressed envelope has then been compared with the original list as furnished by city and town clerks. If human machinery can make such a thing possible, Secretary Cook intends that the exact letter of the law shall be complied with, and that a copy of the pamphlet shall be mailed to every registered voter.

The great bulk of the pamphlet is directly attributable to the length of the act, passed by the legislature last year, which is known as the "State Volstead Act." It attempts to put into force in this state legislation substantially similar to the national Volstead act. It occupies approximately 27 pages of the pamphlet.

The remaining questions, in their order, are: Whether the constitution shall be changed to permit doing away with useless rollcalls in the general court; the bill permitting voluntary associations to sue and be sued; the movie censorship bill; and last, following the liquor question, the bill providing that district attorneys shall be members of the bar.

Fortunately for the state treasury, arguments for and against the proposed changes are included in only one instance, the movie censorship bill. This is due to a peculiar provision of law. The statutes provide that if those who seek a referendum file an argument in support of their position, the secretary of state shall obtain from the opposition a statement of their position as well, and shall print both in the pamphlet.

On none of the other questions did the opposition ask permission to print their arguments, but it appears that the "wet" forces have taken advantage of a technicality in the law, and have succeeded in getting their arguments into the pamphlet, although there is in it nothing in support of the so-called state Volstead act. This is due to a requirement that the pamphlet shall contain the complete legislative history of each measure, and in the case of the liquor measure, that history includes a formal dissenting report, submitted by three members of the committee on legal affairs, objecting to its passage. Naturally that report contains the principal arguments against the measure.

Now the "drys" are wondering if their opponents didn't have this very technicality in mind when the minority report was prepared and filed. At any rate, the "wets" appeared to have gained a decided advantage, for their argument against the bill is the only one the voters will find in the official pamphlet.

Schooner Aground—Crew Taken Off

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 18.—The three masted British schooner Seaman A. O., Jersey City to Parrsboro, N. S., with hard coal, grounded on Sow and Pigs Reef at 3.30 this morning. She is taking water rapidly and a freshening breeze from the western quarter is considered as spoiling all chances of floating her at high tide this afternoon. The vessel is expected to be a total loss. Captain Morrissey and his crew of seven, were taken off by the Cuttyhunk coast guard station crew.

Liner City of Honolulu Sinks

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—With colors flying the liner City of Honolulu, gutted by fire Thursday, sank in 2500 fathoms of water yesterday after the coast guard cutter Shawnee had poured 31 shots into the hulk, according to a radiogram received by the coast guard here today. The City of Honolulu's grave was more than 600 miles southwest of San Francisco.

MASS. VOTERS TO PASS ON FOUR LAWS, NOV. 7

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—As the state election approaches there is increasing evidence that the questions which appear at the tail-end of the ballot are to receive far more attention than in some previous years.

Several important subjects are to be put up to the voters to decide for themselves. In each case the legislature has passed a law and its operation has been suspended until a referendum has been held. It is in effect the application or the initiative and referendum amendment to the state constitution adopted four years ago.

The "I & R," as it is popularly called, provides that if an act of the legislature is distasteful to a large number of persons they may, by filing a petition containing the signatures of 15,000 registered voters, have the question of acceptance placed before the voters at the next state election.

There should be no doubt in the mind of the voter that when he votes "Yes" he is indorsing the act and that when he votes "No" he is against it.

Individual questions have often in past elections aroused considerable excitement during the campaign, but here is the initiative and referendum submitted to test. Therefore the voters must decide whether they want a state censorship of moving pictures, whether the state liquor laws shall conform with those of the federal law known as the Volstead Act, whether voluntary associations may sue or be sued, and whether a district attorney shall be a member of the bar.

Shall They Become Laws?

Each of these four questions will be couched in legal phraseology as prepared for the ballot. But the question is clear, nevertheless, if one will look sharp. In each instance the question is put to the voter, "Shall a law, etc., etc. (then comes a description of the act) be approved?" It ought not to puzzle a voter to answer such a question. Phrased in another way the question is, "Do you approve of such and such an act of the legislature becoming law?"

The motion picture censorship act was passed by the general court in 1921 and was to have become operative Jan. 1, 1922. The opponents of the act invoked the aid of the initiative and referendum and hence it goes to the people.

Now, then, it is up to the voters to say if they want a law which says "it shall be unlawful for any person to exhibit or display publicly in this state any motion picture film unless the said film has been submitted to and approved by the commissioner of public safety." The act further provides that the commissioner of public safety "shall approve such films or parts thereof as are not obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, or such as do not tend to debase or corrupt the morals or incite crime."

The Prohibition Law

The legislature of 1921 attempted to frame a law which would make the laws of Massachusetts conform with those of the United States in the enforcement of the prohibition amendment to the constitution of the United States. There were those in the legislature who contended the proposed act was faulty and wanted it submitted to the supreme court for an opinion as to its constitutionality.

There was no fight over allowing the supreme court to pass on the measure and it was so referred. The supreme court made its report after the close of the 1921 session. The 1922 session, however, was ready to act and a bill was drawn to meet the objections raised by the supreme court to the previous bill.

The question as it stands on the ballot will be whether the voter wishes to approve a law "enacted to enforce in Massachusetts the 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States."

On the question of whether there shall be a law to provide that a voluntary association may sue or be sued there will be much interest, especially among members of organized labor. This act was also passed by the legislature of 1921 after much debate and discussion. Organized labor contended it was a drive at them and urged the governor to veto the bill. The framers of the bill asserted that voluntary associations should be no different from individuals or corporations in the eyes of the law.

Although there were other measures in which organized labor was interested and which for a time they thought they might submit to the voters through the referendum it was decided to center all strength upon this particular act.

Next comes the act which provides that a district attorney shall be a member of the bar. The petition of more than 15,000 voters by means of which this question is put up to the voters was circulated by Ex-Dist. Atty. Joseph C. Pelletier, who has repeatedly asserted the act was aimed at him.

The act was a product of this year's session of the legislature and was filed after Ex-Dist Atty. Nathan A. Tufts and Mr. Pelletier had been removed from office and their membership in the Massachusetts bar revoked by the supreme court.

If the act is passed, no one who is not a member of the bar may serve as district attorney, which would seem to make definite the qualifications for the office to which heretofore any citizen has been eligible.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headache, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c. and 30c.—Adv.

Dr. E. A. O'BRIEN

A Retired Doctor Gives Her Opinion

Utica, N. Y.—"I can endorse every one of Dr. Pierce's remedies as thoroughly reliable and I truly think they are the best there is. The 'Pleasant Pellets' are a perfectly splendid laxative, mild, yet effective; and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a tonic and nervine that is unequalled for women. The fact that these medicines are made entirely of roots and herbs, without alcohol, brought them to my attention years ago and I approve of every ingredient used in their manufacture."—Dr. Eliza A. O'Brien, 1119 Taylor street.

EDUCATIONAL CLUB HEARS MR. SHEPPARD

William Trull Sheppard, who recently returned from a European tour, was the principal speaker at yesterday's meeting of the Educational club, his talk being mainly on his experiences across and his opinion on present conditions in European countries as a result of the World war. Mr. Sheppard went to Europe as a representative of the American Baptist Missionary society and traveled with Dr. Abernathy.

In the course of his address Mr. Sheppard predicted that Germany will become a monarchy as soon as she is able to regain her strength, but he said the Hohenzollern family will never again be in power. He said if Woodrow Wilson had never made his unfortunate trip to Europe the League of Nations would now be an established fact and Europe would be well on her way to peace and prosperity. He further stated that England is now ready to pay her debts to the United States, but she believes her debts should be wiped off the slate. Referring to Czecho-Slovakia, Esthonia, Lithuania and Latvia, the speaker said they were all looking to this country for political and economic salvation. In closing, Mr. Sheppard said we ought not to build a wall about the country, as China did in reality several thousand years ago, but to merge our nationality in the great tide of existence of which we are so naturally a political and economic part.

LICENSES REVOKED BY COMMISSION

Two soft drink licenses were revoked by the license commission last night as the result of complaints brought by officers of the liquor squad that intoxicants were being sold in the places mentioned. Spanor & Co. operate both stores and the manager of each establishment appeared before the commission last night. The first complaint heard was that against Thomas Safas, manager of the store at 59 Moody street, who confessed that he had paid a fine of $100 in the district court for liquor selling on Sept. 23 and a week later was fined $175 for a similar offence. Charles Spanos was the second defendant, and he also told officers that he had paid a $100 fine for illegal keeping.

HARVEST SUPPER

The harvest supper for the members of the Chelmsford Unitarian church and their friends took place last evening in the church vestry, which was handsomely decorated with autumn foliage. The supper was served at 6.30 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Walter Jewett and Mrs. A. L. Harmon. The latter part of the evening was taken up with the following program. Vocal duet, Miss Elizabeth F. Warren, Miss Laura Greene; reading, Miss Helen Casey of Lowell; vocal solo, Miss Green; reading, Miss Casey; clarinet solo, Miss Miriam Warren; duet, Miss Warren and Miss Green; reading, Miss Casey. Members of Mrs. Dane's Sunday school class acted as waitresses for the supper.

GEOMETRIC PRINCIPLE

Interesting Talk On Its Relation to Plant and Insect Life

The importance of the geometric principle and the part it plays in the growth of floral and insect life of the world, was explained in detail with many new illustrations by Edgar A. Headley, instructor of practical science at the Lowell State Normal school, yesterday afternoon, more than 200 woman students and several guests listening to the discourse. Numerous lata photographs and drawings were shown bearing upon the speaker's subject.

Ancient Greek architecture, the speaker said, was worked out with the square as a base. The Egyptians started measurements, with the triangle used and developed. Figurative examples were given showing the wonderful structure of raindrops, frost, hail and snow. The great possibilities of the square were also explained, showing how rectangles, triangles and spirals in unlimited number can be worked out with the square as a base.

American Women Are Careless

Women are too apt to overestimate their strength and overtax it. When feeling well they take unnecessary chances, which in the long run cause much pain and trouble. Wet feet, exposure to cold, lifting heavy burdens and overwork will often develop troubles which cause no end of suffering. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing remedy in such cases. Thousands of American women will testify to this fact who have regained health and strength by its use. If you are suffering it will pay you to give it a fair trial.—Adv.

FORGET-ME-NOT DAY

At the regular meeting of Lowell branch, Disabled Veterans of the World War, held last night in Memorial hall, plans for the annual "Forget-Me-Not" day were discussed, and the date for this year set at Nov. 4. The purpose of this day is to collect funds for aiding worthy disabled veterans. The following committee was appointed to arrange for the day: John J. McNabb, chairman; Comrades Geo. B. Walton, Edward Desonier, Walter Sanborn, Edward Garrity, Ezra Bowden, Edward H. Sullivan and William Broderick. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 24.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Chelmsford Village Improvement association, held last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. C. A. Dane; vice president, Paul Dutton; treasurer, Joseph E. Warren; secretary, Mrs. Edith Hemenway; executive committee, Mrs. C. V. Hazeltine, Mrs. D. E. Haley, Mrs. R. P. Adams, William H. Hall. In the course of the meeting suggestions for improvements in the village were submitted and a committee was appointed to prepare resolutions on the death of Miss Mary Elizabeth Richardson, a charter member of the organization.

COAL FOR SCHOOLS

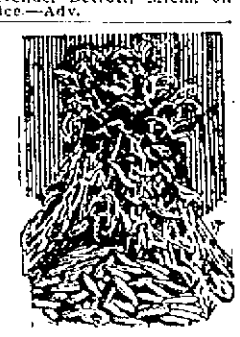

According to the purchasing agent's department it will be possible to obtain enough coal to keep the school buildings warm this winter. The buildings that are heated by soft coal have enough on hand while those using hard coal will be supplied. The Memorial Auditorium and Chelmsford street hospital will also be taken care of. The warm weather of this month has aided the coal men greatly and has given them time to catch up on orders.

Do you know that there is a simple, harmless, effective remedy for overfatness that may be used safely and secretly by any man or woman who is losing the slimness of youth? There is; and it is none other than the tablet form of the now famous Marmola Prescription, known as Marmola Prescription Tablets. You can well expect to reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a case, or you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich., on receipt of price.—Adv.

SCIENTIST CAN HELP

Could Enable Manufacturer Make Better Goods for Less Money, Says Howe

BOSTON, Oct. 18—The scientist, particularly the chemical engineer, can help the manufacturer make better goods for less money and new goods that will create and hold a popular demand, said Harrison F. Howe of Washington, in an address today at the annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

"Whatever we may think of the return of peaceful, normal times with tax and tariff settled for the time being," he said, "we are certainly entering into the most highly competitive age we have ever known. We may as well recognize that the far east with its great number of workers is becoming more and more able to compete with us in their own markets. Misfortunes have taught Europe patience, thrift, economy and hard work, and the whole world seems certain soon to engage upon a race for commercial and industrial supremacy unprecedented in the history of the world."

GASTON SCORES LODGE'S TARIFF ARGUMENT

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 18.—Col. William A. Gaston, democratic candidate for United States senator, John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for governor, and the other democratic speakers, who have been touring western Massachusetts, addressed rallies last night in this city, Holyoke, Chicopee and Westfield.

Col. Gaston declared "indefensible" Senator Lodge's argument, that the present tariff is necessary to keep foreign goods out of the American market. He urged that any duty imposed should represent only the difference between the cost of production here and abroad.

Mr. Fitzgerald continued his attacks on the republican policy as it affects the farmers.

"The republican state convention," he said, "which hissed the progressive republicans and cheered the name of Newberry found plenty of space in the party platform to lament atrocities in Smyrna, but gave expression to not a single idea of value for agriculture and side-stepped every important issue in the daily life of our people here at home."

Rally In Greenfield

GREENFIELD, Oct. 18. The Gaston-Fitzgerald campaigners arrived in Greenfield at noon yesterday and after a short conference with local democrats the car of Thomas F. Cassidy, candidate for congress from the 1st District, was driven to the side of the street for a speakers' stand. Harold R. Gowey of Pittsfield introduced the speakers, the first being James H. Vahey.

John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for governor, said the democratic state committee will, so far as possible, bring the truth to the people by word of mouth in the campaign. He said 90 per cent of the newspapers are under republican control and are not giving the public the truth on most questions.

John F. Doherty, candidate for lieutenant-governor, disputed assertions that the republican administration has saved millions of dollars. John E. Swift, candidate for attorney-general, and Dewitt C. Dewolf spoke briefly.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A very pretty birthday party was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs Rose Correia in honor of her daughter Mary's 18th birthday. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent with Morey's orchestra furnishing the music. A piano solo was given by Mrs. Kate Frates, also solos by the Misses Jose Souza and Paul Correia. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at a late hour, wishing the hostess, who was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, many happy returns of the day.

In the entire breeding season—about three months—a single pair of flies will be responsible for about 63 tons of flies.

Liberal Republican League Favors Democratic Candidate for Senator

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—The Liberal Republican League of Massachusetts, formed several months ago with the avowed purpose of "permanently liberalizing the republican party in the state," decided at a meeting here yesterday to support William A. Gaston, democratic candidate for United States senator. The preamble to the resolution adopted was:

"The overshadowing moral and political issue is the imperative need of eliminating Henry Cabot Lodge from the position of leadership that he now occupies in the republican party and the assertion of a new liberal, forward looking leadership which will redeem our party from its present reactionary bondage and make possible its reorganization in accordance with the principles of Lincoln and Roosevelt."

Joseph Walker, who was supported by the league when he disputed the republican nomination for United States senator with Mr. Lodge was present at the meeting.

BAR OPERATION ON HEAD OF NOTORIOUS BANDIT

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Oct. 18.—The department of justice has refused to permit an operation on the head of Roy Gardner, notorious bandit, who is confined in the federal penitentiary here, according to notification to Warden W. J. Biddle today from Washington.

The decision was based on a report by Dr. A. F. Yoho, prison physician, who, with several other surgeons, examined Gardner's skull. Gardner asked that a trepanning operation be performed, claiming an injury during his youth is responsible for his criminal tendencies.

FLOUR DEALERS ARE NOT WORRYING

Local flour dealers are not worrying for the present over the shortage of freight cars reported to be interfering seriously with the business of flour and grain traders in various cities of New England. Warren G. Torrey, chairman of the grain board of the Boston chamber of commerce, has received reports within the past 10 days, covering a wide territory in Massachusetts, and finds a serious shortage of grain and flour supplies in many quarters, with numerous receivers of products inconvenienced by tardy deliveries of small shipments.

A trip around town taking in the large wholesale flour houses in Lowell today, elicited information of a reassuring brand so far as staple supplies are concerned here. A large Middlesex street flour supply house reported plenty of stocks on hand and more on the way later in the week. Another flour dealer who also conducts a large grain business on Dutton street, furnished similar information, and nowhere could there be found any local vendor of the principal food staples who appeared to be having any transportation troubles, with the exception of deliveries on "futures," which were coming along slowly.

Local dealers have been notified that many flour mills in the middle and far west are able to operate only on part time for the present and some are able to operate at only half capacity because of the lack of trains.

The Buffalo chamber of commerce reports that the Buffalo port is jammed and the grain elevators there filled to capacity. Many vessels are waiting there to unload and in order that coal may be moved first, it has been necessary to relieve the elevators and vessels by diverting freight cars to Buffalo for flour and grain shipments. The matter is now under consideration of the Interstate Commerce commission.

DEATH RATE HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

The death rate for this city is higher than last year, according to a statement made by Francis J. O'Hare of the board of health. The number of deaths so far this year is 1137 as against 1109 up to this time last year. The death rate last year was the lowest in the history of the city and when it is considered that only 28 more deaths have occurred this year, the rate is not so high in comparison with other years.

LABOR UNION OFFICIAL CAMPAIGNING HERE

John Van Vaerenewyck, vice president of the Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor, who is campaigning in Lowell against the passage of the so-called moving picture censorship bill and the voluntary association act, two referenda, which will appear on the ballot at the coming state election, addressed several meetings last evening.

Mr. Vaerenewyck was one of the principal speakers at the mass meeting of car shop strikers, which was held in Colonial theatre, Middlesex street, last evening, and he also addressed gatherings at meetings of the Barbers' union, Woolen Weavers' and Wool Sorters' unions, while he also spoke at the mass meeting of Bleachery workers held in Trades & Labor hall in Central street.

BEWARE OF THE REAR LAMP FAKIR

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—"Beware the rear lamp fakir."

This, in substance, is the warning sent out today by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, to automobile owners and dealers.

Registrar Goodwin states he has found that unscrupulous salesmen are going about the state, attempting to sell their goods with the statement that they have "inside information" that their particular rear lamp is to be approved by the motor vehicle registry.

"The list of lamps approved for rear end use will be issued by this department on Nov. 15, and not before," Mr. Goodwin declared today. "Until that day, no one other than myself will know what lamps are to be included in it.

"For that reason I take this occasion to warn all dealers and owners not to purchase any rear lamps at this time. If they do so, they may find it necessary to purchase another when the law passed this year becomes effective."

The law to which Mr. Goodwin refers reads as follows:

"No rear lamp shall be used upon any motor vehicle unless approved by the registrar. Application for the approval of a lens or other device, or of a rear lamp, accompanied by a fee of fifty dollars, may be made to the registrar by any manufacturer or dealer therein." HOYT.

The Gideons have traveled all over the country and have delighted thousands with their renderings and interpretations of their songs. Their artistry is perfect, due to long study and careful observation of the countries whose songs they interpret. They have also sung in many foreign countries. Tickets are $1.50 and $1 and are on sale at Steinert's, 130 Merrimack st. Tel. 1069.

LOWELL BLEACHERY EMPLOYES MEET

A largely attended meeting of employes of the Lowell Bleachery took place last evening in Trades & Labor hall under the auspices of the Lowell Textile council, an organization composed of representatives of the various local unions affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America.

The principal speaker was Organizer Thomas J. Reagan, who spoke at length on the benefits to be derived from such an organization as the U. T. W. of A. He urged his listeners to join the organization and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the work accomplished by the organization only recently when through its efforts the wage cut was restored. At the close of the meeting many of those present signed membership applications.

STILL IN RHODE ISLAND

Harry G. Sheldon of Lowell still continues to fill the position of supervisory prohibition officer of Rhode Island, and has not been transferred to Maine as reported a few days ago.

MAY BE NAMED IN SEALED INDICTMENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—In the event that he may be named in the sealed federal indictments filed recently in Tacoma, Wash., in connection with the death of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite on Oct. 25, 1918, Robert Rosenbluth, former army captain who has figured in the case, has called with his attorney, Jonah J. Goldstein, on United States Attorney Hayward for the purpose, he said, of giving the prosecuting officials his present address.

Rosenbluth was referred to John E. Joyce, assistant United States attorney in charge of the Cronkhite case, who requested him to return to the federal courthouse today. Rosenbluth was arrested in New York on Mar. 26, 1921. Major Cronkhite was shot on the outskirts of Camp Lewis military reservation. Rosenbluth, four days after his arrest, gave $25,000 bail in Liberty bonds to go to the state of Washington to answer any charges officials there might make against him. The New York authorities investigated the shooting and declined to proceed against Rosenbluth. His bail was then released and it was supposed the inquiry had ended.

AT ALL SOULS' CHURCH

At the parish house of All Souls' church last night, the first of a series of monthly suppers was given by the ladies of the parish, headed by Miss Helen W. Barnes. Halloween games and stunts followed the supper, special numbers being rendered by Allan Dumas and John Walcott. Under the direction of Harold Nickerson, an "aeroplane stunt" was given, while Miss Harriet Cooper played the fortune teller role. Similar gatherings will be held each month during the winter season.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES—No. 88.

All day Jack had been planning on a means of escape. He finally decided that the only means would be to get down to the ground on some kind of a ladder. He quickly pulled all the bed clothes from the bed and tied them end to end.

Jack waited until midnight. Then he tied one end of his sheet ladder to the bed post. He then climbed out quietly and started down. His faithful dog, Flip, was waiting below and barked a greeting. Jack slid down the rope hurriedly but quietly.

"Be still, Flip," said Jack as he neared the ground. "Do you want to wake the guard up?" The boy then dropped off the end of the ladder. Flip didn't bark again but he jumped up and pawed at Jack. He was glad to see him again. Continued.

SAYS TWINS A HOAX

Nothing More Than Cleverly Constructed Dolls, Says Mrs. Hazel McNally

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 18.—Accused by her husband of killing twin babies which he said were born to her last December, Mrs. Hazel McNally, 24, faced trial here today, claiming the missing twins were nothing more than cleverly constructed dolls, mothered by her until last April to satisfy her husband's ambition to be known to the world as a father.

Both Frank McNally, the 56-year-old husband and his estranged wife, asserted their claims would be proved by witnesses called to testify at the trial.

In support of her claim, Mrs. McNally declared she told her husband shortly after their marriage that it was impossible for her to become a mother.

"But that failed to still his desire to be a parent," Mrs. McNally said. "On one occasion we inserted an advertisement offering to adopt a child, but nothing came of it. Finally his mania to pose as a father became so acute that we contrived the hoax."

All of his wife's story, McNally said, "is the desperate defense of a woman who has done away with her children."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By the Theatres Own Press Agents)

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the very best vaudeville shows this city has known, not alone this year, but in several seasons, is that one which is being given this week at the B. F. Keith theatre. The array of acts is specially good, with Julia Nash and C. H. O'Donnell in "Almost Single" as the topnotcher. Then there are Blanche and Jimmie Creighton in a rube skit that is good all the way through. The novelty by The Briants is all in a class by itself, while Misses Morgan and Binder give a chatty musical skit that is a hummer. Mazie Lunette, aerialist, is one of the most graceful of performers. Others on the bill are: Boudini & Bernard, in accordeon playing, and the Faden trio, musicians and comedians.

RIALTO THEATRE

D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle, "Way Down East," which opens a two-day engagement at the Rialto theatre today seems assured a wonderful reception. The hundreds who have already seen the great spectacle in this city are waiting for the return engagement, for it has endeared itself to their hearts as one of the most likable productions ever exhibited.

To those who are not already familiar with the wonderful scenes in this picture it is a picturization of that delightful story of New England rural life which Lottie Blair Parker and Joseph R. Grismer made so familiar upon the American stage covering a period of more than a decade. By Griffith's treatment it becomes a new art, vibrant with a life that is fast passing from view and infused with the finest mingling of pastoral scenes ever conceived for an American drama. The thrilling rescue of the heroine from the great ice jam is one of the scenes not easily forgotten in this production. Richard Barthelmess and Lillian Gish are the two leading actors. Other strong attractions support "Way Down East" for the two-day showing.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performances of "The Old Homestead," with Theodore Roberts and an all-star supporting cast will be given this evening at the Merrimack Square theatre. Don't fail to see this big production before it leaves Lowell.

The features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "The Ghost Breaker," an intensely entertaining comedy romance with Wallace Reid and Lila Lee in the leading roles, and "The Cowboy and the Lady," a dramatic production starring Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore.

"The Ghost Breaker," is a genuinely entertaining picture. The story starts off with a succession of thrills, the action moving from feuds in Kentucky to castle in Spain, with a joyous happy-go-lucky interlude in New York city. The sequence of ghost episodes, which occur in the Spanish castle, are one sizzling alternation of laughter and thrills and the ending, as happy as it is sudden, will send you home in an amiable frame of mind.

Lila Lee is charming as the Spanish senorita. Walter Hiers, playing his first black-face role has nothing better to his credit than his interpretation of Rusty Snow, the negro valet. There are other popular players in the cast, all of whom acquitted themselves with credit.

"The Cowboy and the Lady," the other big feature for the week-end, first came into being as a stage play by Clyde Fitch. It is a love story of the boundless west, wherein a young man from the east makes good in such fashion that he decides to stay there. His adventures form the basis of a mighty interesting story. With Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore in the leading roles, the photoplay can't help being good.

A comedy and the latest International News will complete the bill.

"SILVER WINGS"—COMING

"Silver Wings," the William Fox special, with Mary Carr, as the starring character, is scheduled for presentation at the Strand next week. Watched.

THE STRAND

A better series of photoplays, clustered under one program, could not be found in New England, than the one to be shown for the last time today at the Strand. See "Human Hearts" interpreted by an all-star cast, headed by House Peters; "Don't Shoot," one of Herbert Rawlinson's melodramatic crook stories; Billy Franey's latest comedy; and musical numbers of excellence. It's a picture offering, the equal of which cannot be duplicated hereabouts.

On the wings of the wind, at breakneck pace, to the limit of his horse's endurance, heedless of everything but the need of speed, Tom Mix rides the sands of Arizona. Many things are in the balance—life, love, property—he wins them all, for red blood is in his veins, and the throb to give battle is there also. This is just a word-picture of one of the many exciting glimpses of "For Big Stakes," the newest Mix photoplay to open a three day's engagement at the Strand on Thursday. Can you afford to miss it? We'll say no.

Gladys Brockwell and Stuart Holmes are two of the several noted screen stars to appear in "Paid Back," on the same bill. Superb, polished villainy and consummate love making, such as Irving Cummings creates for the screen, is well reflected in this highly dramatic picture story. We recommend it to all.

OPERA HOUSE

An entourage of more than 50, including some of the prettiest and most fascinating girls ever seen on a musical stage, two carloads of scenery and a wardrobe more extensive than Lowell has seen in ten years, is what the patrons of the Opera House are seeing this week in the presentation of the great Marcus show of 1922. It's peppery, up to the minute and clean. It's the kind of show that everyone can enjoy, for it's clean and wholesome. The musical hits are being whistled about town. Crowded houses at every performance testify to its popularity. Order your tickets in advance.

THE AUDITORIUM

Seats are selling rapidly for the Irene Castle entertainment, "Fashions and Dances of 1923," to be given at the Memorial Auditorium Oct. 26, under the direction of Albert Edmund Brown.

Miss Castle will appear in the person that evening and will display costumes which she has never worn before and which will be just a little bit ahead of anything yet turned out even by the smartest shops. Supported by the Moscow orchestra and the Castle ensemble she will also demonstrate some of the latest and most graceful dances as only she can do.

The advance man for Miss Castle's New York management, Ernest Briggs, Inc., was in Lowell yesterday afternoon and visited the Auditorium where the famous star is to appear a week from tomorrow night. He was enthusiastic over the opportunity Lowell's splendid new building will afford Miss Castle to demonstrate her skill and grace. Stage dimensions were secured in order to have the Castle properties properly arranged for the appearance of the star here.

Miss Castle will not appear in any other city near Lowell this fall. She has even cancelled a Boston date in order to be one of the first stars to give a performance at the new Auditorium. There are still plenty of good seats at Steinert's, 130 Merrimack st. Tel. 1069.

Y.M.C.A. STUDY COURSES

Arrangements have been made by the Y.M.C.A. to offer study courses in Lowell in conjunction with Northeastern university of Boston. The first of these courses will start on Oct. 25 and will consist of public speaking, salesmanship, foremanship and radio. Additional information may be secured at the "Y."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Eating Too Much Meat May Clog Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

HARDING BOOSTING HIS PARTY

President Harding in a letter to Congressman Mondell of Wyoming praises the work of the 66th and the 67th congress, setting forth in great detail the alleged difficulties they had to overcome in facing the problems of reconstruction. He compared the problems before congress since the World war with those following the Civil war, and reasoned that the latter were less difficult because the country could then rest upon the aid of other nations, whereas since the World war the other nations want to lean on us. He failed to show that after the Civil war this nation was aided by others or that we have done much of anything for other nations since the World war, except to aid the starving in Russia, which was a spontaneous movement by the American people.

That is specious reasoning but false and illogical. It is, however, the kind of stuff that may be expected from republican speakers in this campaign when defending an administration that wasted practically two years in a vain search for political capital in the records of the war.

The party leaders now claim the credit for restoring business by passing a tariff law; but the inherent recuperative powers of the country would have brought a return of prosperity at least one year ago had not the republican congress delayed the passage of its promised tariff law.

The industries of the country have been held in suspense awaiting the time when they could look ahead and plan for continued activity on something like a definite financial basis.

The present tendency to inflation is the result of a bound forward by our industries just as soon as the pending tariff uncertainty was removed. The tariff, however, will bring retaliation from foreign nations that will militate against our foreign trade. The industries can continue their present spell of activity until their storehouses are filled; but then, without a foreign market for their goods, they cannot continue. The domestic market cannot dispose of the entire output of our factories and if there is no foreign demand for the surplus, then prosperity cannot be permanent.

The republicans will make the most of the present spell of improved business activity but, as already stated, it would have come much sooner but for the delays, and the do-nothing policy of congress. At present and probably as an unwelcome accompaniment of the November election, we shall have a coal famine, due to President Harding's lack of tact and courage in dealing with the coal strike and the railroad strike. In addition, our merchant marine is lying practically idle with the prospect that eventually the ships will have to be sold to private parties. That will be the natural result of the republican tariff policy. It was that policy which destroyed our merchant marine in the past when our flag was honored in the harbors of the world. Even the ship subsidies advocated by President Harding will hardly save our merchant marine from the blighting influence of the excessive republican tariff. Nobody nowadays denies the necessity of reasonable protection against foreign competition, but the Fordney-McCumber tariff has been dictated by special interests for their own benefit and as a result, it will increase the cost of living at least $4,000,000,000 in the next year. That will show the benevolence of the republican protective policy.

AS TO BRITISH PROPAGANDA

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir: Is it true that England censors the news sent from Ireland or that most of what the newspapers publish in this country relative to Ireland is propaganda either for England or the Irish Free State?

Truly yours,

J. F. M.

It is not true. The parties who make such statements either do not know what they are talking about or else deliberately misrepresent the situation for an interior purpose. Practically everything that is published in the reputable newspapers in this country relative to Ireland is confirmed by the Irish press, which is free to publish the news without interference. Correspondents of American newspapers send to this country whatever they please, and this they would not be allowed to do if any rigid censorship such as alleged were exercised.

The Hibernian Journal of Ireland, just at hand, states that since the truce was signed in July, the property damage alone, done by the activities of the Irregulars, would net forty million pounds or two billion dollars, which is probably more than the British ever did at any period in the same length of time. Moreover a large proportion of this damage will have to be met by the people of the districts in which the damage is done. This method is adopted to induce the people to use their influence against such outrages. The Hibernian paper referred to, is neutral as between the parties in Ireland, but yet it has a summary of the daily happenings, which is more shocking than would appear from the accounts published in the American press. If its account were printed here without naming the source, the people referred to by the correspondent above would pronounce it the worst kind of British propaganda, which, of course, would only prove our statement.

ORIGIN OF THE POTATO

Thirteen feet above sea level in the mountains of northern Ecuador, the region which is believed by scientists to be the cradle of the potato race, there has been found a wild, true species of this plant, which is quite different from the discoveries that were made by Wilson Popence of the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture, some time ago. Our own well developed potatoes would be just as proud of these gigantic mountain Murphies as a certain gentleman is of the anthropoid apes; for the Andean variety from which our own has sprung, is too small to be of economic importance. Plant breeders in this country, however, hope that tests may show characteristics which will make it worth while to combine them with our cultivated kinds by crossing. The wild tubers produce seed rather freely, but are also subject to one of the potato diseases of which their cultured brothers are often victims.

ROOTING FOR LODGE

Ex-Senator Root is to come to Massachusetts in an effort to save Senator Lodge. He throws out a bait to the former progressives by saying that he knows Senator Lodge was in full sympathy with President Roosevelt in all his policies. If that were true, Mr. Lodge would have gone out with Roosevelt when he bolted the republican convention and launched the Bull Moose party.

Mr. Root evidently regards Lodge as a good man for the republican party and an experienced manipulator of the republican machine; but if Mr. Root would justify Lodge's course as senator, he should explain why he allowed the port of Boston to be left practically idle through railroad discrimination in favor of other Atlantic ports farther south.

NEW HOTEL PROJECT

It looks now as if the chamber of commerce will put through the movement for a new hotel, the only thing Lowell needs to put her in line with other very pretentious cities. With such a splendid convention hall as that provided in the Memorial Auditorium, the enterprise of the city should be directed in real earnest to the realization of this hotel idea. A city of diversified industries such as Lowell is behind the times if it has not at least one first class hotel.

It is safe to say, that in spite of the croakers who calumniate the chamber of commerce as they assail every progressive step for the benefit of the community, the enterprising men of Lowell who have a pride in their city will aid this movement by every means in their power.

FIGHTING LLOYD GEORGE

Now comes the French envoy who dealt with Kemal Pasha in the recent unpleasantness and avers that it was the pacific policy of France and not the belligerent policy of Lloyd George that averted war in the Near East. This, at a time when the British premier was taking all the honor of handling the situation, will be welcome political ammunition for his enemies. Moreover, the fact that he referred to the Kemalist forces as "warlike animals" has stirred the followers of the Turkish leader to indignation. France seems to be on the inside with the Turks, and Lloyd George is fighting his enemies at home and abroad with the chances as usual in his favor.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER

Now that the women have the suffrage, it is hoped they will get registered so as to be able to use it on election day. There are 1,200,000 voters in Massachusetts and nearly as many who are eligible to vote if they were registered. There are thousands of women in Lowell, and perhaps nearly as many men, who are not registered and yet an election of great importance is at hand. This is the last day for registration. The election board will be in session till 10 p. m. Don't get left.

WHEAT

The price of wheat never would fall below $1.25 a bushel or rise above $1.50 if the grain market were stabilized by a government fund of $100,000,000. So claims Arthur R. Roberts, commission broker, member of the Chicago board of trade.

The fund, according to Roberts' suggestion, would be used to buy up grain surplus at seasonal times. It is worth considering. A hundred million dollars, suddenly taking a hand in the situation, should be powerful enough to stabilize any market.

BRITAIN OBJECTS

Britain rejects Secretary Hughes' plan for the extension of reciprocal search and seizure beyond the three-mile limit. The secretary asks England to revive some of the intolerable navigation customs, to wipe out which this country went to war with England in 1812. The right of search, therefore, will remain restricted, as it properly should be, to the three-mile limit. It would not be wise to revert to the age of piracy, even on the pretext of enforcing the prohibition law.

The "stunt" craze that induces a girl aviator to swing from a rope attached to an airplane, holding only by her teeth, is a form of insanity that does not respond to the usual tests applied by the alienists.

The Massachusetts Police association is specially welcomed to Lowell as being the first state organization to hold a convention in our Memorial Auditorium. May all their deliberations be harmonious and successful.

The office of district attorney is one from which politics should be barred. That will be the order of things if James C. Reilly is elected.

Superintendent Doherty is not responsible for the delays due to the railroads.

The detectives in the Hall-Mills murder case are getting down to business.

Disabled railroads mean disabled business throughout the country.

In All Humility

"How do you think the financial relationships of the world ought to be adjusted?" "Taint for me to say," replied Farmer Carntossel. "I can't even get the mortgage paid off of a 50-acre farm."—Washington Star.

A Thought

It offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings who for the most part are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb show and noise.—Shakespeare.

Might Land In Cellar

"As Sancho Panza says, 'When they give you a heifer, have the rope ready.' That's good advice. Here's something else worth remembering." "Well?" "When a promoter offers to let you in on the ground floor, look out for trap doors."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Woman's Answer

The lady was being heckled, but she was holding her own and the motley crowd of loafers to whom she was talking were spurred to further efforts. "Hi, missus," shouted a tough, "you look cold! Why don't you turn your collar up, like me?" "Well, you see," she answered sweetly, "I've got a clean neck!"

Nonskidding Mud

"O, but, judge," protested the motorist when the rural magistrate had imposed a $10 fine for speeding, "just look at our roads! No car could have gone more than eight miles an hour through that mud." "That's jest it," said his honor severely. "T'warn't nothin' but that thar mud of ours as held ye back."—Detroit Free Press.

What They Were

A dinner party was in progress and owing to the shortage of servants and as an emergency, a stable boy had had been brought in to assist. The youth was terribly embarrassed, and as he tremblingly thrust forward a dish of tartlets the hostess inquired languidly: "What are these, John?" "I really don't know, ma'am," he replied, "but I think they're five cents apiece." —New York Mail.

The New "Dicer"

"Boss, does yo' 'member dat hat I bought fum you, fo' my boy Sat-dy?" "Yes. What about it?" "Well, it am entirely too small fo' him." "All right, I will exchange it for one a little larger. "Well, if dat hat am six, seben, eight, Boss, I spec yo' betteh gimme a nine, ten, eleben."—Judge.

Tiresome Sameness

A man who always went to the same restaurant became tired of the uniformity of the diet. He went in one day and was handed a menu by a new waitress. He looked at it and said something to the girl. She went over to her fellow workers and said: "That old duffer's crazy. When I ran over the bill of fare to him he just grunted, 'Hebrews 13 and eight.'" Some one hunted up the reference in the bible and found: "The same yesterday, today, and forever."

Willie Was Interested

The Sunday school lesson was on Job. The superintendent of the primary department was earnestly endeavoring to picture the painful existence of Job to his youthful audience. To this end he was dwelling at length upon poor Job's sufferings and the futility of all medical treatment. A small boy down front who had been absorbed in the tale suddenly held up his hand. "What is it, Willie?" asked the superintendent. "Have they tried Dr. Smith?" asked Willie, loyally naming the family physician.—Kehoboth Sunday Herald.

Your favorite picture star: She is a spoiled, lazy creature who spends the day in bed and rises at six o'clock in the morning to prepare her own breakfast in her personal, diamond studded kitchen that she carries with her wherever she goes. She is a lover of domestic peace and tranquility and has been married six times. She has an angelic disposition and flies into a rage at the slightest provocation. She is athletic, often playing polo in her swimming suit, and seldom goes out of doors except on business. She was born in 1858 and is nineteen years old.

What Mother Said

The poor old modern father has the greatest job in the world to get the better of his far more modern daughter. Whatever the aforesaid poor old modern father may say or attempt to say, Miss 1922 has an apt and ready reply. "That young man stays to an unearthly hour every night," said the irate modern father to his youngest daughter one morning. "What does your mother say about it?" "Well, dad," the modern young woman replied, as she turned to go upstairs, "she says that men haven't changed a bit!"

The Pilot

Oh, pilot, 'tis a fearful night, there's danger on the deep;
I'll come and pace the deck with thee, I do not dare to sleep.
Go down! the sailor cried, go down; this is no place for thee;
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

Ah, pilot, dangers often met we all are apt to slight,
And thou hast known these raging waves but to subdue their might.
It is not apathy, he cried, that gives this strength to me;
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

On such a night the sea engulfed my father's lifeless form;
My only brother's boat went down in just so wild a storm.
And such, perhaps, may be my fate, but still I say to thee;
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

This is the time of the year when city folks like to run out into the country and buy winter apples of such varieties as the Baldwin, right at the farmers' doors. Some find it the cheapest way to stock up on apples for the winter. Many object to the Sunday sales by the farmers along the highways, however, as stores in the cities and towns are not allowed to sell on Sunday. The Sunday law does not seem to be enforced against the farmers.

The choice of George H. Wood as chairman of the special committee on "High School Spirit" of the Lowell Ad club, was an excellent one in every respect. This committee will seek the co-operation of the club in supporting and boosting high school activities. The idea is to arouse a lively school spirit, to boost the "Lowell spirit" and Lowell. This committee ought to be heard from a little later on. It has a lot of work cut out for it.

The recent quarterly meeting of the Lowell Historical society recalls the interesting fact that this organization is now 54 years old, having been established in 1868. The incorporation came in 1902. One of the excellent committees this year that is always busy, so to speak, is composed of Charles H. McIntire, William B. Goodwin and Joseph M. Wilson, who comprise the committee on genealogy.

Mme. Kalich, the actress, returns from Europe where she had a long talk with the cynical kidder, George Bernard Shaw. She says Shaw is weakening on his decision not to visit America, and he might come if he could shake off his fear that he would have to attend American banquets. If George waits a couple more years, he can visit us safely, for prohibition is rapidly driving the banquet to extinction. Oratory, except of the highest grade, goes begging when liquor is not served as an incentive to applaud.

New York holds a celebration of the 102nd anniversary of the birth of Madame Goldschmidt, the "Swedish Nightingale," known in musical history as Jenny Lind. A statue will be erected to this famous coloratura soprano, in Battery park. There was only one Jenny Lind, just as there will never be another Caruso. Old-timers say that to hear her was to get a glimpse of paradise. Music is one of life's most intimate contacts with the spiritual.

Soldier boys will be interested in the story of big Jim Hanbery, formerly a Kansas school teacher who was wounded 44 times during the war, left on the field for dead, and honored by funeral and memorial services in many towns. However, he showed up living, is now a reporter in Omaha, and recently was decorated with the distinguished service cross. Forty-four wounds! And he's still alive. Hypochondriacs, morbidly terrified at the slightest ache and pain, should paste this in their hats.

Birds of paradise plumes and wings, $15,000 worth of them, are seized in raids on nine millinery shops in New York city. To get their property back, the owners must prove that the plumage was legally in their possession before the passage of the wild bird feather exclusion law in October, 1913. Gents with red noses might view this as "infringement on personal liberty." What is the difference between prohibiting booze and prohibiting feathers?

I would suggest to the superintendent of streets that a sign indicating the road to Nashua be placed on the beacon at the junction of Merrimack and Pawtucket streets. As everybody familiar with that district knows, Merrimack street ends bluntly in Pawtucket street in front of the C.M.A.C. building, while the car tracks extend to the left and right. When tourists who are on their way to New Hampshire arrive at that spot, they are at a loss to know just where to go. Of course both roads lead to the Pawtucket boulevard; but this is not known by tourists with the result that in many cases they are forced to make inquiries. If a suitable sign were placed on the beacon, pointing in the direction of the Pawtucket bridge, it would prove a great relief to those who are traveling in that direction who are not acquainted with the road. Such a sign would entail but a small expense.

There is one happy man in Lowell and he is George Skalkeas, one of the proprietors of the People's market in Market street, for George has just received cheering news from the old country. When the Turks invaded Asia Minor some time ago, the Lowell man's sister, her two children and two brothers disappeared from Smyrna and all efforts to locate them had proved fruitless. Cablegrams were sent to Smyrna and Constantinople and Athens in an attempt to locate the missing people, but all in vain, and finally all hopes of ever seeing them alive were abandoned. A couple of days ago Mr. Skalkeas received a letter from his sister, stating that she was safe with her two children and a brother on the island of Chios. She states that her brother was forced to throw himself into the sea to escape death at the hands of the Turks and he was picked up by an English ship. The whereabouts of the other brother is not known. Mr. Skalkeas will now endeavor to have the party come to this country and he has already taken the preliminary steps for the passports and voyage.

A friend of mine working in a local bank tells an amusing story of a patron of foreign extraction, who has an account with his bank and who went to the institution recently, presumably for the purpose of drawing out his money. The clerk was extremely busy at the time and offered to make out a draft for the man, but he insisted on getting the real cold cash. The clerk naturally obliged and after counting out the money, handed it to his client. The latter, with a smile on his face, counted and recounted the new bills to his evident satisfaction and then handed them back to the clerk with the remark: "Here, put this back. I just wanted to find out if it was all there."

PRISONERS BREAK FROM SLIGO JAIL

SLIGO, Ire., Oct. 18—(By the Associated Press) Heavy firing early yesterday proved to be for the purpose of covering the escape of 13 irregular army prisoners from the jail.

The men constructed ladders out of torn blankets filed through the bars, let themselves down into an alleyway, scaled the outer wall and lowered themselves to the ground.

The fugitives met a number of armed men but sympathizers began firing and the prisoners got away clear.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

DREAMS

I've steadily stuck to my knitting,
I've plodded along here at home,
I've never had chances for flitting,
Although I've been crazy to roam;
But oh the great dreams I unravel,
The visions I've had by the score
Of how I might travel and travel,
And after that—travel some more!

By thoughts of adventure I'm haunted,
But, being uncommonly meek,
I never have got what I wanted,
I never have found what I seek;
The fault is my own, I can't envil
If life is at times quite a bore,
Because I can't travel and travel,
And after that travel some more!

But when I am done with existence,
And tasks that are hum-drum and stale,
I hope I can roam through the distance,
And follow each heavenly trail;
Beyond all this grime and this gravel,
I'm longing for stars to explore,
To travel and travel and travel,
And after that—travel some more!

PROBLEMS SOLVED BY RADIO

English fans are using the radio to help them in their school studies. Broadcasting stations have been sending out valuable information in connection with the various schoolroom lectures ,and the boys are taking advantage of this help in solving their more difficult problems. Here are two enthusiasts learning facts about the sea and its life, by radio.

"SPARK HAMS" GET RADIO BARGAIN

(By N.E.A. Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Radio amateurs with the old-fashioned spark sets have recorded a financial victory.

Radio dealers are offering to sell each of these "spark hams" a complete radio outfit of the modern kind, at wholesale prices!

The reason for this is that the dealers who have an interest in broadcasting want to eliminate the interference they have been getting from the spark sets of the older amateurs. There is no law against spark transmission, so the only way out of the difficulty was to propose an enticing bargain to the amateurs.

Interference from spark transmitters has been almost as bad as static in this district. To make their broadcasting programs more enjoyable, dealers have decided the only way out was to induce spark amateurs to relinquish their sets for the modern tube sets. Their part in affording this change would be the sale of apparatus to such amateurs at wholesale rates.

Although this plan is proposed only for the sixth district, it may be applied to the whole country if it proves satisfactory here. It is subject to general acceptance by the amateurs, say the dealers.

SEND FLOWERS BY RADIO

If you want to send a bouquet to a friend in Europe, send it by radio.

That is the suggestion made by a London firm of florists. It is based on actual orders for flowers by means of radio telegraphy. When the radio telephone is perfected so that transoceanic talk will be possible, orders may be given directly for the kind of flowers wanted.

According to members of this firm, 2300 agents deliver flowers for them in the United States and Canada. They, in turn, get similar orders from these agents. Heretofore they have been coming by cable.

Now it has become another use for radio.

RADIO MAY STOP TRAIN WRECKS

Radio may be the means of averting train wrecks.

Experts are already working on the possibilities of wireless in the saving of lives and property along railroad rights of way. Their idea is to invent a system of signaling by radio which would be absolutely fool proof.

Entire elimination of the human factor is the ultimate goal and radio may be a step toward it. A signal sent out from a stalled train could be caught by the engineer of an approaching train in time to avert a collision.

This is possible at present with the semaphore system, but experts believe radio warnings will make it foolproof. If the engineer for some reason disregards a radio warning, some sort of radio-controlled apparatus may be used to stop the train before it is too late.

NAVY NIGHT BY RADIO

"Navy Night" once a month is to be held by fans who listen in on WJZ, Newark, N. J., broadcasting station. On these nights, the navy department will broadcast information and other material about itself, through this station. The navy band will play and other bits of entertainment will be provided by naval men.

ENGINES DROWN RADIO

The United States army is making a special study of radio, especially in the direction of devising some plan by which the noise of airplane engines will not drown out radio reception. This has been one of the main difficulties in the operation of wireless on airplanes.

WRITING BY RADIO

Correspondence might be conducted by radio. This suggestion has been made in several quarters on basis of the recent invention of the teletype, a radio operated typewriter. If this can be done, mails would be supplanted by radio.

EARLY AND CORRECT ELECTION RETURNS

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Unusual efforts are to be made by Governor Cox and his official council this year to make certain that the election returns are submitted speedily and without error.

Under the law, the governor and council constitute the official canvassing body for all state election returns. The statutes provide that within ten days after the election the clerk of each city and town shall forward to the governor's office a correct return of all the votes cast within his jurisdiction, and when all have been received, the councilors tabulate the figures and make announcement of the results.

In the past the work has been delayed every year, usually by the clerk of some small town who either failed to send in his figures on time, or, by failing to read his instructions carefully sent in an erroneous return.

This year the governor has decided to make a personal appeal to the city and town clerks, asking them to do their part in expediting the handling of the tremendous task. His letter, sent out today by Charles A. Southworth, secretary of the executive council, reads:—

"To City and Town Clerks:—
Gentlemen:—

The governor and council, who under the constitution are charged with officially canvassing the returns of votes cast at state elections, have asked me to impress upon you individually the importance of making these returns within the ten days after the election prescribed by law, and also seeing to it that they are more accurate than they have been in many instances heretofore. Returns have often been extremely incomplete and erroneous, necessitating requests for amended returns, telephone conversations for verification, etc., which has held up the work of tabulating for a considerable time.

May I urge you personally to see that the number of votes cast for each candidate or upon each question is written legibly in longhand and also expressed at the right of the sheet in figures,—that the total number of voted given is actually the sum of the other figures on the sheet,—and that the returns are properly signed; also that if request is made for an amended return it be forwarded immediately.

Your kind compliance with these requests will be greatly appreciated by the governor and council.

Sincerely yours,
C. A. SOUTHWORTH,
Executive Secretary."

Don't Envy Perfect Health---Enjoy It!

You Can't Be Happy When Every Day Brings that Nagging Backache and That Tired, Weak, All-Worn-Out Feeling

ARE you one of those unfortunate folks who is always envying the good health and happiness of others? Do you arise in the morning lame and stiff? Drag through the day with your back a dull, unceasing ache? Evening find you "all played out," thinking only of a little rest before tomorrow's weary grind? Do friends and family wonder why you are so discouraged and out of sorts?

It's time, then, you were giving some attention to your kidneys! The kidneys, you know, are the blood-filters. Let them fall behind and the effect on blood and nerves is quickly apparent. Your back aches, you suffer, sharp, stabbing pains and feel dull, nervous, irritable and depressed. Your head aches, you are dizzy, and apt to be annoyed by bladder irregularities.

Heed these early warnings! Realize that your kidneys have fallen behind, and give them the help they need before some serious kidney sickness develops. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have brought new health and strength to thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These LOWELL Folks:

GEORGE V. McGRIGSON, Machinist
118 Lincoln St., Says:

"I worked in the paint shop for a while and the turpentine fumes knocked my kidneys out. I had severe pains in my back and to stoop over felt as though someone were pulling my back to pieces. I had to pass the kidney secretions quite frequently and they were highly colored and scalding. Everything went around in circles at times. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and half a dozen boxes cured me completely. My cure has lasted."

MRS. C. P. LYNDE
30 Pulter St., Says:

"I can hardly describe the misery I endured from lumbago. My back was so bad that for days at a time I couldn't straighten and went around all bent over. Mornings I was all played out. My kidneys did not get right and my feet swelled so badly I had to unlace my shoes. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and secured some at Lewis' Drug Store. They rid me of the trouble."

TO PROMOTE A NEW EVANGELISM

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The formation by a group of Episcopal clergymen of the Modern Churchmen's union in America to "promote a new evangelism among the unchurched classes," was announced here today. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith, rector emeritus of St. John's church, Washington, D. C., is the first president of the organization.

Spokesmen for the organization said it was an outgrowth of the war "which shook the church and caused profound changes in its attitude." The Modern Churchman's union will not be concerned with administrative affairs of the church, it was stated, but its members are loyal churchmen anxious to spread the teaching of Jesus Christ in accordance with the development of modern civilization.

One of the purposes in a tentative program of the organization will be to "maintain the right to interpret the historic expressions of our faith in accordance with the results of modern and Biblical scholarship."

FALL RASPBERRIES FROM DRACUT

October hot waves or freezing temperatures have no terrors for the ripe, red, autumnal raspberries of delectable flavor that thrive on the sturdy everbearing shoots in the gardens of J. E. Park, Dracut.

Today by special delivery to the editor of The Sun came a dainty, beribboned candy box that appeared to carry chocolate-sweet confections familiarly known to all purchasers of tidbits in the local candy stores. When the padded cover of the candy box was removed, after the ribbon was untied, the editor's desk became a magnet for many prying eyes.

Within the dainty confection carrier, instead of the usual many-variety bon bons, were glowing red raspberries, sun-colored, all of good size and laden with luscious sweetness and flavor fit for a June garden Lucillian banquet.

Not always are raspberries found at this season of the year, even in gardens where the ever-bearing fruit is not at all a rarity. As a rule these vines stop bearing earlier than this, and many small frosts kill the tiny fruit stems. The weather man has reported at least four heavy frosts during the past three weeks, all of which killed most of the vinous plants in and around Lowell. But the raspberry vines of our good friend and neighbor, Mr. Park, of Dracut, evidently withstood all attacks of the weather sling-shot artists, for these red raspberries, of excellent flavor every one and as colorful as the pictures you see in the garden nursery magazines that advertise them, would easily capture a prize for both quality and size.

The Dracut reader of The Sun may be assured that his unexpected gift of October 16, though a little late in the season, is none the less highly acceptable, and the exhibition of these fall raspberries with the summer delectability and attractiveness, is one worthy of special mention in place of the usual no-coal story and the snow-shovel price lists, even ahead of the latest congressional district campaign scrap.

The Sun hopes to hear from Brother Park again. Any man who can raise raspberries in the middle of October must have something worth [illegible] about, and this is the story in full.

Revolt Threatened if Command Is Moved to London

BY JOHN O'DONNELL
N.E.A. Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Salvation Army of America will break cleanly from the English parent organization and establish itself as an absolutely independent unit with Evangeline C. Booth as commander-in-chief if the "insurgent officers" who number 90 per cent. of the American Salvation Army are able to translate their present plans into action.

This is the result of the order of General W. Bramwell Booth which he issued in London through the newspapers recalling his sister from the American command which she has held for 18 years.

Only one obstacle halts the insurgents. That obstacle is the loyalty of Commander Booth to the tradition of discipline instilled by her father, the founder of the organization. Against this barrier, is the pressure from insurgents within the organization and friends from without.

"The spirit and blood of a soldier are in my veins," said Commander Booth. "I have never had a thought of doing anything other than obeying orders, even when they entail a sacrifice. But I will say that I have never before been called upon to make such a sacrifice as this order of my brother entails."

American Organization Indignant

Reports of bitter indignation have been pouring into the New York headquarters ever since General Booth's announcement about his sister's removal has become known.

The order was criticised first on the grounds of the "insulting and unmilitary" manner of issuance. It was first given to the press and then an official copy was sent to America. It was scored for its "heartlessness" in the removal against her wishes of a commander who had been in America for 18 years. No excuse of organization custom could be given, as the officers with whom General Booth has surrounded himself in London have held their places for 20 and 30 years.

But the fact that caused the move for independence on the part of the American Salvation Army was the decision by General Booth to have no national head in America and to divide responsibilities among three commissioners each of whom would be individually responsible to London.

This would prevent such unified work as the Salvation Army accomplished in America during the war. It was this that caused the independence movement to gain ground so rapidly.

"I am in absolute ignorance of where I shall be sent or how soon I shall have to go," said Commander Booth today. "I have not yet had any definite word from my brother relative to my removal."

Transfer Not a Promotion

"Have you any reason to doubt that he intends to take you from America?" she was asked.

"The newspaper statement was over his signature and I have no reason to doubt its authenticity," she replied.

"There is no command equal to that of America either in responsibility or importance," the commander replied when asked if her transfer could in any way be construed as a promotion.

"Will not your brother's decision to do away with a national head impair the loyalty of the organization?" she was asked.

During this part of the interview it was easy to see that the commander was making a sincere but futile effort to defend her brother's order and to protect the Salvation Army discipline.

"The Salvation Army organization in America is in harmony with America's ideal of national unity," she replied. "The separate divisions achieve unity under a single national head. While my brother is doing away with our national head, I do not think he is doing this with any purpose to break up the Salvation Army organization in this country."

Will Obey Orders, She Says

"But won't the breaking up of the American organization be the sole and inevitable result?" she was asked.

"Well, I only hope it won't then. In unity there is strength."

When asked about the strong sentiment in the Salvation Army in America which believes that it should break away from London control and ignore the recall, Commander Booth replied:

"I have never had a thought of doing anything other than obeying orders, even when they entail a sacrifice.

"The spirit and blood of a soldier are in my veins. There are no influences that could make me rebellious to discipline. Obedience to this order is the hardest thing I have ever had to do.

"But I shall go."

CHEQUES MAILED TO WORLD SERIES PLAYERS

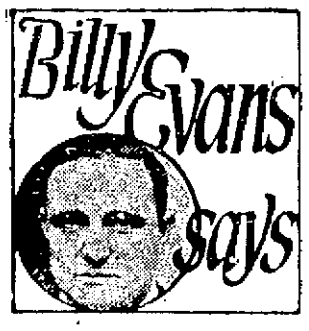

CHICAGO, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press)—Cheques ranging in sums from $50 to $4545.71 were mailed yesterday from the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to 74 men who participated in the 1922 world series games at the Polo grounds, New York. Three cheques each for $2542.86, were handed to Players Joe Bush, Waite Hoyt and Fred Hofman of the Yankees, when they were leaving Chicago last Sunday, en route to Japan.

Eighteen Giants, including Manager John McGraw and Coach Jennings, each received a cheque for $4545.71. Five members of the Giants were given individual cheques for $4545.70, which is one cent less than the amounts received by the highest group. One of these was "Cozy" Dolan, the veteran assistant coach.

The veteran pitcher, Jesse Barnes, received one cent more than his brother, Virgil, who also is a pitcher. The cheques of 12 others, including players who were lately added to the Giants' roster, groundkeepers, trainers, mascots, etc., ranged from $200 to $2272.85.

Of the 25 cheques mailed yesterday to members of the Yankee club 23 were for $2542.86 each, and two for $2542.85. The remaining seven cheques represented sums ranging from $50 to $1421.43. The total amount of the cheques mailed yesterday was $177,255.87, of which $110,617.04 went to the members of the Giants, and $66,612 12 to the Yankees.

Cheques to the umpires who officiated in the baseball classic and to the players in the two major leagues will be mailed later.

Did the Giants win four straight games in the world series?

That question has been put to me time and again since the close of the series. It seems there is a slight difference of opinion on that point.

Back in 1907 the Chicago Cubs played the Detroit Tigers. The first game resulted in a tie. Then the Cubs proceeded to take four in a row. At the close of the series there was some discussion as to whether or not the Cubs won in four straight.

The consensus was that the Cubs had beaten the Tigers in four straight games. It was easy to argue the point because after the first game ended in a tie, the Cubs did go out and win four straight.

When the point is raised about a team winning four straight games in a world series, the inference is that one team will capture four straight before the other club wins a game.

A tie is not a victory of course, as a matter of fact, since no decision is reached in such a game, it is really regarded in the light of no contest.

There are those who argue that the Giants did not win four straight. They insist the Giants won the first game, that the second was a tie, breaking the winning streak, and that the Giants then proceeded to win three in a row.

There is really little logic and no sportsmanship to such an argument. A club wins until it loses. The fact that the second game was a tie does not enter into the discussion. The Giants won four games in the series and the Yankees didn't win a single game, hence the Giants must have won four in a row.

PRAYING COLONELS TO ARRIVE TOMORROW

DANVILLE, Ky., Oct. 18.—The praying colonels of Centre college entrained here early today for their trip to the Harvard stadium, where next Saturday the third annual Harvard-Centre football game will be played. Twenty-five players, Coaches Moran and Bond, Dr. C. E. Allen, faculty representative, and Student Manager Berryman made up the party.

Coach Moran's schedule called for arrival of the party at Boston Thursday noon, practice by the squad Thursday afternoon at the stadium or Braves field, and the final workout in the stadium Friday morning.

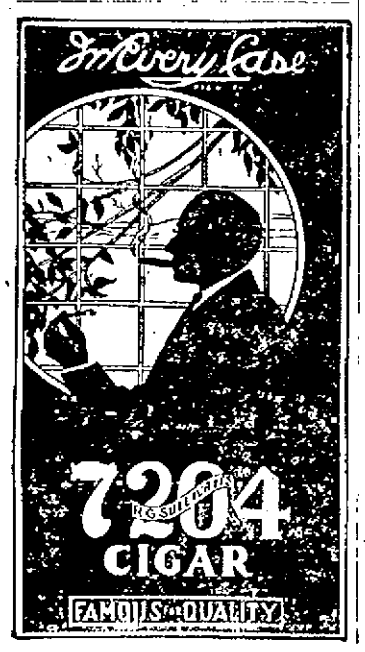

Players selected to make the trip were Roberts (captain), Gregor, Carlington, Lemon, Bartlett, Hudgins, Tanner, Green, Snowday, Johnson, Liggett, Hunter, Thomasson, Kimbel, Rubarth, Wood, Kubale, Lynch, G. Jones, C. Jones, Cecil Coombs, Rowland, Gordy and Shadoan.

MORE SWIMMING RECORDS SET UP

HONOLULU, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—More world's records were smashed here last night, the second of the swimming trials in the Outrigger club tank. Warren Kealoha broke his own world's record for the 100 meter back stroke by swimming it in one minute 12 3-5 seconds. His former record was 1.14.

Gwitha Shand of New Zealand swam the 440-yard free style in six minutes 14 2-5 seconds, thus bettering Sybil Bauer's record of 6.16.

Mariechen Wehselau made a new American record when she swam 50 yards free style in 28 1-5 seconds. The previous record was 29 flat.

Brains Big Factor on Gridiron

By "BO" McMILLIN
All-America Quarterback

What part does brute strength play in modern football?

Is brain and speed more essential than brawn in the open play that now features the grid game?

When a coach looks over his available material what style player has the most appeal?

The good old game of football has changed much in the last 10 years. The successful coach must adapt himself to existing conditions. A coaching system that was successful 10 year back would be an absolute failure today.

Brawn Not Essential

There was a time when football games were won by brute strength and awkwardness, but today we can't find a place on a successful team for the man with "a million-dollar body and a ten-cent head."

My experience has proved conclusively to me that this scientific game of football is still in the embryonic stage, therefore it is imperative that we choose the most active and intelligent men for our eleven.

Each season we are introducing new modes of attack and our field general is constantly changing his defense in order to successfully cope with these strong offensive experiments.

The general conception of a quarterback is one who directs the attack, but today both the defense and offense is directed by the wise field general.

Must Shift Styles

It has been my pleasure to act as field general for Centre college during the past four years. It was necessary to change our style of play for each game.

From my experience at Cambridge in 1920 it was evident that our success in 1921 depended upon the ability of our field general to instantly diagnose each Harvard formation and meet it with the proper defense. As I backed up the line I was in a position to direct my linemen.

Those of you who saw the game will remember that I had my center out of the line on practically every pass that Haelh attempted. Although our 1921 line was lighter than the line which Harvard whipped in 1920 we were able to stop their line thrusts because our center had been shifted up into the line.

I have always tried to direct an offense which would require the least bit of energy because when we shift to the defense we want our backs and ends to have plenty of speed to come in fast on opponents' offense.

Resort to Strategy

In the Tulane, Auburn and Washington & Lee games last year our secondary defense always come in exceptionally fast and never allowed our opponents to gain around the ends or by forward passes.

Our team was criticised by a number of sport writers for getting our plays off so slow, especially was this noticeable in the Harvard game. Centre had a reason for using such methods.

Besides our close formations I would call a series which would indicate the point of attack. We would then try to widen the hole in the defense by calling short series of signals and shifting to and fro to pull the defense over. Just as soon as the hole was assured the snapping signal was called and our backs were through the hole like a streak.

Yes, it takes a smart team to play that kind of football, but, as I said before, 75 per cent of the game of football is played above the shoulders.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Young Tansey, Boston's sensational lightweight, is training every day with the best boxers in Boston and vicinity, as he wants to be in perfect condition when he steps into the ring at the Moody club on Thursday night to meet the hard hitting Joe St. Hilaire of somersworth in the feature event of 10 rounds.

Tansey is out to win over St. Hilaire in impressive fashion and then he will go gunning for a match with Phinney Boyle, lightweight champion of Lowell. Tansey avers he will show the Lowell fans that he is a worthy opponent for Boyle, and a bout with the popular local boy is his immediate objective.

Jackie Williams, who formerly managed Boyle, is handling Tansey, and while he admits Phinney is now boxing better than he has for five years he feels Tansey is the man to take his measure. Williams says Tansey is a great puncher, and while he may not be as skilful as some of the other lightweights in this vicinity, his hitting ability, he says, will more than offset any difference in cleverness.

Young Flaherty is scheduled to meet Spike Hennessy in the semi-final, and this number is expected to develop into a heavy hitting battle. Johnny Hebert and Johnny Nelson are all set for their preliminary go and Larry Robson and George Gosselin are to perform in the other.

Lowell will be well represented at the resumption of boxing in Lawrence on Friday night, when three local battlers will appear on the card. Jimmy Demas of Lowell will meet Young Ketchell of Lawrence in the semi-final, Eddie Purtell of this city will meet Ray Rancourt of Lawrence for the third time in a month, in a preliminary, and Lefty Williams, also of Lowell, will tackle Joe Delmont, Mike Castle of Lawrence and Roddy Dyson of New Bedford are to meet in the main event.

Pancho Villa, flyweight champion, is to meet Danny Edwards at the Boston Arena on next Monday night.

Charley Parker of Boston, who recently won a decision over Louis Hamlin of Nashua, is anxious for a bout with Phinney Boyle. Parker and Boyle have met three times, with the local boy winning twice and Parker once. Parker is training carefully and says he is ready to jump in any time against the local boxer.

The O. M. I. Cadets and the Butler A. A., two of the fastest football teams in this vicinity at their weight, are having at it through the columns of the papers, but the place to settle their claims and counter claims is on the gridiron. No doubt the rival managers will soon get together and agree to lineup against each other. When they do football fans are in for a treat.

Manager Ty Cobb of Detroit is strong for "Flip" Collins, who is to come to the Tigers next year in a trade with Boston. Collins has perhaps more stuff than any right hander in the American league, but has never been very successful. Lack of control, and a manager who could bring out the best that is in him, has had much to do with the failure of Collins to shine.

Nine games was the longest winning streak enjoyed by any American league pitcher last year. Joe Bush of the Yankees and Eddie Rommel of the Athletics shared the honors during the 1921 season no American league pitcher won more than nine straight.

Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati Reds, while attending the World series, laid stress on the fact that Cincinnati had a great chance to stage the event in 1923. Moran, who made a sensational finish with the Reds, taking second place on the last day of the season by winning a double header from Pittsburgh, is confident his club will make things merry for the Giants.

Ed Walsh, in his day one of the greatest pitchers the game ever produced, will not be a member of the American league staff of umpires next year. Walsh was forced out of the game late in the season because of illness and has decided to give up the national pastime. He is acting as a deputy sheriff at Meriden, Conn., his home.

SISLER SAYS YANKEES PLAYED BELOW FORM

George Sisler, selected as the most valuable player in baseball, picked the New York Yankees to beat the Giants.

Like practically every other expert in the country, George was made to look very bad by the Yankees losing four straight.

However, George need not worry over the failure of the Yankees to come through. Just prior to the series 12 players on the Brooklyn team in the National league were asked for an opinion. Nine of the 12 said the Yankees would win easily.

"I predicted that either the New York Yankees or the St. Louis Browns would beat the Giants in short series. Despite the downfall of the Yankees I stand on the statement that the Browns could have turned the trick," says Sisler.

"The Yankees have great strength but seldom make use of it. Slow thinking has kept them from being a remarkable club. The Yankees during the season are, either very good or very bad. In the series they were very bad.

"The overwhelming defeat of the Yankees casts a reflection on the American league that is decidedly undeserved.

"Despite the fact that the Yankees failed to win a game, no contest was decided by a greater margin than three runs. In every game but Scott's shutout and the tie the Yankees were out in front. In two of the games ralliies in the eighth inning by the Giants decided the issue."

BOUTS AT MASS. MILL

The Mass. Athletic association will stage another of its high class amateur boxing tournaments at the mill on Friday night. Five four round bouts, between well matched and ambitious youngsters will be on the program. Joe Noel and Jack Cheswick are busy on the plans for the tourney and they expect to make the coming bouts real action producers.

DELANEY TO BOX GREB

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 18.—Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, has been signed to meet Harry Greb, light heavyweight champion of America, in a 10 round decision fight at Oklahoma City, November 11.

An ostrich lives about 70 years and the average annual yield of a bird in captivity is from two to four pounds of feathers.

On hearing the foundation of the O.M.I. Cadets' challenge, the management of the Butler A. A. wishes to state that the Butlers are ready at any time to meet the Cadets on the gridiron for the championship of the city, which the Butlers now hold.

The management of the Butler A. A. fully understands that the Cadets have somewhat strengthened their lineup since they last met, also that they have been staging stellar football all this season.

In regard to the Butlers' record for the present season we have to date defeated some of the strongest teams hereabouts and expect to continue in the same capacity not excepting the Cadets.

Mgr. Lourcraft of the Butlers would like to meet Mgr. O'Connor of the Cadets at the club office tomorrow at 1 p. m. to arrange for a game Oct. 22.

Ukulele Is Pipp's Hobby

WALTER PIPP

Every ball player has his pet hobby. Walter Pipp of the New York Yankees is strong for the ukulele.

Walter Pipp is a husky six-footer. The ukulele seems a bit out of harmony with his makeup. But to Wally the ukulele is as necessary as his favorite glove or bat.

After the game, or in the evening, Walter serenades the guests on his floor of the hotel where the Yankees are staying. The ukulele is his constant companion off the field.

"Music makes you forget the worries of the ball field," explained Pipp. Which caused Babe Ruth to remark:

"You don't call strumming the 'uke' music, do you?"

Walter Pipp, by the way, was perhaps the most valuable player on the New York Americans the past season. Pipp's timely hitting and fine fielding won many a game for the Yankees.

There is a little story back of the sudden improvement in Pipp's play, which has Ruth as the central figure. As usual the Babe was the goat in the affair.

Pipp, always a mild-mannered, individual, seldom gets into trouble. One day last summer in a game at St. Louis, Pipp did something that displeased Ruth. Some tobasco words passed between the two. Ruth was very rough in his criticism. Pipp resented it.

According to the story, Pipp told Ruth he wouldn't say "them there" words in the seclusion of the clubhouse. Ruth said he would and did. However, before he had finished his speech Pipp had treated him to a boxing lesson that would have done credit to Benny Leonard.

When the affair was stopped Pipp was awarded the decision by a wide margin. Pipp's pugilistic outburst, backed up by a clean-cut victory, added much to his prestige in the Yankee ranks.

Incidentally it seemed to fire Pipp with a spirit that he never before had shown. The result was that he played the best game of his career in 1922.

BUSH GIVES HIS VERSION OF DISPUTE

When a kid did you ever have some one purposely trip you, and then when you started to cry, pat you on the back and tell you how sorry they were and they didn't mean to do it?

Joe Bush played the rôle of the bad boy in the world series. When he kicked against the orders of Manager Huggins to purposely pass Young, he assumed the rôle of Peck's Bad Boy.

To make matters worse he let the world know how he felt about it. When he finally agreed to obey orders he shouted:

"All right." In a sarcastic voice that could be heard all over the Polo grounds. To make matters even worse he threw a fast one in Kelly's groove that broke up the ball game.

"My action was a great injustice to Huggins," is the viewpoint now taken by Bush. "I always have had a temper and it gets the better of me every now and then. I acted like a schoolboy."

After emitting the apology which helps a bit, but doesn't in any way erase the act, Bush says:

"However, I still think Huggins was wrong. Kelly had made three hits off me previously. Young had not been so successful. With first base open I could have worked on Young and tried to make him hit bad balls.

"If I failed I still had a chance with Kelly. With the bases loaded and Kelly up I couldn't waste any balls and felt compelled to try and get them over for Kelly. He singled on the second pitch."

THREE HORSES QUIT

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 18.—Three of the 18 horses that left Burlington today for the third day's run of the 300-mile army endurance test dropped out on the trip here.

The first mount to quit was Fleuret, W. E. Brown's Arab mare, which was ruled out by the judges eight miles from Burlington, after she had developed a bad hock. After another four miles Mr. Brown's gray Arab Omar was also ruled out. Eighteen miles from the start Mr. Brown withdrew his pure bred Arab stallion Sargon, the smallest horse in the test. The din of rifle and machine gun fire and the exploding of bombs was terrific. Some of the principal thoroughfares were riddled with bullets. Many of the inhabitants who were asleep in their beds, had narrow escapes, concludes the despatch.

GIBERSON MURDER TRIAL

Ex-Judge Berry Asks Jury Not to Be Swayed Because Defendant a Woman

TOM'S RIVER, N. J., Oct. 18.—A plea that the jury be not swayed by the fact that the defendant was a woman, was made today by former Judge Berry in summing up for the prosecution in the trial of Mrs. Ivy Giberson, charged with murdering her husband William, at Lakehurst last August.

Mr. Berry asserted the prosecution had showed that Mrs. Giberson was the only other person in the house on the night on which she had asserted two robbers had killed her husband.

Also he continued, Mrs. Giberson had said the two men had robbed her husband of $600, yet she testified she had not gone into his room after the shooting.

"How did she know a robbery had been committed?" Mr. Berry asked.

FINAL OVERHAULING OF SCHOONER BLUENOSE

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 18.—The Canadian schooner Bluenose, here to defend her honors as the champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, went on the marine railway today for a final overhauling preparatory to the first race of the championship series on Saturday.

The Gloucesterman Henry Ford, the challenger, was also the subject of attention this morning. Work was begun on bending a new mainsail, after which Capt. Clayton Morrissey said he might take his schooner for a trial spin. The Ford will probably go on the ways tomorrow for her last inspection.

The hull of the Bluenose was to be painted and scraped today and the schooner was to be officially measured. Light airs and a thick haze combined yesterday to forestall the defender's first trial on Massachusetts bay.

NEW HIGH PEAK IN COAL PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Coal production on Monday reached a new high peak, according to reports to the car service division of the American Railway association, which placed the day's bituminous output at 11,201 cars, estimated to amount to about 2,250,000 tons. This daily total has been exceeded only once in recent years, on Dec. 20, 1920, when the output was 42,000 cars. Anthracite production on Monday dropped back slightly, 5951 carloads being turned over to the railroads as compared with an average of more than 6000 a day in recent week.

CONTEMPT PROCEEDINGS

Hearing of Charges Against Three Former Officials of Hanover Trust Company

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—A hearing on contempt proceedings instituted by Attorney General J. Weston Allen against Henry H. Chielinski, former president of the Hanover Trust Co., William S. McNary, former treasurer, and Charley Pizzi, a director, began in superior court today. The charges followed the attorney general's discharge of a special session of the Suffolk county grand jury on the ground that attempts had been made to tamper with it.

Chmielinski and McNary are charged with having sent letters to the jurors Pizzi is alleged to have interviewed witnesses. Counsel for the defendants admitted transmittal of letters, but denied sending clippings received by the jurors, as well as a letter purporting to be from Walter G. Conway, a New York clothing manufacturer.

Sixteen members of the special grand jury were in court but only one was called to testify.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN GREECE SERIOUS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Economic conditions in Greece are described as serious in a cablegram received today at the department of commerce from Acting Commercial Attache Hall at Athens. The employment situation was said to be alarming, and business dull, with no demands. Because of the demoralized condition of transportation growing out of the movement of refugees from Smyrna, foreign vessels temporarily have been admitted to the Greek coastwise trade.

The consortium of Greek banks has been abolished. At a rate to be fixed by the government, the national bank will collect and retain for government use, all exchange arising from the exportation of tobacco, currants, olive oil and figs, and at the rate of the open market 15 per cent. of other exchange bought by other banks. Speculation has been prohibited. This arrangement, the despatch adds, will greatly facilitate emigrant remittances to Greece.

TWO MURDERERS AND ROBBER, AT LIBERTY 24 HOURS, CAUGHT

Herbert Wilson, Adam Blaszky and Guido Spignola, Who Escaped From Los Angeles, Taken Without a Struggle in Home of Former Convict

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Herbert Wilson, former evangelist, mail bandit and convicted murderer, Adam Blaszyk, convicted murderer, and Guido Spignola, convicted robber, who broke jail here yesterday were recaptured here today after 24 hours' liberty. They were taken without a struggle in the home of a former convict.

The fugitives were taken in a house not far from where they abandoned the automobile which they had stolen.

The capture resulted from the use of plans Wilson had formulated for concealment after the attempted break last April, which was frustrated by sheriffs' deputies and in which Herbert Cox, partner of Wilson, was killed. Wilson was convicted of murder as a result. The three who escaped yesterday were captured in the place where they had planned to hide last April.

The same sangfroid the former evangelist had exhibited since he became known to the authorities was present in Wilson's greeting to the captors. There was no confusion and Wilson and his fellow fugitives peaceably surrendered when they saw the large number around the house.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Stock prices moved upward in rapid fashion at the opening of the market today in response to a broad demand for railroad, equipment and copper shares, and a remarkable bullish demonstration in National Biscuit which sodred 17 points to 245, a new high record. Mexican Petroleum, which was the individual feature yesterday, opened at 227½, up 1½, and then reacted to 222. Pan-American A also opened higher and then slipped back, while Standard Oil of New Jersey moved up 3 points. Lehigh Valley and Atlantic Coast line led the rail group, each at gains of one point while coppers, under leadership of American Smelting, moved up 2, and Utah Copper up 1. American Car, up 3, was the outstanding equipment but gains of 1 to 2½ points also were registered by Baldwin and American Locomotives, Pullman and General Electric. New highs for the year were established by United Fruit, Manhattan Shirt and Atlas Powder, the gains ranging from 1 to nearly 4 points. Studebaker was one of the few exceptions to the upward trend.

Weakness of U. S. Steel and other shares of that group encouraged selling for both accounts in later dealings. Most of the active issues receded 1 to 4 points below yesterday's final figures. The closing was heavy.

ELECTRICAL WIZARDS MEET

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The two electrical wizards, Thomas A. Edison and Charles P. Steinmetz, met today in Dr. Steinmetz's laboratory, at the plant of the General Electric Co., here.

Dr. Steinmetz produced artificial lightning for his visitors' benefit. Another demonstration which elicited expressions of wonder and admiration from Mr. Edison, was a device for the reproduction of the tones of the human voice on a film by means of valuation of pin points of light. The invention is claimed by its originator to be a step in solving the problem of the "speaking movies."

Lowell Ad Club Meeting

tising clubs' convention committee for the Rhode Island gathering of "Ad men," Nov. 16, 17 and 18, came to Lowell with Harris W. Pearson of the Providence Town Criers and a former Lowell boy. Both got a fine reception.

A speaker not down on the program and who received a splendid greeting, was Maurice E. McCormick, new manager of the Lowell division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, who gave the Ad men a brief survey of local street railroad conditions and promised to do what he could to remedy some things complained of in the past. He promised to speak a little more on this subject at some future meeting.

High School Principal

Another speaker on the afternoon program, Principal Henry Harris of the Lowell high school, was warmly greeted when he appeared to thank the Ad men for their lively campaign now under way to promote and aid, financially, all athletic activities at the high school.

Mr. Harris described the needs of the athletic teams and players engaged in baseball, football and track activities, and said he believed concerted effort on the part of the Ad men would greatly aid the future programs mapped out for the athletes of Lowell's higher grade schools.

Brother Cooney asked for a rising vote of the members anxious to support high school athletics, and it was unanimous. Various speakers boosted the Lowell-Woburn football match to be held Nov. 4, and it was announced that Ad men would sell tickets as well as members of the Rotary club, K. of C. and members of the chamber of commerce. It is expected to raise between $5000 and $6000 for the High School Athletic association.

Supt. Harris described conditions at Spalding park and declared that it is not suitable until it has proper seating capacities, athletic quarters, etc. He praised the Ad men for their interest in the school athletics, and said their support would greatly aid in profitable sport for the athletes, who have not been supported very well in a financial way by Lowell citizens in the past. Shower baths are needed as well as proper field arrangements, the superintendent said. Mr. Harris reviewed the history of local track games.

Announcement was made of the Ad club's Halloween party coming two weeks from today in Girls' club hall. The Scheming circle will meet a week from Monday night.

Mr. Bliss came to Lowell, he said, to strongly urge members of the Lowell Ad club to attend the convention in Providence next month.

The convention plans were outlined and then Mr. Pearson added a word or two, praising the Ad men's cooperation and speaking a good word for the Providence gathering.

New Hotel Question

Referring to Lowell's agitation for a new hotel, Mr. Pearson said:

"You can build a new hotel here. It can be done very easily. Providence had no better hotels than you have, but we raised thousands of dollars and got what we wanted. I am glad to say that when the campaign lagged at one time, the Town Criers started out with the 'Zero club' and got the rest of the money. And you can do the same thing right here in Lowell. We had 40 canvassers on the job in Providence and were worse off in some respects than Lowell."

Street Railway Manager McCormick declared that he was not ready to discuss plans for the improvement of local street railway conditions at present, although during his brief residence here he had found many things of interest that would help to solve some of the problems. He said he could promise that the local division would give the people of Lowell and vicinity all the service that it deserved.

After the meeting it was announced that the Ad club committee to sell the "dollar tickets" for the Nov. 4 football game would consist of George H. Wood, chairman; Edward J. Cooney, Edward W. Gallagher and Edward McGilley, treasurer, and three local newspapermen.

boys from Legion posts from every state in the Union, from Alaska, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Great Britain, Africa and China.

Today's business session was slow in getting under way.

The announcement by Alvin M. Owsley of Texas, that he would accept the nomination for the national commandership, if it were offered him, appeared to be crystallizing the sentiment of the south.

Mr. Owsley, a former attorney general of Texas and chairman for two years of the Americanization committee of the Legion, brought in a report this week, as spokesman of the commission in which it was declared that a deliberate effort was being made to inject a pro-German account of the world war into the school text books in many parts of America.

The report also contained a declaration in favor of total exclusion of immigrations for the United States and asserting again the stand of the Legion in opposition to the recognition by the government of Soviet Russia.

"Tomorrow comes the fireworks," were the closing words of Hanford MacNider, national commander at yesterday's convention session.

Greetings from the British Legion, signed by the Prince of Wales and Gen. Haig, commander-in-chief of the British army, were brought to today's session by Major J. B. Brunnell—Colonel, member of the British parliament, who told of the progress of the British organization in establishing a spirit of democracy among British veterans. The major lost both legs in service. Speaking from a chair, he advocated co-operation between American and British legions.

An enlisted man, he said, heads the British legion and his support includes both the Prince of Wales and General Haig, working on a common footing.

Unanimous for Bonus

Demand for a roll call in the American legion convention today so that "the world may know where we stand on the bonus question," was followed by a viva voce affirmation of a resolutions committee which declared the legion will "continue to fight for the legislation until it is enacted into law."

A division called for by Commander MacNider resulted in announcement that the vote was unanimous. One delegate who voted "no" by mistake cried out his apology when hundreds of delegates yelled "Who is he?"

Based on Justice, Says Landis

Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, former federal district judge in Chicago, and avowed friend of service men, today told the convention that their stand on adjusted compensation was based on justice.

The former judge told of his efforts to get an ex-service man a job and how he was refused on the ground that veterans "are flighty." He corrected that opinion, he said, and added: "But if I had gone through what that man did I would have been shot every day for flightiness, unless I had been the army's commander-in-chief.

"If the American people knew what we have not done for those who served," he continued, "I tell you there would be little sleep for the civilian population in this land. We have been derelect in duty. We must set out to fix it so that no civilian money can buy him better hospital service than the government can."

Adventures of the Twins

TWINS RESCUED! GREEN WIZARD'S MAGIC MAKES 'EM INVISIBLE

THEY CLIMBED ON COMET-LEGS' STAR AND SOARED AWAY

Light Fingers and Comet-Legs were after Nancy and Nick, and Nancy and Nick, you must know, were likely to be caught. They were in the Fairy Queen's automobile and were stuck in a muddy ditch beside the road.

But the Green Wizard saw the danger and just as the two bad fairies reached the car he threw an enchanted sheet over the Twins, automobile and all, and they became invisible at once.

"For goodness sake!" cried Light Fingers, "I must be going blind. Tell me, Comet-Legs, did I or did I not see the magic automobile with the Twins in it?"

"You did!" declared Comet-Legs, "for I saw it myself. But I don't see it now. Something must have happened. Now, what do you suppose it was?"

The two bad fairies wondered and wondered, but that's all the good it did them.

By and by they wandered off, then they climbed on Comet-Legs' star again and sailed away to tell Twelve Toes the bad news.

"Not yet," answered the Green Wizard took off the enchanted sheet and there were Nancy and Nick in plain view again.

"Oh, thank you," said Nancy. "Now we can take the automobile back to the Fairy Queen."

"Not yet," answered the Green Wizard. "You are stuck in magic mud and I don't know any charm that will get you out. I'll have to go to the Chimney Sweep and get some ashes and soot to sprinkle 'round. You stay here until I come back."

So off he strode over the tree-tops to the place the Sweep lived.

Knock, knock, knock, went the Green Wizard on the big chimney, and the Sweep stuck out his head.

"Howdy," said he, "what can I do for you?"

PROBE DEATH OF KING OF HEALERS---NURSE HELD

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—A woman said to have been in attendance at the death of Francis Schlatter, who became nationally known a quarter of a century ago through his claim of power to heal, was sought today by the police, and a coroner's inquest was ordered to determine whether a mystery was involved or a hemorrhage induced by pnuemonia was responsible for death. Schlatter died in a roominghouse here Monday night. The woman told a physician she was the aged healer's nurse and that she was leaving to visit a spiritualist in St. Louis county.

Mrs. Agnes Schlatter, a lecturer for a church publication, came here from Kansas City, Mo., last night and declared she believed her husband had met with foul play.

A death certificate was withheld until the coroner's jury could determine cause of death.

Schlatter is said to have attracted wide attention by "cures" at Denver, Col., in 1895, and became known as a "miracle man" and "king of healers." Once he was given national publicity as the man who cured Mrs. McKinley, mother of President McKinley.

WINS SMYRNA BRIDE

Burning of Asia Minor Port Sends "Picture Bride" to Lawrence Man

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Y. Chatelian, an Armenian of Lawrence, Mass., thought the burning of Smyrna was a terrible tragedy when he read about it in the papers. But he changed his mind somewhat after his arrival in New York yesterday.

Miss Victoria Melkonian, a "picture bride," caused Chatelian's change of mind. She told him that if her home in the Asia Minor port had not been destroyed in the conflagration, she probably would have decided against taking a chance on his destrability as a husband.

Miss Melkonian arrived on the Olympic last week and was sent to Ellis Island, where she caused a stir by proclaiming she was a "bride by destiny as much as by choice." She brought with her a vivid story of the burning of her home and the disappearance of her parents. She has dark eyes and a Grecian profile and Chatelian now thinks it would have been terrible if something had not happened to influence Miss Melkonian to come to this country.

THE NEW BOARD ABSENT

Commissioner Maguire Holds Fort at Registration Sessions—All Day Session

Mayor Brown's temporary elections commission failed to respond to registration sessions yesterday afternoon and evening held at city hall and Joseph H. Maguire, of the ousted board held the fort all day and night.

It wasn't expected that the temporary commission would be on hand during the afternoon session as a pressing engagement in Boston was detaining the members of both boards. However, the ousted board was on hand last night to assist Commissioner Maguire in his work. Members of the temporary board were not present, according to Mr. Maguire.

Mr. Maguire is at city hall again today taking charge of the all-day registration session there. This is the last day for registering before the state election. The office will be open from noon today until 10 o'clock tonight. It will be possible to register at any hour during this period.

Many telephonic queries have been coming into the elections commission office asking if the present difficulty would prevent people from registering. Commissioner Maguire said that all who desired to register would be taken care of just as if no controversy was going on. A total of 277 people registered yesterday.

VERDICTS FOR THE DEFENDANTS

Verdicts for the defendant were returned this morning at the civil session of the superior court in the double action of tort brought against John J. Long by John F. Gallagher and Charles Hanchett. In this case the plaintiffs were seeking to recover for work done in a building owned by the defendant. Mr. Gallagher's claim, which was for electrical work, was $300, while Mr. Hanchett was endeavoring to recover $500 for plumbing. James E. Markham and William A. Hogan appeared for the defendant.

The next case to go to trial was an action of tort, the ad damnum of which is $1000, which was brought by Mrs. Lalla M. Pearson of this city against the Boston & Maine railroad. Mrs. Pearson is endeavoring to recover damages for alleged personal injuries, which she claims she sustained when she fell on a slippery floor at the North station in Boston on Oct. 17, 1919, the condition of the floor being due to the overflowing of a drinking fountain.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT

Judge Enright Makes New Ruling Relative to Continued Cases

Before taking up the small docket in the district court this morning, Judge Enright addressed the members of the bar who were present, telling them that hereafter, under no circumstances, would he grant continuances of cases more than a third time. The new ruling, he explained, comes as the result of a liquor case heard yesterday after having been continued at least ten times.

Although the docket was very small, much time was consumed in hearing the evidence connected with the assault and battery charge and drunkenness against William Mercier and Frank J. Dolan. Testimony was shown, that on the night of Sept. 25, the defendants were raising ructions in Race street in the vicinity of the Lawrence Manufacturing company. About 10 o'clock in the evening, the attention of Special Officer Lawrence was called to the scene of the revelling and when he attempted to place them under arrest, they forcibly resisted, it as alleged.

Another officer of the concern, Officer Buxton was called to aid Officer Lawrence, and upon his arrival, Mercier and Dooley assaulted him. So great did the struggles of the pair become that it was necessary to use physical force in quieting them and as a result both men landed in the hospital for treatment. After weighing the evidence, Judge Enright found both guilty of drunkenness and fined them $10 each for that offence. They were also found guilty of assault on an officer and sentenced to the house of correction for a period of three months. They appealed.

Georgia Recoutes was before the court for assault and battery on Henry Dagenais. She agreed to make a settlement out of court. Elizabeth Donnelly got out of the house of correction last Monday and was arrested last night for drunkenness. She appeared in the district court this morning and on her promise to get out of Lowell, and stay out, before next Monday, she was released. Frank N. Leclerc and Alphee Ostiguy pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawful keeping and paid fines of $100. Stanley Bindos, for being drunk and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to five months in the house of correction, from which he appealed. Manuel P. Reis, for operating an automobile in a manner to endanger the lives of the public, had his case continued until Oct. 24. A continuance of ten days was granted Frank A. Collins. He is charged with drunkenness.

TYPEWRITER ON PAYROLL

$80 a Month Paid to Machine in Chicago Contagious Hospital

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—A typewriter has been carried on the payroll as a stenographer at the municipal contagious disease hospital, according to information given out today by investigators engaged to check the institution's records.

The disclosure that $80 a month was paid to the typewriting machine was made when search began for "Elsie Smith" to whom checks were drawn. Her address proved to be an automobile salesroom. The checks had been endorsed by a former steward at the hospital.

CONFERENCE TODAY AT GRACE CHURCH

With more than one hundred delegates present, an all-day meeting of the Middlesex conference of Universalist churches was held today in Grace Universalist church, with speaking morning and afternoon, an organ recital and a dinner at noon. Rev. Edward Downey, pastor of the church presided at both sessions. Among the visitors this morning was Rev. Dr. Caleb E. Fisher. Miss Margaret Martin was the organist for the day in place of Organist Kimball.

The morning subject was "God Will Take Care of You," the speaker being Rev. Harold H. Niles of Concord, N. H. This afternoon Rev. Miss A. Gertrude Earle of Methuen spoke on "As a Man Thinketh." Rev. William L. Niles of the Unitarian church, Billerica, chairman of the conference temperance committee, spoke on "Shall We Allow the Solons to Change the Prohibition Laws in Massachusetts?"

Delegates were present from many cities and towns from Haverhill to Concord, N. H.

Officers are to be elected and plans made for the next conference and the work of 1923.

The hospitality committee today included Mrs. Merchant, Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. Alanson Gray, Mrs. William Sherwill. Mrs. George Randall and a committee of 15 handled the harvest dinner at 12.30. Those in charge of the kitchen included Mrs. Addit Stott and Mrs. D. R. Frye.

Frederick Miller, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Miller of Spruce street, Haverhill, was last night killed in that city when struck by an auto operated by Willard J. O'Neil, aged 24, who has a residence at 378 East Merrimack street, this city, and who is a seaman stationed on the U.S.S Lark, now in the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard. O'Neil was arrested after the accident. According to the Haverhill police, he had no registration nor license for the car which he was operating. The machine is said to be owned by John Conway of 378 East Merrimack street.

court granted the mandamus petition of the election commission and ordered you to recognize them as the legally empowered board, that you would again remove them?" asked Mr. Howard.

"I have never made any such statement," replied the mayor.

Testimony given by Joseph A. Clountre included a statement that the temporary board had examined 340 signatures upon affidavits with signatures on the petition and also with original signatures on file in the office of the election commission.

In rebuttal to this testimony Mr. Allard said he watched the temporary board in action for more than ten minutes and at that time they were only checking signatures on the affidavits with signatures on the petition. He also said the temporary board worked only eight hours in all and that it would take three days at least to properly check back the signatures on the affidavits with the original ones.

The last witness called with City Messenger Monahan. He admitted to Mr. Howard that he had stood in the council chamber on the night of the first hearing with the second removal notices in his hand and that this was before the first reinstatement had occurred. He later testified, however, that he had informed the mayor of the council's unanimous reinstatement of the commission, that the mayor had gone into his private office and had returned immediately with the second notices of removal.

Asked by Mr. Howard how long the mayor was in his private office, the city messenger said: "Not more than a minute."

Adjourned for the noon recess at 1 o'clock.

YESTERDAY'S COURT SESSION

The Lowell cases were reached after 3.30 o'clock yesterday. Inasmuch as the petition of the original election commission was the first of the two filed, Judge DeCourcy ruled it should be given the right of way and Albert S. Howard, counsel for the commission, began his pleading.

Mr. Howard asked that certain signers of the Plan B petition be allowed to enter as intervenors, but the court denied the request, although granting permission to file a brief.

On the question of allowing the original board to enter as interveners in the mayor's petition, however, the court ruled they were directly involved and accepted a brief filed for them by counsel. City Solicitor Tierney thought otherwise, but the court sustained Mr. Howard's contention.

Attorney Howard brought out the fact that neither the secretary of the commonwealth nor City Clerk Stephen Flynn had any material interest in the mayor's petition and informed the court that their counsel would not present argument, but will leave it with the plaintiffs to prove their case. This contention was substantiated by the representative of the attorney general's office and Fisher Pearson, representing Clerk Flynn.

During the forenoon opposing counsel in conference had arrived on a common ground in regard to many of the allegations set forth in the original election commission's petition and therefore, several of them were admitted as facts as read by Mr. Howard.

The fifth allegation, however, to the effect that the original commission had forwarded a certification of sufficiency to the secretary of the commonwealth after its work of checking the charter petition had been completed, was denied by Mr. Tierney on grounds that the commission had no duty to so certify under the law. He maintained this was a duty solely of the city clerk. Justice DeCourcy ruled the question as a whole of little material consequence.

In several instances allegations were admitted in principle by the city solicitor, but were amplified by counter allegations, bringing in the mayor's campaign of investigation, including the securing of sworn affidavits and unsworn denials of having signed the petition as included in the post cards received by His Honor.

The 12th allegation, that the mayor had acted in bad faith in removing the commission for the second, third and fourth times, charging him with improper motive and an attempt to keep the charter question off the ballot by the appointment of a temporary board who certified to an insufficiency of names, was denied by the solicitor, as was the 14th, which charged the temporary commission with interference with the duties and work of the original board.

Attorney Howard had hardly begun his pleadings in the second case, which names the secretary of the commonwealth and the city clerk as respondents, when the court adjourned.

Of the 855 officers of the regular United States army retired for disability since the World war, only 54 suffered wounds in battle.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Boy Taken Off Tender of New York Limited at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—Covered with grime and his face reddened from the wind, 14-year-old Joe Jackson of Brooklyn, N. Y., was being held by police today after being taken from the tender of the New York Central Twentieth Century Limited early today following a fast ride on the engine tender from Albany, N. Y. Attempts were being made to get in touch with his parents.

It seems that this is the second attack of "travelin' blues" Joe has had recently, and it cost his parents $55 railroad fare to get him back from his previous venture. He said the object of his present tour was a job in Chicago, to enable him to repay the $55.

"But now it's all off again," he said. "I suppose I'll catch everything when I get home. I did the last time."

According to Joe, his father is a consulting engineer and former naval captain.

Molly Varnum Chapter Hears Congressman Rogers On Near East Situation

The situation in the Near East and its relation to the policies of the United States and other nations of the globe were described in an interesting manner yesterday by Hon. John Jacob Rogers, who spoke before the members and guests of Molly Varnum chapter, D.A.R., at the Spalding house. The congressman outlined Near East conditions and revealed many interesting details not generally known to the public.

Mr. Rogers referred at length to the great question of Islamism, which he declared this country cannot ignore. With the Turks now given practically everything that they had before the war, Mr. Rogers said the causes that actuated the big nations in granting their former war enemy so many things at this time, must be better understood. England has to recognize that more than 100,000,000 Islams are now under British authority. They are to be reckoned with. Lord Northcliffe once declared that not a nation on the face of the earth was safe from the future surge of Islamism. The doctrines of this church are spreading constantly.

Mr. Rogers declared further that the United States can play its most useful part in the problems of reconstruction and the questions in dispute, "not by throwing armies into the field, but by asking nations to regard it as a common friend and mediator, and have them come to us and talk things over." But these things cannot be done in a day, the congressman added.

After the meeting there was a social hour, with refreshments served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. C. E. Howe, chairman.

COKE AND COAL BURNED

Spectacular Night Fire Caused Damage Estimated at Several Thousand Dollars

Fire gutted the sheds of the Preston Coal & Coke company in Wilden street, off Moore, last night, causing damage estimated at several thousand dollars. The flames, fanned by a high wind, soared into the air, endangering property over a wide area. The fire, which was highly spectacular, attracted many people to the scene.

The alarm came in from box 46 about 10.30 o'clock and when the firefighters arrived the sheds were burning rapidly. It was thought useless to attempt to save the buildings and the department directed most of its efforts in preventing the spread of the blaze.

Police officers and railroad employes working near the Bleachery saw the flames and ran to the barns from which four horses were taken from the stalls unharmed. A number of wagons were stored in the sheds, and while a few were removed, many were burned.

The fire apparently started in a shed used to store paper bags. According to one member of the firm, about $6000 worth of paper bags were stored in the shed.

It is claimed that there was no hard coal in the sheds but that a number of tons of coke and some bituminous were stored there. The amount of coke is estimated at 300 tons.

The sheds were owned by Frederick B. and John H. Preston, with the latter acting as general manager. The men have been in business here about 12 years. It is said the loss is covered by insurance.

SENSATIONAL TESTIMONY AT MANDAMUS HEARINGS

Election Commissioner Testifies That Mayor Brown Asked Him to "Do a Job" on Plan B Petition

Hugh C. McOsker Gives Startling Testimony in Lowell Mandamus Hearings in Supreme Court—Commissioner's Testimony Denied By Mayor—Evidence is All In—Arguments Scheduled For This Afternoon

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—All evidence in the two mandamus cases that have grown out of Lowell's Plan B charter controversy was completed before Judge Charles A. DeCourcy, of the supreme court at the time of noon recess today and arguments of counsel were scheduled for 2 p. m. It is believed the court will reserve decision in each case.

This morning's session was replete with sensational testimony of Hugh C. McOsker, Thomas H. Braden and J. Omer Allard of the original election commission, Mayor Brown, Joseph A. Cloutre, City Clerk Flynn and City Messenger Monahan also took the witness stand.

Mr. McOsker, first witness called by Attorney Howard, created a sensation when he testified that the mayor called him into his office at city hall nine days before the petition was signed and asked him to "do a job on it," and added "Braden will be with you." This was on September 16 at 3.15 p. m. and Mr. McOsker testified that he and the mayor were alone at the time and that he went there on the mayor's solicitation. "The mayor said to me I want you to do everything in your power to prevent those names from being certified' said Mr. McOsker. "Mr. Braden will be with you and I think we can get the other two. I will promise Allard a reappointment. The public will believe you in preference to the other two.' Mr. McOsker also testified that the mayor called to his attention the fact that he appointed him to the commission when some one else might have been given the job.

Cross-examined by City Solicitor Tierney the witness said that no alleged forgery had been called to his attention until after certification had been completed.

"What did you do to correct any errors that might have arisen through forgery?" asked Mr. Tierney.

"We couldn't do anything," replied Mr. McOsker, "the petition had passed out of our hands."

Mr. Tierney asked him if he had not been shown affidavits in the mayor's office and while Mr. McOsker admitted that he had seen them there he said that they had not been given to him to read and didn't know their exact nature.

Mr. McOsker told of the meeting of the election commission when Mr. Cloutre had been temporarily appointed in the place of J. Omer Allard and the refusal of Messrs. Braden and Maguire to meet. He was asked by Mr. Tierney if Braden said: "I refuse to serve with that," pointing towards Mr. Cloutre. "He, did," replied Mr. McOsker. Mr. McOsker explained the method followed in checking the signatures on the Plan B petition and said that the board acted at all times in accordance with instructions received from the secretary of the commonwealth.

Mr. Tierney at this time stated that the petition was filed with the election commission on Sept. 25 and with the city clerk on the 26th. He claimed this was most material and said that he would attempt to prove that this was the only time the petition was duly filed with the city clerk, although at that time only a few names had been checked.

Examined again by Attorney Howard, Mr. McOsker said that if the board had checked all the names with the original signatures on file, it would have required three months. He testified also that there was another petition filed with the board but was not used because a sufficient number of signatures was secured from the original petition.

Thomas H. Braden was then called to the witness stand and he repeated his testimony given before the city council relative to the mayor's visit to his office at the Middlesex street depot on the day the petition was filed. On cross-examination Mr. Tierney asked "Are you and the mayor friends?" and Mr. Braden replied, "Yes, sir, we always have been and I still am friendly with him."

J. Omer Allard testified in reply to questions by Attorney Howard that he called the office of the secretary of the commonwealth by telephone on Sept. 25 and was told by Mr. Boynton that the petition should be filed with the city clerk and that the five-day clause applied to the commission as well as to the city clerk. "Mr. Boynton told me," said Mr. Allard, "that the proper method of procedure was to certify the names on the petition from the check list and said that to compare each name with the original signature on file would have been a physical impossibility within the time limit."

City Clerk Flynn testified as to the time of filing the petition with him

JUSTICE DECOURCEY

by Frederick H. Desmond and his subsequent certification to the city council.

Mayor Brown Testifies

Mayor Brown was the first witness called by Mr. Tierney on the petition which names the secretary of the commonwealth and the city clerk as respondents. The mayor admitted meeting Mr. McOsker in his office on the afternoon of Sept. 16, but denied Mr. McOsker's testimony for the most part. He said he told the chairman of the commission he believed a petition would be filed within a few days with 70 per cent of the signatures fraudulent.

"Mr. McOsker told me," said the mayor, "that both he and Mr. Braden were friendly disposed towards me and they assured me of every co-operation."

The mayor also told of the conversation with Mr. Braden in the latter's office, but said that all that took place consumed only a very few minutes and was restricted to conversation regarding how many names had been checked on that day.

"Just before we got through talking," said the mayor, "Mr. Braden told me that he was watching Mr. Maguire and that Mr. McOsker was watching Mr. Allard."

The mayor testified as to his investigation as to the alleged fraud and that 643 postal cards and many affidavits were offered as evidence.

He stated no personal motives were involved in his removal of the commissioners; nor did he have any interest in the Plan B petition other than his official duty.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howard, he was asked this question:

"You might not be elected mayor again if Plan B should go on the ballot and be accepted, is that not so?"

"That is possible, but not probable," replied the mayor.

"You appointed Mr. Tierney city solicitor and he has served as your personal counsel for some time?" asked Mr. Howard. The mayor replied in the negative.

Speaking of the hearing conducted by the city council after the first removal, Mr. Howard asked if it was not so that the city messenger had the second removal notices in his hand before the first reinstatement was voted by the council. The mayor replied that was not so.

Judge DeCourcy questioned the mayor at length regarding several of his statements. The mayor in reply said he removed the commission for the first time after it had refused to meet with Mr. Cloutre as a temporary member.

Mr. Howard jumped up and said: "You did not make that a basis of your removal when you filed your reasons, did you?"

"Well, I didn't specify it," replied the mayor.

"Your reasons for removal did not include that one at all?" asked Mr. Howard.

"No, they did not," said Mr. Brown.

"Have you ever said to any one within the past few days that if this

Police Convention Opens in Auditorium With Delegates Present From 70 Cities and Towns

Early Arrivals Express Approval of Building in Which Their 23rd Annual Convention is Held—Buffet Luncheon Served in Liberty Hall—Governor Cox to Be Guest of Honor at Big Banquet Tonight

Delegates from 37 cities and 33 towns in this state participated in the 23d annual convention of the Massachusetts Police association, which opened in the Memorial Auditorium this afternoon and which will be in session until late tomorrow. With officials pouring into the city all during the morning, together with the advance delegation which put in an appearance last night, it is estimated that nearly 250 delegates are assembled. This convention is the first to be held in the new Auditorium and if the arrangements made are carried through on schedule it is certain that this maiden convention will be a grand success from every angle.

From 9 o'clock this morning until the convention opened shortly before 1 o'clock there was a steady stream of visitors being shown through the building. One and all were unanimous in saying that the building is one of the finest in the country. Expressions of "wonderful! great! splendid! and magnificent!" were heard from all sides as the delegates were shown from place to place. There was an outstanding spirit of co-operation shown by all assembled. Early in the morning members of the local entertainment committee went the rounds with the first arrivals. As more delegates arrived those who had been

Delegates From Various Cities Discuss Strike Conditions in New England—Meeting Held Under Auspices N. E. Strategy Board of United Textile Workers

Thirty delegates, representing textile strikers of various New Hampshire cities and Lowell, gathered in this city this morning to discuss textile strike conditions in various parts of New England. The meeting was held under the auspices of the New England strategy board of the United Textile Workers and present were representatives from Manchester, Dover, Nashua, Suncook and Somersworth, N. H., and Lowell.

The meeting, which was called at 10 o'clock, was presided over by John Hanley, chairman of the local strike committee. Reports from various cities were submitted and a lengthy report of strike conditions in Manchester, N. H., was given. The delegates from the Queen city reported that the conference between a strike committee, a citizens' committee and officials of the Amoskeag Mfg. Co., which was scheduled to be held yesterday, did not materialize and that the end of the strike is as far away as it ever was. It was stated that the strike and citizens' committees met at city hall and then went to the office of the Amoskeag Co., to meet Treasurer Dumaine, but word was sent them that unless they agreed to admit a committee of three strike breakers at the conference, the treasurer would have nothing to do with the committee. Word was sent right back to Treasurer Dumaine that the strikers would have nothing whatever to do with strike breakers, and the matter was brought to a sudden end without the conference materializing.

After discussing the strike conditions in various cities, the meeting voted its moral and financial support to the strikers, and adjournment was taken, a great number of the delegates going to Manchester to attend a mass meeting this afternoon. The Lowell delegates at the meeting were John Hanley, Joseph E. Demery, Frank Stimpson, Mrs. Annie Reagan and Organizer Thomas J. Reagan of the United Textile Workers of America.

TWO MURDERERS AND ROBBER, AT LIBERTY 24 HOURS, CAUGHT

Herbert Wilson, Adam Blaszky and Guido Spignola, Who Escaped From Los Angeles, Taken Without a Struggle in Home of Former Convict

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Herbert Wilson, former evangelist, mail bandit and convicted murderer, Adam Blaszyk, convicted murderer, and Guido Spignola, convicted robber, who broke jail here yesterday were recaptured here today after 24 hours' liberty. They were taken without a struggle in the home of a former convict.

The fugitives were taken in a house not far from where they abandoned the automobile which they had stolen.

The capture resulted from the use of plans Wilson had formulated for concealment after the attempted break last April, which was frustrated by sheriffs' deputies and in which Herbert Cox, partner of Wilson, was killed. Wilson was convicted of murder as a result. The three who escaped yesterday were captured in the place where they had planned to hide last April.

The same sangfroid the former evangelist had exhibited since he became known to the authorities was present in Wilson's greeting to the captors. There was no confusion and Wilson and his fellow fugitives peaceably surrendered when they saw the large number around the house.

WAR VETERANS PARADE TODAY

30,000 Participate in Legion Convention Feature at New Orleans

"Fireworks" Predicted By National Commander Hanford MacNider

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press) The American Legion, following a brisk business session, paraded today. More than 30,000 men "fell in" for the parade and the brisk autumn air added zest to the event.

Fluttering bravely in the autumn air, borne by the men who carried them to victory four years ago, went the national colors, flanked by the silken keys from Legion posts from every state in the Union, from Alaska, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Great Britain, Africa and China.

Today's business session was slow in getting under way.

The announcement by Alvin M. Owsley of Texas, that he would accept the nomination for the national commandership, if it were offered him, appeared to be crystallizing the sentiment of the south.

Mr. Owsley, a former attorney general of Texas and chairman for two years of the Americanization committee of the Legion, brought in a report this week, as spokesman of the commission in which it was declared that a deliberate effort was being made to inject a pro-German account of the world war into the school text books in many parts of America.

The report also contained a declaration in favor of total exclusion of immigrations for the United States and asserting again the stand of the Legion in opposition to the recognition by the government of Soviet Russia.

"Tomorrow comes the fireworks," were the closing words of Hanford MacNider, national commander at yesterday's convention session.

Declares Harding's Policies Have Reduced Country to State of Appalling Disaster

Restriction of Farm Credits Forced Rapid Sale of Farm Products and Livestock

Depression Followed—Farmers Never Before in Such an Unfortunate Situation

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 18.—William G. McAdoo in a speech last night said deduction of farm credits "by the present administration in co-operation with the powerful influences of Wall street" and the "blighting effects of President Harding's policies of deflation and normalcy" have reduced the country "from a condition of unexampled prosperity to a state of appalling disaster."

Mr. McAdoo asserted that the restriction of farm credits under the republican administration had forced the rapid sale of farm products and livestock to such an extent that the value of those products for the entire country had been reduced from $14,000,000,000 in 1919 to $5,700,000,000 in 1921.

The former cabinet officer said business depression had followed the reduction in consequence of which the farmers and stockmen were "never before in such an unfortunate situation as they are today."

"Linked with this to the disadvantage of the farmer and stockman," Mr. McAdoo went on, "was the inauguration of the republican foreign policy, which has reduced export trade more than 40 per cent during the first year of the republican administration."

URGES BUSINESS MEN TO USE DAILY PAPERS

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—"If your business depends upon local distribution back up your long range campaign with close range methods. Utilize your daily newspapers. Place and use enough space in all your efforts to be specific and definite in describing your products. Simply because we and our associates may know all about our goods is no sign that the public knows us."

This was the theme of the address of Charles W. Myers, advertising manager of Morris & Co., packers, of Chicago, before the meeting of the Pilgrim Publicity association at the Hotel Bellevue yesterday afternoon.

"Advertising," he said, "takes root the very instant that a label is placed on an article. Each time the name is repeated, the function of advertising is apparent. The limits of its salability are determined by the policy of advertising.

"With all our knowledge of advertising and selling, some manufacturers and retailers through their advertising departments persist in sailing uncharted seas. They proclaim to themselves that their products are so different that the safe, sound and tried methods will not do. Frequently and most unfortunately, too, there is too wide an abyss between the head of the concern and the head of the advertising department."

E. Frederick Cullen also spoke. There were about 175 at the meeting and the luncheon that preceded it.

FAIR AND ENTERTAINMENT

The B. F. Butler Relief Corps will hold a fair, luncheon and entertainment in Memorial hall this evening from 6 o'clock until 10. Mrs. Machado is chairman of the entertainment committee and has arranged a lengthy program of vocal and instrumental pieces.

THIRD LEG OF TEST

18 Horses Still in the Running in 300 Mile Endurance Grind

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 18.—The field of horses competing in the annual 300 mile endurance test to determine the type most suitable for army mounts was further reduced at the start of today's 60 mile run. Cascade, a Morgan gelding, was withdrawn because of stiffness and fatigue, leaving 18 horses still in the running. John Gowette, riding Major S., came down, also wearied by the first two days and Captain Tate of Fort Ethan Allen replaced him as rider.

Thirteen of the 18 horses got away on the third installment of the test promptly at 6.30 this morning, the earliest possible starting time. The others idled out some minutes later.

In the cavalcade that swept down the autumnal roads the Morgans Fairlady and Gladstone, the crossbred Arab Eastern Bey, Toute Belle, an Anglo-Arab, and Pathfinder, a thoroughbred, seemed to have most spirit and to have stood up best under the strain of the test so far.

The run today was to St. Albans and return.

SOVIET ULTIMATUM TO PEKING GOVERNMENT

PEKING, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press) The Soviet government at Moscow, through its envoy here, Adolph Joffre, has presented a flat demand to the Peking foreign office that Chinese desist from permitting armed "white" forces to concentrate on Chinese territory for attacks on Siberian soil.

The Soviet government briefly charges that the authorities of North Manchuria are assisting the "whites" to deal a blow at the Russian people and enumerates in support of the charge a long series of attacks made against Siberian territory from China during the last three years.

REPORT SUCCESSES FOR RED ARMY

MOSCOW, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—Despatches from Chita claim a series of successes for the red army of the Far Eastern republic in its drive against the whites along the Trans-Siberian railway in the direction of Vladivostok.

Partisans of the reds report that they blew up Gen. Kappell's troop train near Grodekov, 100 miles northwest of Vladivostok, on Oct. 13, killing or wounding many soldiers.

The whites are understood to be entrenching in the region of Nikolsk and Ussuri, where they are bringing up ammunition and artillery in preparation for a stand.

OFFICER HOLLAND DEAD

Well Known Member of Police Department Passed Away Last Evening

James E. Holland, a member of the Lowell police department for 39 years and a faithful officer highly esteemed by his superiors and brothers of the rank, died last evening at his home, 34 Second avenue, after an illness of about seven weeks. The officer had been in failing health for some time previous to his last illness, but kept at work steadily, being detailed as inspector of minor licenses. He was obliged to relinquish his work a short time ago, however, by advice of his physician, but failed to rally.

Officer Holland was popular everywhere throughout the city, with a long and meritorious record of police work rarely equalled in local police department annals. He had been a resident of Lowell for many years and was appointed to the supernumerary police force as early as July, 1883. In January of the following year he was promoted to the regular force.

For many years he served as regular patrolman, giving excellent service at all times and having many trying experiences while performing his duties "on the line." After capable service as patrolman, Officer Holland was appointed wagon officer, holding the position up to about 10 years ago, when was made provisional sergeant of the liquor squad by former Mayor O'Donnell. For four or five years he discharged his duties faithfully and conscientiously. Later he was transferred to the license department as an inspector, performing these duties up to the time of his last illness.

Officer Holland held the esteem and confidence of his superiors and fellow officers. He was a man absolutely without fear, and his sole ambition was to carry out the orders given him by his superiors. Personally he was a most companionable citizen and had often regaled his friends with stories and incidents of his long term of service in the local police department.

Many of the men he was associated with in the early days of the local force have passed away, but Officer Holland always liked to discuss the characteristics and personalities of his late brothers in uniform, whom he always respected highly. He liked to tell his friends some of the striking points in the careers of other policemen who appealed to him as being worthy of mention when the lives and deeds of guardians of the law were being considered in conversations at police headquarters and elsewhere. Many Lowell citizens will remember the late officer as plain "Jim" Holland—a loyal friend, whose friendship was worth acquiring.

Deceased leaves besides his wife, Mrs. Mary (Dunfey) Holland, a niece, Mrs. E. I. Bissonette, Jr. The officer was a member of the Lowell Police Relief association, the Massachusetts State Police Relief association and Court Merrimack, F. of A.

Police Convention

through the building acted as escorts for others who later arrived.

As soon as the delegates arrived most of them went direct to the Auditorium where they were tagged with the little red silk badge that designated them as official members of the convention. Most of the delegates came over the road in machines and some of them went on tours of the city this morning. There were plenty of the townspeople willing and ready to point out places of interest and it was noticed that the delegates were being taken care of from all sides. The wide-awake local committee started to function early last night and had representatives stationed at every hotel where the men were to stay, at every approach to the city and at the Auditorium.

Luncheon Served

Shortly after 9 o'clock a buffet luncheon was established in Liberty hall of the Auditorium where visitors, a bit chilled after long rides in the brisk morning air, were given hot coffee and sandwiches. The buffet will continue to function throughout the convention period.

Michael McDermott of Fall River, president of the association, took charge of the meeting at 1 o'clock. He called the session to order and after the usual preliminary business was gone over the convention got right down to business.

It was said that only routine business will be on tap this afternoon and that the election of officers will not be held until tomorrow. The convention will adjourn shortly before four o'clock to meet again tonight for the big banquet for which all arrangements have been completed.

Governor Will Attend

According to the committee Gov. Cox will be on hand at the banquet and will make a short address. Members of the courts for this county will be guests at the affair and it is expected that all of the district court officials will be in attendance.

The local committee in charge of the convention includes Edward F. Flanagan, Clyde Aldrich, Patrick Conroy, Jerome Cullen, William Liston, Thomas Riley, Henry Deering and John Fanning.

The police association at the present time has a total membership of 3233 members. The following cities and towns have sent delegates to this convention:

Attleboro, Beverly, Brockton, Cambridge, Chelsea, Chicopee, Everett, Fall River, Fitchburg, Gloucester, Haverhill, Holyoke, Lawrence, Leominster, Lowell, Lynn, Malden, Marlboro, Medford, Melrose, New Bedford, Newburyport, Newton, North Adams, Northampton, Peabody, Pittsfield, Quincy, Revere, Salem, Somerville, Springfield, Taunton, Waltham, Westfield, Woburn, Worcester, Athol, Arlington, Belmont, Brookline, Canton, Danvers, Dedham, Framingham, Gardner, Greenfield, Lexington, Longmeadow, Manchester, Methuen, Milton, Nahant, Norwood, Plymouth, Reading, Saugus, Stoneham, Swampscott, Stoughton, Wakefield, Ware, Watertown, Wellesley, West Springfield, Weymouth, Winchester, Winthrop, Mass. Plan B Is On Ballot

the court decides against putting question on ballot.

The question reads as follows: "Shall the city of Lowell adopt the form of government defined as Plan B, and consisting of a government by a mayor and councilors, elected partly at large and partly from wards or districts, with elections to be held annually, according to chapter forty-three of the general laws relating to city charters?"

There are five referendum questions on the ballot, two or three of which have caused more or less interest locally. The three most important ones are those having to do with a motion picture censorship, the enactment of a law that will hold the violators of the liquor laws liable to criminal prosecution under Chapter 427 of the Acts of 1922, and the question which says that a district attorney must be a member of the bar of the commonwealth.

The ballot received from Frederic W. Cook, secretary of the commonwealth, is one of the most lengthy received in years. The preface to the list of names and questions is under a Boston date line of Oct. 17 and reads as follows. "I certify that the following is a list of all the candidates duly nominated to be voted for in the Seventh and Eighth Middlesex senatorial district, November 7, 1922, and the form of all questions to be voted on at said elections."

Fined $1 a Word For His Remark

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Morris Leveritz was fined $1 a word by a magistrate today for a five word remark he was charged with having made in reference to Miss Gladys Edwards when a strong wind was blowing in Central Park. The charge was disorderly conduct.

YARDMASTERS GET INCREASE IN PAY

Five railroad men with excellent records in the local service of transportation lines covering the so-called Lowell district, are affected by the action of the United States railroad labor board in Chicago yesterday in granting an eight-hour day with overtime to about 2,000 yardmasters on 26 class 1 railroads and at six switching terminals. Men on all three of the principal roads entering Massachusetts will benefit by what is said to amount to nearly a 25 per cent increase in pay.

The yardmasters affected by the new ruling in the Lowell territory are:

Patrick Burke, of the North yard; Fred Pratt of the Bleachery yard; George LeClair of the Hale street yard; J. M. Ward, night yardmaster of the North yard; Herbert Currier, night yardmaster of the Bleachery yard.

This is the first time The Sun was informed today at the local yards that the railroad board has established rules and working conditions for yardmasters, who are now classified as subordinate officials and subject to the board's jurisdiction under the transportation act.

The new rules provide that yardmasters required to work seven days a week shall be given two days off each month.

NEVER CAN SMILE, BOY SUES FOR $10,000

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18—Nine year old Joe Bevilaque is asking a jury in county court to award him $10,000 because he never again can smile.

A year ago the boy was in an automobile accident, the touring car in which he was riding being demolished by a truck. His face was cut by flying glass and it was discovered when he came out of the hospital that he had lost control of the facial muscles.

Joe's father, acting as his guardian, is suing the owners of both machines involved in the accident.

OBJECT TO B. E. REPORT

In a report appearing yesterday relative to a meeting of members of the Boston University Alumni in North Chelmsford, it was stated that an entertainment followed the business session and names were used in connection with the impersonation of certain characters. The young ladies whose names appeared, object very much to the article as sent to the newspapers, because of the fact that no such impersonations were presented.

The organist of one of London's best known churches is a boy of 13 who has never had a lesson in his life.

MOSES RAPS BANKERS

Charges Selfish Designs in Advocacy of Cancellation of Foreign Debts

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 18.—Cancellation of the debts of Europe to this country is sought by international bankers to fortify their own private loans to Europe, which amount to at least half of the 11 billion dollar total owed to the United States, said Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire in an address here last night.

Senator Moses also charged William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, with responsibility for having acquired no security for the war loans.

The proposal for the cancellation of the debt Senator Moses said, is one of the methods by which the propagandists seek "to work the United States into the obligations and implications" of the treaty of Versailles.

The bankers, he said, "with extreme cunning had planted in the treaty a rake-off for themselves of six billion dollars at least."

"Balked in securing this money," Senator Moses continued, "by bringing the United States with its material resources to the support of the unconscionable reparations clauses of the treaty, they now seek through a cancellation of the 11 billion dollars which Europe owes to us to fortify their own private loans to Europe which amount to at least half that sum.

Their spokesman appearing before the convention of the American Bankers' Association in New York, the other day adverted to this subject and warned the American people to quit fooling themselves about the foreign debt. I say that the American bankers should quit fooling themselves."

Senator Moses spoke at a rally in the interests of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and in place of the latter who is recovering from a cold.

TROTZKY MAKES DENIAL

Ridicules Idea That Russia Becoming Militaristic and Imperialistic

MOSCOW, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press.)—The idea advanced by some sections of the foreign press that Russia is becoming militaristic and imperialistic because of the revival of her naval forces, was ridiculed by War Minister Trotzky yesterday in an address before the Union of Young Communists. Quite the contrary was true, he said, as the fleet was being re-established for home defense only.

"We have absolutely no imperialistic aims," he said. "Therefore, we need no navy for any international purposes. We want peace. We want to re-establish our economies. But at the same time we must see to it that our doors are firmly locked to assure our own security."

URGES ACTION ON SHIP SUBSIDY BILL

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—Delay in enactment of the administration ship subsidy bill would mean "playing into the hands" of foreign shipping interests whose opposition to the legislation should make clear to the American people that it is vital to the future of their merchant marine, Commissioner Plummer of the United Stats Shipping board declared in an address today before the convention of industrial engineers on board the steamship President Harding here.

Mr. Plummer emphasized the importance of the provisions of the bill for co-ordinating railroad and shipping service for the benefit of American exporters which was possible he said, only through its government aid provisions and also what he believed would be its inevitable effect of generally reducing transportation costs at sea through American competition.

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 18—John J. Corrigan, business agent of the Jersey City, N. J., local of the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' International union and a delegate to the biennial convention here, died today in a hospital of pneumonia. Arrests May Be Made Today

Mills, wife of the church sexton and choir leader, to the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hull, was made today by the authorities as they continued their efforts to solve the mystery of the slaying of the couple Sept. 14.

Unaddressed and unsigned, the letters are filled with terms of endearment. In them the minister is often referred to as "sweet, adorable, babykins." They speak of "a love nest" of a woman's dreams of true love; and describe the varied moods of a woman loved and loving without the conventions.

Excerpts from the letters follow:

"Dearest, dearest boy, wasn't I happy to find a sweet note for I didn't expect you would risk leaving one for me yesterday? Such delicious eclairs."

"My darling, how well you seem today. I am tired—want to lie and rest for hours."

"Oh, you sweet adorable babykins of mine."

"How glad I am school resumes tomorrow and I can be alone to write. I need my dream times, my hours alone, and other people irritate and disturb me."

"My love is deep, calm, quiet today, I am in a mood to listen to music."

"I'd build a waiting love nest. People would mean nothing. I had rather watch the bugs and ants as they crawl along. Don't you love to watch an ant as it creeps along, honey?"

"And darling, sweetheart, I long for our love to be the purest ideal—as pure as we can make it, for then it is truest to nature."

"I know I'm a crazy cat."

"Darling mine, didn't you feel me purring blissfully contented? And close to you, too."

"Sweetheart, my true heart, I could crush you—Oh, I am wild tonight."

"I have the greatest of all blessings—a noble man's deep, true, eternal love and my heart is his—my life is his all I have is his—I am his forever."

"I am holding my sweet babykin's face in my hands and looking deep into his heart and reading there the message that makes me live—gives me strength and life."

Buick Engineers Have Made the 1923 Models More Mechanically Perfect

Buick Model 23 - Six - 45

As remarkable as are the improvements in Buick body lines, finish and appointments, they tell but a small part of the 1923 achievement. The changes that have been made from an appearance standpoint are at once visible, but they only serve to indicate the great things that have been done to make the new Buick car more mechanically perfect. Buick engineers have gone to the very heart of the mechanism to promote increased efficiency, greater accessibility and durability. And they have improved Buick riding qualities, ease, smoothness and silence of operation.

Each of the fourteen passenger models for 1923 is an unusual value—the greatest value Buick has offered in twenty years of successful and consistent manufacturing. There is no question but what Buick could dispose of the entire production for the new season at higher prices, but with the greatest production Buick has ever planned, prices have been established to permit Buick a reasonable profit and to pass on to the motoring public the benefits accrued from skilled engineering and scientific manufacturing.

Plans Flight Across North Pole Next Year

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 18.—Captain Roald Amundsen plans his flight from Wainwright, Alaska, across the North Pole next May or June, according to Captain C. S. Cochran of the coast guard cutter Bear, which was here today from a voyage of 23,000 miles into the Arctic ocean. Ice in the Arctic is the worst since 1906, Captain Cochran reports. Captain Amundsen intends to go to Nome, Alaska, this winter by dog team and to return to Wainwright for his flight with Lieut. Oskar Omdahl he told Captain Cochran.

YOUTH SAVED LIVES OF 18 ON BURNING LINES

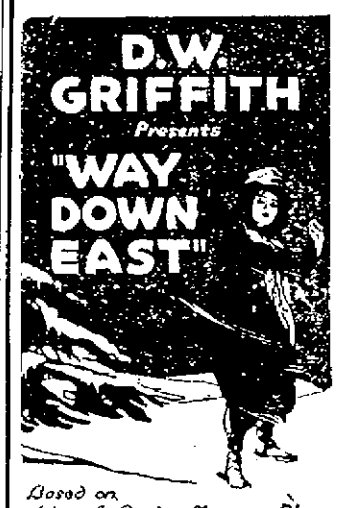

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Roland Bolgiano of Baltimore, 18 years of age, second electrician of the steamer City of Honolulu, is credited with saving the lives of 12 passengers when that liner caught fire at sea last Thursday.

He and Fred Little, 17, a messboy, worked "shoulder to shoulder" when the fire was discovered and according to the ship's doctor, were responsible for getting many passengers safely from the fireswept vessel to the lifeboats.

Complimented on their arrival here, the boys explained it all with "Oh, we were trained as Boy Scouts."

PAMPHLETS FOR VOTERS

Big Job Next Week Under Direction of Secretary of State

(Special to The Sun)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Mailing of approximately 1,500,000 pamphlets containing information for voters, the greatest task of its kind ever attempted in this state, will begin next week, under the direction of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook.

One copy of the pamphlet is required, under the law, to be sent to each person in the state who is registered as a voter. Latest figures obtained by the secretary of state disclose the number of registered voters to be 1,258,000, but this figure does not include the many thousands who are being added to the lists, day by day, in the supplementary registration. When registration is closed, and all of the new voters have been certified to him, the secretary estimates that the number qualified to vote will be very close to 1,500,000.

The pamphlet is one of 44 closely printed pages, and contains the text of the five referendum questions which are to appear on the official ballot at the state election, for the decision of the voters.

As originally made up and printed, it was found that the cost of mailing each pamphlet would be two cents, or a total of nearly $30,000 for postage alone for the entire issue. Since the total amount made available by the legislature for preparing, printing and distributing the pamphlet was only $40,000, it was immediately determined that steps must be taken to reduce the mailing cost per pamphlet to one cent. This has been done, by the substitution of a light weight paper, by using small type, and by "trimming" the edges of printed pages to the smallest possible margins.

For three months and a half, a special force of clerks in the secretary's office has been busily at work addressing envelopes in which the pamphlets will be mailed. To guard against possible errors, each addressed envelope has then been compared with the original list as furnished by city and town clerks. If human machinery can make such a thing possible, Secretary Cook intends that the exact letter of the law shall be complied with, and that a copy of the pamphlet shall be mailed to every registered voter.

The great bulk of the pamphlet is directly attributable to the length of the act, passed by the legislature last year, which is known as the "State Volstead Act." It attempts to put into force in this state legislation substantially similar to the national Volstead act. It occupies approximately 27 pages of the pamphlet.

The remaining questions, in their order, are: Whether the constitution shall be changed to permit doing away with useless rollcalls in the general court; the bill permitting voluntary associations to sue and be sued; the movie censorship bill; and last, following the liquor question, the bill providing that district attorneys shall be members of the bar.

Fortunately for the state treasury, arguments for and against the proposed changes are included in only one instance, the movie censorship bill. This is due to a peculiar provision of law. The statutes provide that if those who seek a referendum file an argument in support of their position, the secretary of state shall obtain from the opposition a statement of their position as well, and shall print both in the pamphlet.

On none of the other questions did the opposition ask permission to print their arguments, but it appears that the "wet" forces have taken advantage of a technicality in the law, and have succeeded in getting their arguments into the pamphlet, although there is in it nothing in support of the so-called state Volstead act. This is due to a requirement that the pamphlet shall contain the complete legislative history of each measure, and in the case of the liquor measure, that history includes a formal dissenting report, submitted by three members of the committee on legal affairs, objecting to its passage. Naturally that report contains the principal arguments against the measure.

Now the "drys" are wondering if their opponents didn't have this very technicality in mind when the minority report was prepared and filed. At any rate, the "wets" appeared to have gained a decided advantage, for their argument against the bill is the only one the voters will find in the official pamphlet. HOYT.

There are nearly 1,500,000 men in the Chinese standing army.

Schooner Aground—Crew Taken Off

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 18.—The three masted British schooner Seaman A. O., Jersey City to Parrsboro, N. S., with hard coal, grounded on Sow and Pigs Reef at 3.30 this morning. She is taking water rapidly and a freshening breeze from the western quarter is considered as spoiling all chances of floating her at high tide this afternoon. The vessel is expected to be a total loss. Captain Morrissey and his crew of seven, were taken off by the Cuttyhunk coast guard station crew.

The City of Honolulu's grave was more than 600 miles southwest of San Francisco.

MASS. VOTERS TO PASS ON FOUR LAWS, NOV. 7

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—As the state election approaches there is increasing evidence that the questions which appear at the tail-end of the ballot are to receive far more attention than in some previous years.

Several important subjects are to be put up to the voters to decide for themselves. In each case the legislature has passed a law and its operation has been suspended until a referendum has been held. It is in effect the application or the initiative and referendum amendment to the state constitution adopted four years ago.

The "I & R," as it is popularly called, provides that if an act of the legislature is distasteful to a large number of persons they may, by filing a petition containing the signatures of 15,000 registered voters, have the question of acceptance placed before the voters at the next state election.

There should be no doubt in the mind of the voter that when he votes "Yes" he is indorsing the act and that when he votes "No" he is against it.

Individual questions have often in past elections aroused considerable excitement during the campaign, but here is the initiative and referendum submitted to test. Therefore the voters must decide whether they want a state censorship of moving pictures, whether the state liquor laws shall conform with those of the federal law known as the Volstead Act, whether voluntary associations may sue or be sued, and whether a district attorney shall be a member of the bar.

Shall They Become Laws?

Each of these four questions will be couched in legal phraseology as prepared for the ballot. But the question is clear, nevertheless, if one will look sharp. In each instance the question is put to the voter, "Shall a law, etc., etc. (then comes a description of the act) be approved?" It ought not to puzzle a voter to answer such a question. Phrased in another way the question is, "Do you approve of such and such an act of the legislature becoming law?"

The motion picture censorship act was passed by the general court in 1921 and was to have become operative Jan. 1, 1922. The opponents of the act invoked the aid of the initiative and referendum and hence it goes to the people.

Now, then, it is up to the voters to say if they want a law which says "it shall be unlawful for any person to exhibit or display publicly in this state any motion picture film unless the said film has been submitted to and approved by the commissioner of public safety." The act further provides that the commissioner of public safety "shall approve such films or parts thereof as are not obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, or such as do not tend to debase or corrupt the morals or incite crime."

The Prohibition Law

The legislature of 1921 attempted to frame a law which would make the laws of Massachusetts conform with those of the United States in the enforcement of the prohibition amendment to the constitution of the United States. There were those in the legislature who contended the proposed act was faulty and wanted it submitted to the supreme court for an opinion as to its constitutionality.

There was no fight over allowing the supreme court to pass on the measure and it was so referred. The supreme court made its report after the close of the 1921 session. The 1922 session, however, was ready to act and a bill was drawn to meet the objections raised by the supreme court to the previous bill.

The question as it stands on the ballot will be whether the voter wishes to approve a law "enacted to enforce in Massachusetts the 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States."

On the question of whether there shall be a law to provide that a voluntary association may sue or be sued there will be much interest, especially among members of organized labor. This act was also passed by the legislature of 1921 after much debate and discussion. Organized labor contended it was a drive at them and urged the governor to veto the bill. The framers of the bill asserted that voluntary associations should be no different from individuals or corporations in the eyes of the law.

Although there were other measures in which organized labor was interested and which for a time they thought they might submit to the voters through the referendum it was decided to center all strength upon this particular act.

Next comes the act which provides that a district attorney shall be a member of the bar. The petition of more than 15,000 voters by means of which this question is put up to the voters was circulated by Ex-Dist. Atty. Joseph C. Pelletier, who has repeatedly asserted the act was aimed at him.

The act was a product of this year's session of the legislature and was filed after Ex-Dist Atty. Nathan A. Tufts and Mr. Pelletier had been removed from office and their membership in the Massachusetts bar revoked by the supreme court.

If the act is passed, no one who is not a member of the bar may serve as district attorney, which would seem to make definite the qualifications for the office to which heretofore any citizen has been eligible.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headache, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c. and 30c.—Adv.

Utica, N. Y.—"I can endorse every one of Dr. Pierce's remedies as thoroughly reliable and I truly think they are the best there is. The 'Pleasant Pellets' are a perfectly splendid laxative, mild, yet effective; and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a tonic and nervine that is unequalled for women. The fact that these medicines are made entirely of roots and herbs, without alcohol, brought them to my attention years ago and I approve of every ingredient used in their manufacture."—Dr. Eliza A. EDUCATIONAL CLUB HEARS MR. SHEPPARD

William Trufl Sheppard, who recently returned from a European tour, was the principal speaker at yesterday's meeting of the Educational club, his talk being mainly on his experiences across and his opinion on present conditions in European countries as a result of the World war. Mr. Sheppard went to Europe as a representative of the American Baptist Missionary society and traveled with Dr. Abernathy.

In the course of his address Mr. Sheppard predicted that Germany will become a monarchy as soon as she is able to regain her strength, but he said the Hohenzollern family will never again be in power. He said if Woodrow Wilson had never made his unfortunate trip to Europe the League of Nations would now be an established fact and Europe would be well on her way to peace and prosperity. He further stated that England is now ready to pay her debts to the United States, but she believes her debts should be wiped off the slate. Referring to Czecho-Slovakia, Esthonia, Lithuania and Latvia, the speaker said they were all looking to this country for political and economic salvation. In closing, Mr. Sheppard said we ought not to build a wall about the country, as China did in reality several thousand years ago, but to merge our nationality in the great tide of existence of which we are so naturally a political and economic part.

LICENSES REVOKED BY COMMISSION

Two soft drink licenses were revoked by the license commission last night as the result of complaints brought by officers of the liquor squad that intoxicants were being sold in the places mentioned. Spanos & Co. operate both stores and the manager of each establishment appeared before the commission last night. The first complaint heard was that against Thomas Safas, manager of the store at 59 Moody street, who confessed that he had paid a fine of $100 in the district court for liquor selling on Sept. 23 and a week later was fined $175 for a similar offence. Charles Spanos was the second defendant, and he also told officers that he had paid a $100 fine for illegal keeping.

GEOMETRIC PRINCIPLE

Interesting Talk On Its Relation to Plant and Insect Life

The importance of the geometric principle and the part it plays in the growth of floral and insect life of the world, was explained in detail with many new illustrations by Edgar A. Hoadley, instructor of practical science at the Lowell State Normal school, yesterday afternoon, more than 200 woman students and several guests listening to the discourse. Numerous lantern slides were given showing the wonderful structure of raindrops, frost, hail and snow. The great possibilities of the square were also explained, showing how rectangles, triangles and spirals in unlimited number can be worked out with the square as a base.

American Women Are Careless

Women are too apt to overestimate their strength and overtax it. When feeling well they take unnecessary chances, which in the long run cause much pain and trouble. Wet feet, exposure to cold, lifting heavy burdens and overwork will often develop troubles which cause no end of suffering. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing remedy in such cases. Thousands of American women will testify to this fact who have regained health and strength by its use. If you are suffering it will pay you to give it a fair trial.—Adv.

FORGET-ME-NOT DAY

At the regular meeting of Lowell branch, Disabled Veterans of the World War, held last night in Memorial hall, plans for the annual "Forget-Me-Not" day were discussed, and the date for this year set at Nov. 4. The purpose of this day is to collect funds for aiding worthy disabled veterans. The following committee was appointed to arrange for the day: John J. McNabb, chairman; Comrades Geo. B. Walton, Edward Desautier, Walter Sanborn, Edward Garrity, Ezra Bowden, Edward H. Sullivan and William Broderick. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 24.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Chelmsford Village Improvement association, held last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. C. A. Dane; vice president, Paul Dutton; treasurer, Joseph E. Warren; secretary, Mrs Edith Hemenway; executive committee, Mrs. C. V. Hazeltine, Mrs. D. E. Haley, Mrs. R. P. Adams, William H. Hall. In the course of the meeting suggestions for improvements in the village were submitted and a committee was appointed to prepare resolutions on the death of Miss Mary Elizabeth Richardson, a charter member of the organization.

COAL FOR SCHOOLS

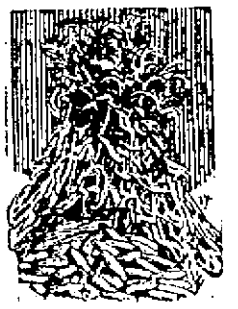

According to the purchasing agent's department it will be possible to obtain enough coal to keep the school buildings warm this winter. The buildings that are heated by soft coal have enough on hand while those using hard coal will be supplied. The Memorial Auditorium and Chelmsford street hospital will also be taken care of. The warm weather of this month has aided the coal men greatly and has given them time to catch up on orders.

WILL TAKE OFF ALL EXCESS FAT

Do you know that there is a simple, harmless, effective remedy for overfatness that may be used safely and secretly by any man or woman who is losing the slimness of youth? There is; and it is none other than the tablet form of the now famous Marmola Prescription, known as Marmola Prescription Tablets. You can well expect to reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a case, or you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., 4613 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich., on receipt of price.—Adv.

SCIENTIST CAN HELP

Could Enable Manufacturer Make Better Goods for Less Money, Says Howe

BOSTON, Oct. 18—The scientist, particularly the chemical engineer, can help the manufacturer make better goods for less money and new goods that will create and hold a popular demand, said Harrison P. Howe of Washington, in an address today at the annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

"Whatever we may think of the return of peaceful, normal times with tax and tariff settled for the time being," he said, "we are certainly entering into the most highly competitive age we have ever known. We may as well recognize that the far east with its great number of workers is becoming more and more able to compete with us in their own markets. Misfortunes have taught Europe patience, thrift, economy and hard work, and the whole world seems certain soon to engage upon a race for commercial and industrial supremacy unprecedented in the history of the world."

GASTON SCORES LODGE'S TARIFF ARGUMENT

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 18.—Col. William A. Gaston, democratic candidate for United States senator, John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for governor, and the other democratic speakers, who have been touring western Massachusetts, addressed rallies last night in this city, Holyoke, Chicopee and Westfield.

Col. Gaston declared "indefensible" Senator Lodge's argument, that the present tariff is necessary to keep foreign goods out of the American market. He urged that any duty imposed should represent only the difference between the cost of production here and abroad.

Mr. Fitzgerald continued his attacks on the republican policy as it affects the farmers.

"The republican state convention," he said, "which hissed the progressive republicans and cheered the name of Newberry found plenty of space in the party platform to lament atrocities in Smyrna, but gave expression to not a single idea of value for agriculture and side-stepped every important issue in the daily life of our people here at home."

Rally in Greenfield

GREENFIELD, Oct. 18.—The Gaston-Fitzgerald campaigners arrived in Greenfield at noon yesterday and after a short conference with local democrats the car of Thomas F. Cassidy, candidate for congress from the 1st District, was driven to the side of the street for a speakers' stand. Harold R. Gowey of Pittsfield introduced the speakers, the first being James H. Vahey.

John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for governor, said the democratic state committee will, so far as possible, bring the truth to the people by word of mouth in the campaign. He said 90 per cent of the newspapers are under republican control and are not giving the public the truth on most questions.

John F. Doherty, candidate for lieutenant-governor, disputed assertions that the republican administration has saved millions of dollars. John E. Swift, candidate for attorney-general, and Dewitt C. Dewolf spoke briefly.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A very pretty birthday party was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs Rose Correia in honor of her daughter Mary's 18th birthday. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent with Morey's orchestra furnishing the music. A piano solo was given by Mrs. Kate Fratus, also solos by the Misses Jose Souza and Paul Correia. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at a late hour, wishing the hostess, who was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, many happy returns of the day.

In the entire breeding season—about three months—a single pair of flies will be responsible for about 63 tons of flies.

TO SUPPORT COL. GASTON

Liberal Republican League Favors Democratic Candidate for Senator

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—The Liberal Republican League of Massachusetts, formed several months ago with the avowed purpose of "permanently liberalizing the republican party in the state," decided at a meeting here yesterday to support William A. Gaston, democratic candidate for United States senator. The preamble to the resolution adopted was:

"The overshadowing moral and political issue is the imperative need of eliminating Henry Cabot Lodge from the position of leadership that he now occupies in the republican party and the assertion of a new liberal, forward looking leadership which will redeem our party from its present reactionary bondage and make possible its reorganization in accordance with the principles of Lincoln and Roosevelt."

Joseph Walker, who was supported by the league when he disputed the republican nomination for United States senator with Mr. Lodge was present at the meeting.

BAR OPERATION ON HEAD OF NOTORIOUS BANDIT

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Oct. 18.—The department of justice has refused to permit an operation on the head of Roy Gardner, notorious bandit, who is confined in the federal penitentiary here, according to notification to Warden W. I. Biddle today from Washington.

The decision was based on a report by Dr. A. F. Yoho, prison physician, who, with several other surgeons, examined Gardner's skull. Gardner asked that a trepanning operation be performed, claiming an injury during his youth is responsible for his criminal tendencies.

FLOUR DEALERS ARE NOT WORRYING

Local flour dealers are not worrying for the present over the shortage of freight cars reported to be interfering seriously with the business of flour and grain traders in various cities of New England. Warren G. Torrey, chairman of the grain board of the Boston chamber of commerce, has received reports within the past 10 days, covering a wide territory in Massachusetts, and finds a serious shortage of grain and flour supplies in many quarters, with numerous receivers of products inconvenienced by tardy deliveries of small shipments.

A trip around town taking in the large wholesale flour houses in Lowell today, elicited information of a reassuring brand so far as staple supplies are concerned here. A large Middlesex street flour supply house reported plenty of stocks on hand and more on the way later in the week. Another flour dealer who also conducts a large grain business on Dutton street, furnished similar information, and nowhere could there be found any local vendor of the principal food staples who appeared to be having any transportation troubles, with the exception of deliveries on "futures," which were coming along slowly.

Local dealers have been notified that many flour mills in the middle and far west are able to operate only on part time for the present and some are able to operate at only half capacity because of the lack of trains.

The Buffalo chamber of commerce reports that the Buffalo port is jammed and the grain elevators there filled to capacity. Many vessels are waiting there to unload and in order that coal may be moved first, it has been necessary to relieve the elevators and vessels by diverting freight cars to Buffalo for flour and grain shipments. The matter is now under consideration of the Interstate Commerce commission.

DEATH RATE HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

The death rate for this city is higher than last year, according to a statement made by Francis J. O'Hare of the board of health. The number of deaths so far this year is 1137 as against 1109 up to this time last year. The death rate last year was the lowest in the history of the city and when it is considered that only 28 more deaths have occurred this year, the rate is not so high in comparison with other years.

LABOR UNION OFFICIAL CAMPAIGNING HERE

John Van Vaerenewyck, vice president of the Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor, who is campaigning in Lowell against the passage of the so-called moving picture censorship bill and the voluntary association act, two referenda, which will appear on the ballot at the coming state election, addressed several meetings last evening.

Mr. Vaerenewyck was one of the principal speakers at the mass meeting of car shop strikers, which was held in Colonial theatre, Middlesex street, last evening, and he also addressed gatherings at meetings of the Barbers' union, Woolen Weavers' and Wool Sorters' unions, while he also spoke at the mass meeting of Bleachery workers held in Trades & Labor hall in Central street.

BEWARE OF THE 'REAR LAMP FAKIR

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—"Beware the rear lamp fakir."

This, in substace, is the warning sent out today by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, to automobile owners and dealers.

Registrar Goodwin states he has found that unscrupulous salesmen are going about the state, attempting to sell their goods with the statement that they have "inside information" that their particular rear lamp is to be approved by the motor vehicle registry.

"The list of lamps approved for rear end use will be issued by this department on Nov. 15, and not before," Mr. Goodwin declared today. "Until that day, no one other than myself will know what lamps are to be included in it.

"For that reason I take this occasion to warn all dealers and owners not to purchase any rear lamps at this time. If they do so, they may find it necessary to purchase another when the law passed this year becomes effective."

The law to which Mr. Goodwin refers reads as follows:

"No rear lamp shall be used upon any motor vehicle unless approved by the registrar. Application for the approval of a lens or other device, or of a rear lamp, accompanied by a fee of fifty dollars, may be made to the registrar by any manufacturer or dealer therein." HOYT.

GIDEONS WILL GIVE CONCERT

What promises to be an evening in Lowell of considerable significance is a concert to be given on Sunday evening, Nov. 5, in Liberty hall of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium by Constance and Henry Gideon, who are nationally known for their successful artistry. The Gideons have traveled all over the country and have delighted thousands with their renderings and interpretations of their songs. Their artistry is perfect, due to long study and careful observation of the countries whose songs they interpret. They have also sung in many foreign countries. With the Gideons will come Marjorie Patten Weaver, a 'cellist of appealing and fascinating presence. The concert promises to be a memorable one and few can afford to miss it. Tickets are $1.50 and $1 and are on sale at Steinert's, 130 Merrimack st. Tel. 1069.

LOWELL BLEACHERY EMPLOYES MEET

A largely attended meeting of employes of the Lowell Bleachery took place last evening in Trades & Labor hall under the auspices of the Lowell Textile council, an organization composed of representatives of the various local unions affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America.

The principal speaker was Organizer Thomas J. Reagan, who spoke at length on the benefits to be derived from such an organization as the U.T.W. of A. He urged his listeners to join the organization and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the work accomplished by the organization only recently when through its efforts the wage cut was restored. At the close of the meeting many of those present signed membership applications.

STILL IN RHODE ISLAND

Harry G. Sheldon of Lowell still continues to fill the position of supervisory prohibition officer of Rhode Island, and has not been transferred to Maine as reported a few days ago.

MAY BE NAMED IN SEALED INDICTMENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—In the event that he may be named in the sealed federal indictments filed recently in Tacoma, Wash., in connection with the death of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite on Oct. 25, 1918, Robert Rosenbluth, former army captain who has figured in the case, has called with his attorney, Jonah J. Goldstein, on United States Attorney Hayward for the purpose, he said, of giving the prosecuting officials his present address.

Rosenbluth was referred to John E. Joyce, assistant United States attorney in charge of the Cronkhite case, who requested him to return to the federal courthouse today. Rosenbluth was arrested in New York on Mar. 26, 1921. Major Cronkhite was shot on the outskirts of Camp Lewis military reservation. Rosenbluth, four days after his arrest, gave $25,000 bail in Liberty bonds to go to the state of Washington to answer any charges officials there might make against him. The New York authorities investigated the shooting and declined to proceed against Rosenbluth. His bail was then released and it was supposed the inquiry had ended.

AT ALL SOULS' CHURCH

At the parish house of All Souls' church last night, the first of a series of monthly suppers was given by the ladies of the parish, headed by Miss Helen W. Barnes. Hallowe'en games and stunts followed the supper, special numbers being rendered by Ailan Dumas and John Walcott. Under the direction of Harold Nickerson, an "aeroplane stunt" was given, while Miss Harriet Cooper played the fortune teller role. Similar gatherings will be held each month during the winter season.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES—No. 88.

All day Jack had been planning on a means of escape. He finally decided that the only means would be to get down to the ground on some kind of a ladder. He quickly pulled all the bed clothes from the bed and tied them end to end.

Jack waited until midnight. Then he tied one end of his sheet ladder to the bed post. He then climbed out quietly and started down. His faithful dog, Flip, was waiting below and barked a greeting. Jack slid down the rope hurriedly but quietly.

"Be still, Flip," said Jack as he neared the ground. "Do you want to wake the guard up?" The boy then dropped off the end of the ladder. Flip didn't bark again but he jumped up and pawed at Jack. He was glad to see him again. Continued.

SAYS TWINS A HOAX

Nothing More Than Cleverly Constructed Dolls, Says Mrs. Hazel McNally

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 18.—Accused by her husband of killing twin babies which he said were born to her last December, Mrs. Hazel McNally, 24, faced trial here today, claiming the missing twins were nothing more than cleverly constructed dolls, mothered by her until last April to satisfy her husband's ambition to be known to the world as a father.

Both Frank McNally, the 56-year-old husband and his estranged wife, asserted their claims would be proved by witnesses called to testify at the trial.

In support of her claim, Mrs. McNally declared she told her husband shortly after their marriage that it was impossible for her to become a mother.

"But that failed to still his desire to be a parent," Mrs. McNally said. "On one occasion we inserted an advertisement offering to adopt a child, but nothing came of it. Finally his mania to pose as a father became so acute that we contrived the hoax."

All of his wife's story, McNally said, "is the desperate defense of a woman who has done away with her children."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By the Theatres Own Press Agents)

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the very best vaudeville shows this city has known, not alone this year, but in several seasons, is that one which is being given this week at the B. F. Keith theatre. The array of acts is specially good, with Julia Nash and C. H. O'Donnell in "Almost Single" as the topnotcher. Then there are Blanche and Jimmie Creighton in a rube skit that is good all the way through. The novelty by The Briants is all in a class by itself, while Misses Morgan and Binder give a chatty musical skit that is a humdinger. Mazie Lunette, aerialist, is one of the most graceful of performers. Others on the bill are: Boudini & Bernard, in accordeon playing, and the Faden trio, musicians and comedians.

RIALTO THEATRE

D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle, "Way Down East," which opens a two-day engagement at the Rialto theatre today seems assured a wonderful reception. The hundreds who have already seen the great spectacle in this city are waiting for the return engagement, for it has endeared itself to their hearts as one of the most likable productions ever exhibited.

To those who are not already familiar with the wonderful scenes in this picture it is a picturization of that delightful story of New England rural life which Lottie Blair Parker and Joseph R. Grismer made so familiar upon the American stage covering a period of more than a decade. By Griffith's treatment it becomes a new art, vibrant with a life that is fast passing from view and infused with the finest mingling of pastoral scenes ever conceived for an American drama. The thrilling rescue of the heroine from the great ice jam is one of the scenes not easily forgotten in this production. Richard Barthelmess and Lillian Gish are the two leading actors. Other strong attractions support "Way Down East" for the two-day showing.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performances of "The Old Homestead," with Theodore Roberts and an all-star supporting cast will be given this evening at the Merrimack Square theatre. Don't fail to see this big production before it leaves Lowell.

The features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "The Ghost Breaker," an intensely entertaining comedy romance with Wallace Reid and Lila Lee in the leading roles, and "The Cowboy and the Lady," a dramatic production starring Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore.

"The Ghost Breaker," is a genuinely entertaining picture. The story starts off with a succession of thrills, the action moving from feuds in Kentucky to castle in Spain, with a joyous happy-go-lucky interlude in New York city. The sequence of ghost episodes, which occur in the Spanish castle, are one fizzling alternation of laughter and thrills and the ending, as happy as it is sudden, will send you home in an amiable frame of mind.

Lila Lee is charming as the Spanish senorita. Walter Hiers, playing his first black-face role has nothing better to his credit than his interpretation of Rusty Snow, the negro valet. There are other popular players in the cast, all of whom acquitted themselves with credit.

"The Cowboy and the Lady," the other big feature for the week-end, first came into being as a stage play by Clyde Fitch. It is a love story of the boundless west, wherein a young man from the east makes good in such fashion that he decides to stay there. His adventures form the basis of a mighty interesting story. With Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore in the leading roles, the photoplay can't help being good.

A comedy and the latest International News will complete the bill.

"SILVER WINGS" COMING

"Silver Wings," the William Fox special, with Mary Carr, as the starring character, is scheduled for presentation at the Strand next week. Noticed.

THE STRAND

A better series of photoplays, clustered under one program, could not be found in New England, than the one to be shown for the last time today at the Strand. See "Human Hearts" interpreted by an all-star cast, headed by House Peters; "Don't Shoot," one of Herbert Rawlinson's melodramatic crook stories; Billy Franey's latest comedy; and musical numbers of excellence. It's a picture offering, the equal of which cannot be duplicated hereabouts.

On the wings of the wind, at breakneck pace, to the limit of his horse's endurance, heedless of everything but the need of speed, Tom Mix rides the sands of Arizona. Many things are in the balance—life, love, property—he wins them all, for red blood is in his veins, and the throb to give battle is there also. This is just a word-picture of one of the many exciting glimpses of "For Big Stakes," the newest Mix photoplay to open a three day's engagement at the Strand on Thursday. Can you afford to miss it? We'll say no.

Gladys Brockwell and Stuart Holmes are two of the several noted screen stars to appear in "Paid Back," on the same bill. Superb, polished villainy and consummate love making, such as Irving Cummings creates for the screen, is well reflected in this highly dramatic picture story. We recommend it to all.

OPERA HOUSE

An entourage of more than 50, including some of the prettiest and most fascinating girls ever seen on a musical stage, two carloads of scenery and a wardrobe more extensive than Lowell has seen in ten years, is what the patrons of the Opera House are seeing this week in the presentation of the great Marcus show of 1922. It's peppery, up to the minute and clean. It's the kind of show that everyone can enjoy, for it's clean and wholesome. The musical hits are being whistled about town. Crowded houses at every performance testify to its popularity. Order your tickets in advance.

THE AUDITORIUM

Seats are selling rapidly for the Irene Castle entertainment, "Fashions and Dances of 1923," to be given at the Memorial Auditorium Oct. 26, under the direction of Albert Edmund Brown.

Miss Castle will appear in the person that evening and will display costumes which she has never worn before and which will be just a little bit ahead of anything yet turned out even by the smartest shops. Supported by the Moscow orchestra and the Castle ensemble she will also demonstrate some of the latest and most graceful dances as only she can do.

The advance man for Miss Castle's New York management, Ernest Briggs, Inc., was in Lowell yesterday afternoon and visited the Auditorium where the famous star is to appear a week from tomorrow night. He was enthusiastic over the opportunity Lowell's splendid new building will afford Miss Castle to demonstrate her skill and grace. Stage dimensions were secured in order to have the Castle properties properly arranged for the appearance of the star here.

Miss Castle will not appear in any other city near Lowell this fall. She has even cancelled a Boston date in order to be one of the first stars to give a performance at the new Auditorium. There are still plenty of good seats at Steinert's, 130 Merrimack st. Tel. 1069.

Y.M.C.A. STUDY COURSES

Arrangements have been made by the Y.M.C.A. to offer study courses in Lowell in conjunction with Northeastern university of Boston. The first of these courses will start on Oct. 25 and will consist of public speaking, salesmanship, foremanship and radio. Additional information may be secured at the "Y."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Eating Too Much Meat May Clog Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts

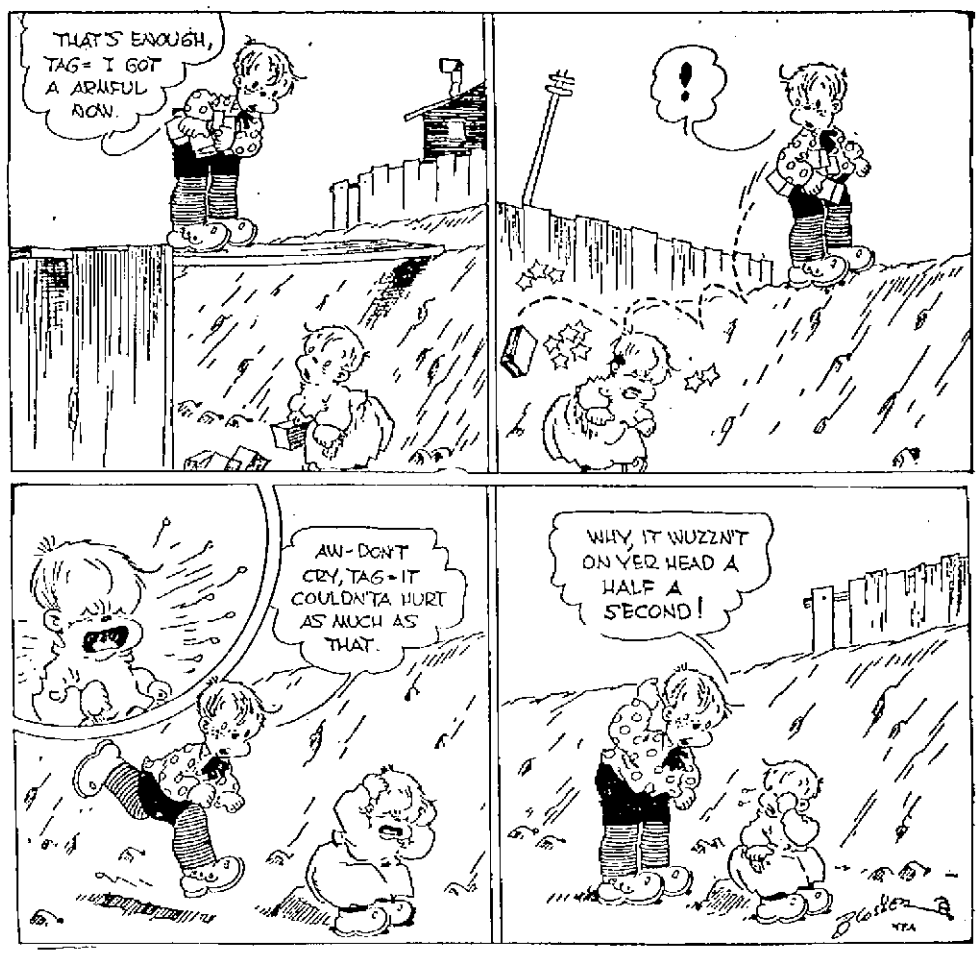

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. -Adv.

HARDING BOOSTING HIS PARTY

President Harding in a letter to Congressman Mondell of Wyoming praises the work of the 66th and the 67th congress, setting forth in great detail the alleged difficulties they had to overcome in facing the problems of reconstruction. He compared the problems before congress since the World war with those following the Civil war, and reasoned that the latter were less difficult because the country could then rest upon the aid of other nations, whereas since the World war the other nations want to lean on us. He failed to show that after the Civil war this nation was aided by others or that we have done much of anything for other nations since the World war, except to aid the starving in Russia, which was a spontaneous movement by the American people.

That is specious reasoning but false and illogical. It is, however, the kind of stuff that may be expected from republican speakers in this campaign when defending an administration that wasted practically two years in a vain search for political capital in the records of the war.

The party leaders now claim the credit for restoring business by passing a tariff law; but the inherent recuperative powers of the country would have brought a return of prosperity at least one year ago had not the republican congress delayed the passage of its promised tariff law.

The industries of the country have been held in suspense awaiting the time when they could look ahead and plan for continued activity on something like a definite financial basis.

The present tendency to inflation is the result of a bound forward by our industries just as soon as the pending tariff uncertainty was removed. The tariff, however, will bring retaliation from foreign nations that will militate against our foreign trade. The industries can continue their present spell of activity until their storehouses are filled; but then, without a foreign market for their goods, they cannot continue. The domestic market cannot dispose of the entire output of our factories and if there is no foreign demand for the surplus, then prosperity cannot be permanent.

The republicans will make the most of the present spell of improved business activity but, as already stated, it would have come much sooner but for the delays, and the do-nothing policy of congress. At present and probably as an unwelcome accompaniment of the November election, we shall have a coal famine, due to President Harding's lack of tact and courage in dealing with the coal strike and the railroad strike. In addition, our merchant marine is lying practically idle with the prospect that eventually the ships will have to be sold to private parties. That will be the natural result of the republican tariff policy. It was that policy which destroyed our merchant marine in the past when our flag was honored in the harbors of the world. Even the ship subsidies advocated by President Harding will hardly save our merchant marine from the blighting influence of the excessive republican tariff. Nobody nowadays denies the necessity of reasonable protection against foreign competition, but the Fordney-McCumber tariff has been dictated by special interests for their own benefit and as a result, it will increase the cost of living at least $4,000,000,000 in the next year. That will show the benevolence of the republican protective policy.

AS TO BRITISH PROPAGANDA

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir: Is it true that England censors the news sent from Ireland or that most of what the newspapers publish in this country relative to Ireland is propaganda either for England or the Irish Free State?

Truly yours,

J. F. M.

It is not true. The parties who make such statements either do not know what they are talking about or else deliberately misrepresent the situation for an ulterior purpose. Practically everything that is published in the reputable newspapers in this country relative to Ireland is confirmed by the Irish press, which is free to publish the news without interference. Correspondents of American newspapers send to this country whatever they please, and this they would not be allowed to do if any rigid censorship such as alleged were exercised.

The Hibernian Journal of Ireland, just at hand, states that since the truce was signed in July, the property damage alone, done by the activities of the Irregulars, would net forty million pounds or two billion dollars, which is probably more than the British ever did at any period in the same length of time. Moreover a large proportion of this damage will have to be met by the people of the districts in which the damage is done. This method is adopted to induce the people to use their influence against such outrages. The Hibernian paper referred to, is neutral as between the parties in Ireland, but yet it has a summary of the daily happenings, which is more shocking than would appear from the accounts published in the American press. If its account were printed here without naming the source, the people referred to by the correspondent above would pronounce it the worst kind of British propaganda, which, of course, would only prove our statement.

ORIGIN OF THE POTATO

Thirteen feet above sea level in the mountains of northern Ecuador, the region which is believed by scientists to be the cradle of the potato race, there has been found a wild, true species of this plant, which is quite different from the discoveries that were made by Wilson Popence of the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture, some time ago. Our own well developed potatoes would be just as proud of these gigantic mountain Murphies as a certain gentleman is of the anthropoid apes; for the Andean variety from which our own has sprung, is too small to be of economic importance. Plant breeders in this country, however, hope that tests may show characteristics which will make it worth while to combine them with our cultivated kinds by crossing. The wild tubers produce seed rather freely, but are also subject to one of the potato diseases of which their cultured brothers are often victims.

ROOTING FOR LODGE

Ex-Senator Root is to come to Massachusetts in an effort to save Senator Lodge. He throws out a bait to the former progressives by saying that he knows Senator Lodge was in full sympathy with President Roosevelt in all his policies. If that were true, Mr. Lodge would have gone out with Roosevelt when he bolted the republican convention and launched the Bull Moose party.

Mr. Root evidently regards Lodge as a good man for the republican party and an experienced manipulator of the republican machine; but if Mr. Root would justify Lodge's course as senator, he should explain why he allowed the port of Boston to be left practically idle through railroad discrimination in favor of other Atlantic ports farther south.

NEW HOTEL PROJECT

It looks now as if the chamber of commerce will put through the movement for a new hotel, the only thing Lowell needs to put her in line with other very pretentious cities. With such a splendid convention hall as that provided in the Memorial Auditorium, the enterprise of the city should be directed in real earnest to the realization of this hotel idea. A city of diversified industries such as Lowell is behind the times if it has not at least one first class hotel.

It is safe to say, that in spite of the croakers who calumniate the chamber of commerce as they assail every progressive step for the benefit of the community, the enterprising men of Lowell who have a pride in their city will aid this movement by every means in their power.

FIGHTING LLOYD GEORGE

Now comes the French envoy who dealt with Kemal Pasha in the recent unpleasantness and avers that it was the pacific policy of France and not the belligerent policy of Lloyd George that averted war in the Near East. This, at a time when the British premier was taking all the honor of handling the situation, will be welcome political ammunition for his enemies. Moreover, the fact that he referred to the Kemalist forces as "warlike animals" has stirred the followers of the Turkish leader to indignation. France seems to be on the inside with the Turks, and Lloyd George is fighting his enemies at home and abroad with the chances as usual in his favor.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER

Now that the women have the suffrage, it is hoped they will get registered so as to be able to use it on election day. There are 1,200,000 voters in Massachusetts and nearly as many who are eligible to vote if they were registered. There are thousands of women in Lowell, and perhaps nearly as many men, who are not registered and yet an election of great importance is at hand. This is the last day for registration. The election board will be in session till 10 p. m. Don't get left.

WHEAT

The price of wheat never would fall below $1.25 a bushel or rise above $1.50 if the grain market were stabilized by a government fund of $100,000,000. So claims Arthur R. Roberts, commission broker, member of the Chicago board of trade.

The fund, according to Roberts' suggestion, would be used to buy up grain surplus at seasonal times. It is worth considering. A hundred million dollars, suddenly taking a hand in the situation, should be powerful enough to stabilize any market.

BRITAIN OBJECTS

Britain rejects Secretary Hughes' plan for the extension of reciprocal search and seizure beyond the three-mile limit. The secretary asks England to revive some of the intolerable navigation customs, to wipe out which this country went to war with England in 1812. The right of search, therefore, will remain restricted, as it properly should be, to the three-mile limit. It would not be wise to revert to the age of piracy, even on the pretext of enforcing the prohibition law.

The "stunt" craze that induces a girl aviator to swing from a rope attached to an airplane, holding only by her teeth, is a form of insanity that does not respond to the usual tests applied by the alienists.

The Massachusetts Police association is specially welcomed to Lowell as being the first state organization to hold a convention in our Memorial Auditorium. May all their deliberations be harmonious and successful.

The office of district attorney is one from which politics should be barred. That will be the order of things if James C. Reilly is elected.

Superintendent Doherty is not responsible for the delays due to the railroads.

The detectives in the Hall-Mills murder case are getting down to business.

Disabled railroads mean disabled business throughout the country.

SEEN AND HEARD

It's all right to be sorry for something if it is not yourself.

What are the girls going to do with all these short skirts?

The list of poems that any one particular person loves doesn't create any great amount of general interest.

In All Humility

"How do you think the financial relationships of the world ought to be adjusted?" "Taint for me to say," replied Farmer Corntossel, "I can't even get the mortgage paid off of a 50-acre farm."—Washington Star.

A Thought

It offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings who for the most part are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb show and noise.—Shakespeare.

Might Land in Cellar

"As Sancho Panza says, 'When they give you a heifer, have the rope ready.' That's good advice. Here's something else worth remembering." "Well?" "When a promoter offers to let you in on the ground floor, look out for trap doors."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Woman's Answer

The lady was being heckled, but she was holding her own and the motley crowd of loafers to whom she was talking were spurred to further efforts. "Hi, missus," shouted a tough, "you look cold! Why don't you turn your collar up, like me?" "Well, you see," she answered sweetly, "I've got a clean neck!"

Nonskidding Mud

"O, but, judge," protested the motorist when the rural magistrate had imposed a $10 fine for speeding, "just look at our roads! No car could have gone more than eight miles an hour through that mud." "That's jest it," said his honor severely. "'Twarn't nothin' but that thar mud of ours as held ye back."—Detroit Free Press.

What They Were

A dinner party was in progress and owing to the shortage of servants and as an emergency, a stable boy had been brought in to assist. The youth was terribly embarrassed, and as he tremblingly thrust forward a dish of tartlets the hostess inquired languidly: "What are these, John?" "I really don't know, ma'am," he replied, "but I think they're five cents apiece."—New York Mail.

The New "Dicer"

"Boss, does yo' 'member dat hat I bought fum you, fo' my boy Sat-dy?" "Yes. What about it?" "Well, it am entirely too small fo' him." "All right. I will exchange it for one a little larger. What size do you want?" "I dunno. What's de size ob dat wun what I brung back?" "It is size six and seven-eighths." "Well, if dat hat am six, seben, eight, Boss, I spec yo' hatteh gimme a nine, ten, eleben."—Judge.

Tiresome Sameness

A man who always went to the same restaurant became tired of the uniformity of the diet. He went in one day and was handed a menu by a new waitress. He looked at it and said something to the girl. She went over to her fellow workers and said: "That old duffer's crazy. When I ran over the bill of fare to him he just grunted, 'Hebrews 13 and eight.'" Some one hunted up the reference in the bible and found: "The same yesterday, today, and forever."

Willie Was Interested

The Sunday school lesson was on Job. The superintendent of the primary department was earnestly endeavoring to picture the painful existence of Job to his youthful audience. To this end he was dwelling at length upon poor Job's sufferings and the futility of all medical treatment. A small boy down front who had been absorbed in the tale suddenly held up his hand. "What is it, Willie?" asked the superintendent. "Have they tried Dr. Smith?" asked Willie, loyally naming the family physician.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Your favorite picture star: She is a spoiled, lazy creature who spends the day in bed and rises at six o'clock in the morning to prepare her own breakfast in her personal, diamond studded kitchen that she carries with her wherever she goes. She is a lover of domestic peace and tranquility and has been married six times. She has an angelic disposition and flies into a rage at the slightest provocation. She is athletic, often playing polo in her swimming suit, and seldom goes out of doors except on business. She was born in 1888 and is nineteen years old.

What Mother Said

The poor old modern father has the greatest job in the world to get the better of his far more modern daughter. Whatever the aforesaid poor old modern father may say or attempt to say, Miss 1922 has an apt and ready reply. "That young man stays to an unearthly hour every night," said the irate modern father to his youngest daughter one morning. "What does your mother say about it?" "Well, dad," the modern young woman replied, as she turned to go upstairs, "she says that men haven't changed a bit!"

The Pilot

Oh, pilot, 'tis a fearful night, there's danger on the deep;
I'll come and pace the deck with thee, I do not dare to sleep.
Go down! the sailor cried, go down; this is no place for thee;
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

Ah, pilot, dangers often met we all are apt to slight,
And thou hast known these raging waves but to subdue their might.
It is not apathy, he cried, that gives this strength to me;
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

On such a night the sea engulfed my father's lifeless form;
My only brother's boat went down in just so wild a storm.
And such, perhaps, may be my fate, but still I say to thee:
Fear not, but trust in Providence, wherever thou mayst be.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

This is the time of the year when city folks like to run out into the country and buy winter apples of such varieties as the Baldwin, right at the farmers' doors. Some find it the cheapest way to stock up on apples for the winter. Many object to the Sunday sales by the farmers along the highways, however, as stores in the cities and towns are not allowed to sell on Sunday. The Sunday law does not seem to be enforced against the farmers.

The choice of George H. Wood as chairman of the special committee on "High School Spirit" of the Lowell Ad club, was an excellent one in every respect. This committee will seek the co-operation of the club in supporting and boosting high school activities. The idea is to arouse a lively school spirit, to boost the "Lowell spirit" and Lowell. This committee ought to be heard from a little later on. It has a lot of work cut out for it.

The recent quarterly meeting of the Lowell Historical society recalls the interesting fact that this organization is now 54 years old, having been established in 1868. The incorporation came in 1902. One of the excellent committees this year that is always busy, so to speak, is composed of Charles H. McIntire, William B. Goodwin and Joseph M. Wilson, who comprise the committee on genealogy.

Mme. Kalich, the actress, returns from Europe where she had a long talk with the cynical kidder, George Bernard Shaw. She says Shaw is weakening on his decision not to visit America, and he might come if he could shake off his fear that he would have to attend American banquets. If George waits a couple more years, he can visit us safely, for prohibition is rapidly driving the banquet to extinction. Oratory, except of the highest grade, goes begging when liquor is not served as an incentive to applaud.

New York holds a celebration of the 102nd anniversary of the birth of Madame Goldschmidt, the "Swedish Nightingale," known in musical history as Jenny Lind. A statue will be erected to this famous coloratura soprano, in Battery park. There was only one Jenny Lind, just as there will never be another Caruso. Old-timers say that to hear her was to get a glimpse of paradise. Music is one of life's most intimate contacts with the spiritual.

Soldier boys will be interested in the story of big Jim Vanbery, formerly a Kansas school teacher who was wounded 44 times during the war, left on the field for dead, and honored by funeral and memorial services in many towns. However, he showed up living, is now a reporter in Omaha, and recently was decorated with the distinguished service cross. Forty-four wounds! And he's still alive. Hypochondriacs, morbidly terrified at the slightest ache and pain, should paste this in their hats.

Birds of paradise plumes and wings, $15,000 worth of them, are seized in raids on nine millinery shops in New York city. To get their property back, the owners must prove that the plumage was legally in their possession before the passage of the wild bird feather exclusion law in October, 1913. Gents with red noses might view this as "infringement on personal liberty." What is the difference between prohibiting booze and prohibiting feathers?

I would suggest to the superintendent of streets that a sign indicating the road to Nashua be placed on the beacon at the junction of Merrimack and Pawtucket streets. As everybody familiar with that district knows, Merrimack street ends bluntly in Pawtucket street in front of the C.M.A.C. building, while the car tracks extend to the left and right. When tourists who are on their way to New Hampshire arrive at that spot, they are at a loss to know just where to go. Of course both roads lead to the Pawtucket boulevard; but this is not known by tourists with the result that in many cases they are forced to make inquiries. If a suitable sign were placed on the beacon, pointing in the direction of the Pawtucket bridge, it would prove a great relief to those who are travelling in that direction who are not acquainted with the road. Such a sign would entail but a small expense.

There is one happy man in Lowell and he is George Skalkeas, one of the proprietors of the People's market in Market street, for George has just received cheering news from the old country. When the Turks invaded Asia Minor some time ago, the Lowell man's sister, her two children and two brothers disappeared from Smyrna and all efforts to locate them had proved fruitless. Cablegrams were sent to Smyrna and Constantinople and Athens in an attempt to locate the missing people, but all in vain, and finally all hopes of ever seeing them alive were abandoned. A couple of days ago Mr. Skalkeas received a letter from his sister, stating that she was safe with her two children and a brother on the island of Chios. She states that her brother was forced to throw himself into the sea to escape death at the hands of the Turks and he was picked up by an English ship. The whereabouts of the other brother is not known. Mr. Skalkeas will now endeavor to have the party come to this country and he has already taken the preliminary steps for the passports and voyage.

A friend of mine working in a local bank tells an amusing story of a patron of foreign extraction, who has an account with his bank and who went to the institution recently, presumably for the purpose of drawing out his money. The clerk was extremely busy at the time and offered to make out a draft for the man, but he insisted on getting the real cold cash. The clerk naturally obliged and after counting out the money, handed it to his client. The latter, with a smile on his face, counted and recounted the new bills to his evident satisfaction and then handed them back to the clerk with the remark: "Here, put this back. I just wanted to find out if it was all there."

PRISONERS BREAK FROM SLIGO JAIL

SLIGO, Ire., Oct. 18—(By the Associated Press) Heavy firing early yesterday proved to be for the purpose of covering the escape of 18 irregular army prisoners from the jail.

The men constructed ladders out of torn blankets filed through the bars, let themselves down into an alleyway, scaled the outer wall and lowered themselves to the ground.

The fugitives met a number of armed men but sympathizers began firing and the prisoners got away clear.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

DREAMS

I've steadily stuck to my knitting,
I've plodded along here at home,
I've never had chances for flitting,
Although I've been crazy to roam;
But oh the great dreams I unravel,
The visions I've had by the score
Of how I might travel and travel,
And after that—travel some more!

By thoughts of adventure I'm haunted,
But, being uncommonly meek,
I never have got what I wanted,
I never have found what I seek;
The fault is my own, I can't cavil
If life is at times quite a bore,
Because I can't travel and travel,
And after that travel some more!

But when I am done with existence,
And tasks that are hum-drum and stale,
I hope I can roam through the distance,
And follow each heavenly trail;
Beyond all this grime and this gravel,
I'm longing for stars to explore,
To travel and travel and travel,
And after that—travel some more!

PROBLEMS SOLVED BY RADIO

English fans are using the radio to help them in their school studies. Broadcasting stations have been sending out valuable information in connection with the various schoolroom lectures ,and the boys are taking advantage of this help in solving their more difficult problems. Here are two enthusiasts learning facts about the sea and its life, by radio.

"SPARK HAMS" GET RADIO BARGAIN

(By N.E.A. Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Radio amateurs with the old-fashioned spark sets have recorded a financial victory.

Radio dealers are offering to sell each of these "spark hams" a complete radio outfit of the modern kind, at wholesale prices!

The reason for this is that the dealers who have an interest in broadcasting want to eliminate the interference they have been getting from the spark sets of the older amateurs. There is no law against spark transmission, so the only way out of the difficulty was to propose an enticing bargain to the amateurs.

Interference from spark transmitters has been almost as bad as static in this district. To make their broadcasting programs more enjoyable, dealers have decided the only way out was to induce spark amateurs to relinquish their sets for the modern tube sets. Their part in affording this change would be the sale of apparatus to such amateurs at wholesale rates.

Although this plan is proposed only for the sixth district, it may be applied to the whole country if it proves satisfactory here. It is subject to general acceptance by the amateurs, say the dealers.

SEND FLOWERS BY RADIO

If you want to send a bouquet to a friend in Europe, send it by radio. That is the suggestion made by a London firm of florists. It is based on actual orders for flowers by means of radio telegraphy. When the radio telephone is perfected so that transoceanic talk will be possible, orders may be given directly for the kind of flowers wanted.

According to members of this firm, 2300 agents deliver flowers for them in the United States and Canada. They, in turn, get similar orders from these agents. Heretofore they have been coming by cable.

Now it has become another use for radio.

RADIO MAY STOP TRAIN WRECKS

Radio may be the means of averting train wrecks.

Experts are already working on the possibilities of wireless in the saving of lives and property along railroad rights of way. Their idea is to invent a system of signaling by radio which would be absolutely fool proof.

Entire elimination of the human factor is the ultimate goal and radio may be a step toward it. A signal sent out from a stalled train could be caught by the engineer of an approaching train in time to avert a collision.

This is possible at present with the semaphore system, but experts believe radio warnings will make it foolproof. If the engineer for some reason disregards a radio warning, some sort of radio-controlled apparatus may be used to stop the train before it is too late.

NAVY NIGHT BY RADIO

"Navy Night" once a month is to be held by fans who listen in on W.J.Z. Newark, N. J., broadcasting station. On these nights, the navy department will broadcast information and other material about itself, through this station. The navy band will play and other bits of entertainment will be provided by naval men.

ENGINES DROWN RADIO

The United States army is making a special study of radio, especially in the direction of devising some plan by which the noise of airplane engines will not drown out radio reception. This has been one of the main difficulties in the operation of wireless on airplanes.

WRITING BY RADIO

Correspondence might be conducted by radio. This suggestion has been made in several quarters on basis of the recent invention of the teletype, a radio operated typewriter. If this can be done, mails would be supplanted by radio.

EARLY AND CORRECT ELECTION RETURNS

(Special to The Sun.)

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Unusual efforts are to be made by Governor Cox and his official council this year to make certain that the election returns are submitted speedily and without error.

Under the law, the governor and council constitute the official canvassing body for all state election returns. The statutes provide that within ten days after the election the clerk of each city and town shall forward to the governor's office a correct return of all the votes cast within his jurisdiction, and when all have been received, the councilors tabulate the figures and make announcement of the results.

In the past the work has been delayed every year, usually by the clerk of some small town who either failed to send in his figures on time, or, by failing to read his instructions carefully, sent in an erroneous return.

This year the governor has decided to make a personal appeal to the city and town clerks, asking them to do their part in expediting the handling of the tremendous task. His letter, sent out today by Charles A. Southworth, secretary of the executive council, reads:—

"To City and Town Clerks:—

Gentlemen:—

The governor and council, who under the constitution are charged with officially canvassing the returns of votes cast at state elections, have asked me to impress upon you individually the importance of making these returns within the ten days after the election prescribed by law, and also seeing to it that they are more accurate than they have been in many instances heretofore. Returns have often been extremely incomplete and erroneous, necessitating requests for amended returns, telephone conversations for verification, etc., which has held up the work of tabulating for a considerable time.

May I urge you personally to see that the number of votes cast for each candidate or upon each question is written legibly in longhand and also expressed at the right of the sheet in figures,—that the total number of votes given is actually the sum of the other figures on the sheet,—and that the returns are properly signed; also that if request is made for an amended return, it be forwarded immediately.

Your kind compliance with these requests will be greatly appreciated by the governor and council.

Sincerely yours,
C. A. SOUTHWORTH,
Executive Secretary,"

Don t Envy Perfect Health---Enjoy It!

You Can't Be Happy When Every Day Brings that Nagging Backache and That Tired, Weak, All-Worn-Out Feeling

ARE you one of those unfortunate folks who is always envying the good health and happiness of others? Do you arise in the morning lame and stiff? Drag through the day with your back a dull, unceasing ache? Evening find you "all played out," thinking only of a little rest before tomorrow's weary grind? Do friends and family wonder why you are so discouraged and out of sorts?

It's time, then, you were giving some attention to your kidneys! The kidneys, you know, are the blood-filters. Let them fall behind and the effect on blood and nerves is quickly apparent. Your back aches, you suffer, sharp, stabbing pains and feel dull, nervous, irritable and depressed. Your head aches, you are dizzy, and apt to be annoyed by bladder irregularities.

Heed these early warnings! Realize that your kidneys have fallen behind, and give them the help they need before some serious kidney sickness develops. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have brought new health and strength to thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These LOWELL Folks:

GEORGE V. MORRISON, Machinist
118 Lincoln St., Says:

"I worked in the paint shop for a while and the turpentine fumes knocked my kidneys out. I had severe pains in my back and to stoop over felt as though someone were pulling my back to pieces. I had to pass the kidney secretions quite frequently and they were highly colored and scalding. Everything went around in circles at times. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and half a dozen boxes cured me completely. My cure has lasted."

MRS. C. P. LYNDE
30 Puffer St., Says:

"I can hardly describe the misery I endured from lumbago. My back was so bad, that for days at a time I couldn't straighten and went around all bent over. Mornings I was all played out. My kidneys did not act right and my feet swelled so badly I had to unlace my shoes. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and secured some at Lewis' Drug Store. They rid me of the trouble."

TO PROMOTE A NEW EVANGELISM

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The formation by a group of Episcopal clergymen of the Modern Churchmen's union in America to "promote a new evangelism among the unchurched classes," was announced here today. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith, rector emeritus of St. John's church, Washington, D. C., is the first president of the organization.

Spokesmen for the organization said it was an outgrowth of the war "which shook the church and caused profound changes in its attitude." The Modern Churchman's union will not be concerned with administrative affairs of the church, it was stated, but its members are loyal churchmen anxious to spread the teaching of Jesus Christ in accordance with the development of modern civilization.

One of the purposes in a tentative program of the organization will be to "maintain the right to interpret the historic expressions of our faith in accordance with the results of modern and Biblical scholarship."

FALL RASPBERRIES FROM DRACUT

October hot waves or freezing temperatures have no terrors for the ripe, red, autumnal raspberries of delectable flavor that thrive on the sturdy ever-bearing shoots in the gardens of J. E. Park, Dracut.

Today by special delivery to the editor of The Sun came a dainty, be-ribboned candy box that appeared to carry chocolate-sweet confections familiarly known to all purchasers of tid-bits in the local candy stores. When the padded cover of the candy box was removed, after the ribbon was untied, the editor's desk became a magnet for many prying eyes.

Within the dainty confection carrier, instead of the usual many-variety bon bons, were glowing red raspberries, sun-colored, all of good size and laden with luscious sweetness and flavor fit for a June garden Lucillian banquet.

Not always are raspberries found at this season of the year, even in gardens where the ever-bearing fruit is not at all a rarity. As a rule these vines stop bearing earlier than this, and many small frosts kill the tiny fruit stems. The weather man has reported at least four heavy frosts during the past three weeks, all of which killed most of the vinous plants in and around Lowell. But the raspberry vines of our good friend and neighbor, Mr. Park, of Dracut, evidently withstood all attacks of the weather sling-shot artists, for these red raspberries, of excellent flavor every one and as colorful as the pictures you see in the garden nursery magazines that advertise them, would easily capture a prize for both quality and size.

The Dracut reader of The Sun may be assured that his unexpected gift of October 16, though a little late in the season, is none the less highly acceptable, and the exhibition of these fall raspberries with the summer delectability and attractiveness, is one worthy of special mention in place of the usual no-coal story and the snow-shovel price lists, even ahead of the latest congressional district campaign scrap.

The Sun hopes to hear from Brother Park again. Any man who can raise raspberries in the middle of October must have something worth [illegible] about, and this is the story in full.

THERE isn't anything in which a housewife takes more pride than in making a batch of light, fluffy tea biscuits. Nor anything that is relished more by every member of the family.

Even if you have never tried to make biscuits before, just follow this recipe, using Mazola as indicated. You will be surprised with the wonderful results.

TAKE:

1 quart of flour, sift with 4 teaspoonfuls baking powder and 1 teaspoonful salt. Then mix in gradually 4 tablespoonfuls MAZOLA with a knife or spatula. Then 1 pint of milk. Turn all out on a well floured board, pat it out with the hand and cut. The secret of good biscuits is a very hot oven. Biscuits should bake in 20 minutes to be perfectly delicious—light, flaky and tender.

For every cooking and baking purpose Mazola is equal to butter and better than animal fats, and you use less of Mazola. Its wonderful economy and high quality have given it the greatest sale of any brand of salad and cooking oil.

Revolt Threatened if Command Is Moved to London

BY JOHN O'DONNELL,
N.E.A. Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Salvation Army of America will break cleanly from the English parent organization and establish itself as an absolutely independent unit with Evangeline C. Booth as commander-in-chief if the "insurgent officers" who number 90 per cent. of the American Salvation Army are able to translate their present plans into action.

This is the result of the order of General W. Bramwell Booth which he issued in London through the newspapers recalling his sister from the American command which she has held for 18 years.

Only one obstacle halts the insurgents. That obstacle is the loyalty of Commander Booth to the tradition of discipline instilled by her father, the founder of the organization. Against this barrier, is the pressure from insurgents within the organization and friends from without.

"The spirit and blood of a soldier are in my veins," said Commander Booth. "I have never had a thought of doing anything other than obeying orders, even when they entail a sacrifice. But I will say that I have never before been called upon to make such a sacrifice as this order of my brother entails."

American Organization Indignant

Reports of bitter indignation have been pouring into the New York headquarters ever since General Booth's announcement about his sister's removal has become known.

The order was criticised first on the grounds of the "insulting and unmilitary" manner of issuance. It was first given to the press and then an official copy was sent to America. It was scored for its "heartlessness" in the removal against her wishes of a commander who had been in America for 18 years. No excuse of organization custom could be given, as the officers with whom General Booth has surrounded himself in London have held their places for 20 and 30 years.

But the fact that caused the move for independence on the part of the American Salvation Army was the decision by General Booth to have no national head in America and to divide responsibilities among three commissioners each of whom would be individually responsible to London.

This would prevent such unified work as the Salvation Army accomplished in America during the war. It was this that caused the independence movement to gain ground so rapidly.

"I am in absolute ignorance of where I shall be sent or how soon I shall have to go," said Commander Booth today. "I have not yet had any definite word from my brother relative to my removal."

Transfer Not a Promotion

"Have you any reason to doubt that he intends to take you from America?" she was asked.

"The newspaper statement was over his signature and I have no reason to doubt its authenticity," she replied.

"There is no command equal to that of America either in responsibility or importance," the commander replied when asked if her transfer could in any way be construed as a promotion.

"Will not your brother's decision to do away with a national head impair the loyalty of the organization?" she was asked.

During this part of the interview it was easy to see that the commander was making a sincere but futile effort to defend her brother's order and to protect the Salvation Army discipline.

"The Salvation Army organization in America is in harmony with America's ideal of national unity," she replied. "The separate divisions achieve unity under a single national head. While my brother is doing away with our national head, I do not think he is doing this with any purpose to break up the Salvation Army organization in this country."

Will Obey Orders, She Says

"But won't the breaking up of the American organization be the sole and inevitable result?" she was asked.

"Well, I only hope it won't then. In unity there is strength."

When asked about the strong sentiment in the Salvation Army in America which believes that it should break away from London control and ignore the recall, Commander Booth replied:

"I have never had a thought of doing anything other than obeying orders, even when they entail a sacrifice.

"The spirit and blood of a soldier are in my veins. There are no influences that could make me rebellious to discipline. Obedience to this order is the hardest thing I have ever had to do.

"But I shall go."

HANDSOME HANDBAGS

French tapestry and bits of old Indian and Persian fabrics are in demand for handbags. They are mounted on silver or metal frames and cords and tassels of harmonizing colors are used. They are carried with semi-dress costumes.

FALL FOOTWEAR

Fashion says that the low, flat heel is not to be so popular for street wear this winter, and that it will give way to a moderately high Spanish or Cuban heel.

CHEQUES MAILED TO WORLD SERIES PLAYERS

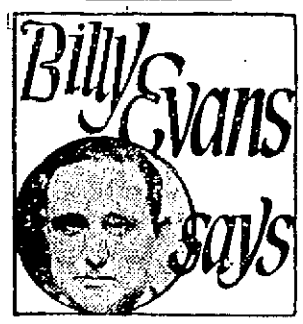

CHICAGO, Oct. 18, (By the Associated Press)—Cheques ranging in sums from $50 to $1545.71 were mailed yesterday from the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to 74 men who participated in the 1922 world series games at the Polo grounds, New York. Three cheques each for $2512.85, were handed to Players Joe Bush, Waite Hoyt and Fred Hofman of the Yankees, when they were leaving Chicago last Sunday, en route to Japan.

Eighteen Giants, including Manager John McGraw and Coach Jennings, each received a cheque for $4545.71. Five members of the Giants were given individual cheques for $1545.70, which is one cent less than the amounts received by the highest group. One of these was "Cozy" Dolan, the veteran assistant coach.

The veteran pitcher, Jesse Barnes, received one cent more than his brother, Virgil, who also is a pitcher. The cheques of 12 others, including players who were lately added to the Giants' roster, groundkeepers, trainers, mascots, etc., ranged from $200 to $2272.85.

Of the 20 cheques mailed yesterday to members of the Yankee club 23 were for $2542.86 each, and two for $2512.85. The remaining seven cheques represented sums ranging from $50 to $1421.43. The total amount of the cheques mailed yesterday was $177,289.37, of which $110,047.01 went to the members of the Giants, and $66,612 33 to the Yankees.

Cheques to the umpires who officiated in the baseball classic and to the players in the two major leagues will be mailed later.

Did the Giants win four straight games in the world series?

That question has been put to me time and again since the close of the series. It seems there is a slight difference of opinion on that point.

Back in 1907 the Chicago Cubs played the Detroit Tigers. The first game resulted in a tie. Then the Cubs proceeded to take four in a row. At the close of the series there was some discussion as to whether or not the Cubs won in four straight.

The consensus was that the Cubs had beaten the Tigers in four straight games. It was easy to argue the point because after the first game ended in a tie, the Cubs did go out and win four straight.

When the point is raised about a team winning four straight games in a world series, the inference is that one team will capture four straight before the other club wins a game.

A 4-4 is not a victory of course, as a matter of fact, since no decision is reached in such a game, it is really regarded in the light of no contest.

There are those who argue that the Giants did not win four straight. They insist the Giants won the first game, the third second and the fourth breaking the winning streak, and that the Giants then proceeded to win three in a row.

There is really little logic and no sportsmanship to such an argument. A club wins until it loses. The fact that the second game was a tie does not enter into the discussion. The Giants won four games in the series, and the Yankees didn't win a single game, hence the Giants must have won four in a row.

PRAYING COLONELS TO ARRIVE TOMORROW

DANVILLE, Ky., Oct. 18.—The praying colonels of Centre college entrained here early today for their trip to the Harvard stadium, where next Saturday the third annual Harvard-Centre football game will be played. Twenty-five players, Coaches Moran and Bond, Dr. C. B. Allen, faculty representative, and Student Manager Berryman made up the party.

Coach Moran's schedule called for arrival of the party at Boston Thursday noon, practice by the squad Thursday afternoon at the stadium or Braves field, and the final workout in the stadium Friday morning.

Players selected to make the trip were Roberts (captain), Gregor, Corrington, Lemon, Bartlett, Hudgins, Tanner, Green, Snowday, Johnson, Liggett, Hunter, Thomasson, Kimbel, Rubarth, Wood, Rubado, Lynch, G. Jones, C. Jones, Cecil Coombs, Rowland, Gordy and Shadoan.

MORE SWIMMING RECORDS SET UP

HONOLULU, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—More world's records were smashed here last night, the second of the swimming trials in the Outrigger Club's tank. Warren Kealoha broke his own world's record for the 100 meter back stroke by swimming it in one minute 12 3-5 seconds. His former record was 1.14 1-5.

Gwithia Shand of New Zealand swam the 440-yard free style in six minutes 14 2-5 seconds, thus bettering Sybil Bauer's record of 6.16.

Mariechen Wehselau made a new American record when she swam 50 yards free style in 28 4-5 seconds. The previous record was 29 flat.

Brains Big Factor on Gridiron

By "HO" McMILLIN
All-American Quarterback

What part does brute strength play in modern football?

Is brain and speed more essential than brawn in the open play that now features the grid game?

When a coach looks over his available material what style player has the most appeal?

The good old game of football has changed much in the last 10 years. The successful coach must adapt himself to existing conditions. A coaching system that was successful 10 year back would be an absolute failure today.

Brawn Not Essential

There was a time when football games were won by brute strength and awkwardness, but today we can't find a place on a successful team for the man with "a million-dollar body and a ten-cent head."

My experience has proved conclusively to me that this scientific game of football is still in the embryonic stage, therefore it is imperative that we choose the most active and intelligent men for our eleven.

Each season we are introducing new modes of attack and our field general is constantly changing his defense in order to successfully cope with these strong offensive experiments.

The general conception of a quarterback is one who directs the attack, but today both the defense and offense is directed by the wise field general.

Must Shift Styles

It has been my pleasure to act as field general for Centre college during the past four years. It was necessary to change our style of play for each game.

From my experience at Cambridge in 1920 it was evident that our success in 1921 depended upon the ability of our field general to instantly diagnose each Harvard formation and meet it with the proper defense. As I backed up the line I was in a position to direct my linemen.

Those of you who saw the game will remember that I had my center out of the line on practically every pass that Buell attempted. Although our 1921 line was lighter than the line which Harvard whipped in 1920 we were able to stop their line thrusts because our center had been shifted up into the line.

I have always tried to direct an offense which would require the least bit of energy because when we shift to the defense we want our backs and ends to have plenty of speed to come in fast on opponents' offense.

Resort to Strategy

In the Tulane, Auburn and Washington & Lee games last year our secondary defense always came in exceptionally fast and never allowed our opponents to gain around the ends or by forward passes.

Our team was criticised by a number of sport writers for getting our plays off so slow, especially was this noticeable in the Harvard game. Centre had a reason for using such methods.

On our close formations I would call a series which would indicate the point of attack. We would then try to widen the hole in the defense by calling short series of signals and shifting to and fro to pull the defense over. Just as soon as the hole was assured the snapping signal was called and our backs were through the hole like a streak.

Yes, it takes a smart team to play that kind of football, but, as I said before, 75 per cent of the game of football is played above the shoulders.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Young Tansey, Boston's sensational lightweight, is training every day with the best boxers in Boston and vicinity, as he wants to be in perfect condition when he steps into the ring at the Moody club on Thursday night to meet the hard hitting Joe St. Hilaire of Somersworth in the feature event of 10 rounds.

Tansey is out to win over St. Hilaire in impressive fashion and then he will go gunning for a match with Phinney Boyle, lightweight champion of Lowell. Tansey says he will show the Lowell fans that he is a worthy opponent for Boyle, and a bout with the popular local boy is his immediate objective.

Jackie Williams, who formerly managed Boyle, is handling Tansey, and while he admits Phinney is now boxing better than he has for five years he feels Tansey is the man to take his measure. Williams says Tansey is a great puncher, and while he may not be as skilful as some of the other lightweights in this vicinity, his hitting ability, he says, will more than offset any difference in cleverness.

Young Flaherty is scheduled to meet Spike Hennessy in the semi-final, and this number is expected to develop into a heavy hitting battle. Johnny Robert and Johnny Nelson are all set for their preliminary go and Larry Robson and George Gosselin are to perform in the other.

Lowell will be well represented at the resumption of boxing in Lawrence on Friday night, when three local batters will appear on the card. Jimmy Demas of Lowell will meet Young Ketchell of Lawrence in the semi-final, Eddie Purtell of this city will meet Ray Rancourt of Lawrence for the third time in a month, in a preliminary, and Lefty Williams, also of Lowell, will tackle Joe Delmont, Mike Castle of Lawrence and Roddy Dynon of New Bedford are to meet in the main event.

Pancho Villa, flyweight champion, is to meet Danny Edwards at the Boston Arena on next Monday night.

Charley Parker of Boston, who recently won a decision over Louis Hamlin of Nashua, is anxious for a bout with Phinney Boyle. Parker and Boyle have met three times, with the local boy winning twice and Parker once. Parker is training carefully and says he is ready to jump in any time against the local boxer.

The O. M. I. Cadets and the Butler A. A., two of the fastest football teams in this vicinity at their weight, are having it it through the columns of the papers, but the place to settle their claims and counter claims is on the gridiron. No doubt the rival managers will soon get together and agree to lineup against each other. When they do football fans are in for a treat.

Manager Ty Cobb of Detroit is strong for "Rip" Collins, who is to come to the Tigers next year in a trade with Boston. Collins has perhaps more stuff than any right hander in the American league, but has never been very successful. Lack of control, and a manager who could bring out the best that is in him, has had much to do with the failure of Collins to shine.

Nine games was the longest winning streak enjoyed by any American league pitcher last year. Joe Bush of the Yankees and Eddie Rommel of the Athletics shared the honors. During the 1921 season no American league pitcher won more than nine straight.

Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati Reds, while attending the world series, laid stress on the fact that Cincinnati had a great chance to stage the event in 1923. Moran, who made a sensational finish with the Reds, taking second place on the last day of the season by winning a double header from Pittsburgh, is confident his club will make things merry for the Giants.

Ed Walsh, in his day one of the greatest pitchers the game ever produced, will not be a member of the American league staff of umpires next year. Walsh was forced out of the game late in the season because of illness and has decided to give up the national pastime. He is acting as a deputy sheriff at Meriden, Conn., his home.

SISLER SAYS YANKEES PLAYED BELOW FORM

George Sisler, selected as the most valuable player in baseball, picked the New York Yankees to beat the Giants. Like practically every other expert in the country, George was unable to look very bad by the Yankees losing four straight.

However, George need not worry over the failure of the Yankees to come through. Just prior to the series 12 players on the Brooklyn team in the National league were asked for an opinion. Nine of the 12 said the Yankees would win easily.

"I predicted that either the New York Yankees or the St. Louis Browns would beat the Giants in short series. Despite the downfall of the Yankees I stand on the statement that the Browns could have turned the trick" says Sisler.

"The Yankees have great strength but seldom make use of it. Slow thinking has kept them from being a remarkable club. The Yankees during the season are either very good or very bad. In the series they were very bad.

"The overwhelming defeat of the Yankees casts a reflection on the American league that is decidedly undeserved.

"Despite the fact that the Yankees failed to win a game, no contest was decided by a greater margin than three runs. In every game but Scotts shutout and the tie the Yankees were out in front. In two of the games rallies in the eighth inning by the Giants decided the issue."

BOUTS AT MASS. MILL

The Mass. Athletic association will stage another of its high class amateur boxing tournaments at the mill on Friday night. Five four round bouts, between well matched and ambitious youngsters will be on the program. Joe Noel and Jack Cheswick are busy on the plans for the tourney and they expect to make the coming bouts real action producers.

DELANEY TO BOX GREB

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 18.—Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, has been signed to meet Harry Greb, light heavyweight champion of America, in a 10 round decision fight at Oklahoma City, November 11.

An ostrich lives about 30 years and the average annual yield of a bird in captivity is from two to four pounds of feathers.

BUTLERS ACCEPT CADETS' CHALLENGE

On hearing the foundation of the O.M.I. Cadets' challenge, the management of the Butler A. A. wishes to state that the Butlers are ready at any time to meet the Cadets on the gridiron for the championship of the city, which the Butlers now hold.

The management of the Butler A. A. fully understands that the Cadets have somewhat strengthened their lineup since they last met, also that they have been playing stellar football all this season.

In regard to the Butlers' record for the present season we have to date defeated some of the strongest teams hereabouts and expect to continue in the same capacity not excepting the Cadets.

Lancraft of the Butlers would like to meet Mgr. O'Conner of the Cadets at the Sun office tomorrow at 1 p. m. to arrange for a game Oct. 22

Co-ordination's the Thing Most Football Aspirants Haven't Got, Yost Shows

COACH YOST

BY BILLY EVANS

There would be a great many more good football players if more men that try for varsity elevens had co-ordination.

Many candidates for football teams know what they should do, but they cannot make their arms and legs do the things demanded of them.

Coach Yost of Michigan told us, while watching his squad practice, that he was trying to teach certain players co-ordination.

"Their minds and limbs don't work together," explained the coach.

Some Did, Some Didn't

At that particular moment the various players would start running at an angle. The coach would yell "Reverse." The players were supposed to go in the opposite direction. Some did it almost instantly when the command was yelled; others hesitated before turning. Some hesitated longer than others.

"Watch these boys for a few minutes and you will see what I mean," said Yost.

We watched and the meaning was apparent. It was a struggle with some to change the action of the body when the mind willed the change after the command was heard.

Lots of Work

Much of the preliminary work of this varsity squad was occupied in going through exercises invented for no other reason than to develop co-ordination.

"Over here I'll show you a tackle," said the coach. "This boy is big and strong and bright. He knows exactly what a tackle should do and he can answer almost any question you ask him about tackle play, but watch him!"

At this particular moment the candidate's team was on offense. The boy's hands rested on his knees, while the other tackles' hands were up.

"Get your hands up or you'll get hurt," yelled Yost.

Order Repeated Twice

The order was twice repeated before the tackle's hands came up. Then they dropped again. The order was repeated. Again they came up but before the ball was snapped they were down again.

A defensive lineman crashed into the tackle. His hands started up just before the impact; too late.

The ball changed hands. The tackle, naturally, went on defense.

The opposing quarterback called for a play against this tackle's side of the line. The tackle noted the runner start in his direction. He shifted his feet in opposite directions, was knocked sideways before he could regain his balance, but managed to regain his feet.

Took Him Too Long

The runner was passing by. The tackle lifted neither hand to stop him. Suddenly he whirled, flung his body at the runner and managed to catch him by the ankles.

"You see," remarked the Michigan coach, "he knows all the time just what he should do but he lacks co-ordination and he can't get his arms and legs to working as fast as his mind. It takes him too long to telegraph his orders to the limbs. If he had co-ordination that boy would be an All-America tackle as sure as he lives. He has everything that he needs, but good co-ordination."

So, each day, the candidates that do not respond rapidly are put through a program of exercises carefully planned to develop co-ordination between mind and body.

Ukulele Is Pipp's Hobby

WALTER PIPP

Every ball player has his pet hobby.

Walter Pipp of the New York Yankees is strong for the ukulele.

Walter Pipp is a husky six-footer. The ukulele seems a bit out of harmony with his makeup. But to Wally the ukulele is as necessary as his favorite glove or bat.

After the game, or in the evening, Walter serenades the guests on his floor of the hotel where the Yankees are staying. The ukulele is his constant companion off the field.

"Music makes you forget the worries of the ball field," explained Pipp. Which caused Babe Ruth to remark:

"You don't call strumming the 'uke' music, do you?"

Walter Pipp, by the way, was perhaps the most valuable player on the New York Americans the past season. Pipp's timely hitting and fine fielding won many a game for the Yankees.

There is a little story back of the sudden improvement in Pipp's play, which has Ruth as the central figure. As usual the Babe was the goat in the affair.

Pipp, always a mild-mannered individual, seldom gets into trouble. One day last summer in a game at St. Louis, Pipp did something that displeased Ruth. Some tobacco words passed between the two. Ruth was very rough in his criticism. Pipp resented it.

According to the story, Pipp told Ruth he wouldn't say "them there" words in the seclusion of the clubhouse. Ruth said he would and did. However, before he had finished his speech, Pipp had treated him to a boxing lesson that would have done credit to Benny Leonard.

When the affair was stopped Pipp was awarded the decision by a wide margin. Pipp's pugilistic outburst, backed up by a clean-cut victory, added much to his prestige in the Yankee ranks.

Incidentally it seemed to fire Pipp with a spirit that he never before had shown. The result was that he played the best game of his career in 1922.

BUSH GIVES HIS VERSION OF DISPUTE

When a kid did you ever have some one purposely trip you, and then when you started to cry, pat you on the back and tell you how sorry they were and they didn't mean to do it?

Joe Bush played the role of the bad boy in the world series. When he kicked against the orders of Manager Huggins to purposely pass Young, he assumed the role of Peck's Bad Boy.

To make matters worse he let the world know how he felt about it. When he finally agreed to obey orders he shouted:

"All right" in a sarcastic voice that could be heard all over the Polo grounds. To make matters even worse he threw a fast one in Kelly's groove that broke up the ball game.

"My action was a great injustice to Huggins," is the viewpoint now taken by Bush. "I always have had a temper and it gets the better of me every now and then. I acted like a schoolboy."

After emitting the apology which helps a bit, but doesn't in any way erase the act, Bush says:

"However I still think Huggins was wrong. Kelly had made three hits off me previously. Young had not been so successful. With first base open I could have worked on Young and tried to make him hit bad balls.

"If I failed I still had a chance with Kelly. With the bases loaded and Kelly up I couldn't waste any balls and felt compelled to try and get them over for Kelly. He singled on the second pitch."

FINAL OVERHAULING OF SCHOONER BLUENOSE

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 18.—The Canadian schooner Bluenose, here to defend her honors as the champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, went on the marine railway today for a final overhauling preparatory to the first race of the championship series on Saturday.

The Gloucestorman Henry Ford, the challenger, was also the subject of attention this morning. Work was begun on bending a new mainsail, after which Capt. Clayton Morrissey said he might take his schooner for a trial spin. The Ford will probably go on the ways tomorrow for her last inspection.

The hull of the Bluenose was to be painted and scraped today and the schooner was to be officially measured. Light airs and a thick haze combined yesterday to forestall the defender's first trial on Massachusetts bay.

WATER BILL PAYMENTS

According to a report of the city auditor the sum of $321,294.76 has been received by the city in payment for water bills sent out on the first of the month. The bills are the quarterly payments and more than 6000 of them were mailed.

SPEECH CAUSES FURORE

Kemalist Followers Result Lloyd George's Phrase "Warlike Animals"

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 17.—(By the Associated Press) Prime Minister Lloyd George's Manchester speech on the Near East of which a summary reached Constantinople last night, has created a furore among the Kemalist followers here. The entire summary was telegraphed immediately to Angora.

"This speech," said the Kemalist representative here, "completely shatters the confidence which we were reposing in Great Britain after her assurances to us at Mudania."

The phrase in which, as received here, the Kemalists were compared with "warlike animals" particularly displeased the nationalist delegate.

MUSKRAT PUT TOWN IN DARKNESS

BRIDGBURG, Ont., Oct. 17.—The village of Stevensville, which is served by a rural hydro line, has been without electricity for three days. Workmen searching for the cause of the trouble, yesterday dug down to the underground cable and found that a muskrat had chewed the cable to get the beeswax that is on the inside of the covering and had been electrocuted. Rat and cable are on display at the township hall.

YOUNG MORSE MUST STAND TRIAL

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 17.—Harry F. Morse, who is under indictment by the federal government with his father, Charles W. Morse, and others, charged with violation of the criminal code of the United States, alleged to be a conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, will have to stand trial in the southern district of New York, according to a finding made by United States Commissioner Hugh J. Lavery here today. Morse is to report before Commissioner Lavery on Thursday, to be detained for removal to New York.

CROWN PRINCE NEARLY KILLED

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 17.—Crown Prince Christian of Denmark narrowly escaped death or serious injury while motoring from the country into Copenhagen last night.

His car crashed into the gate at a gate crossing, just as the gate was lowered to protect the crossing from an approaching train. The automobile was considerably damaged, but it rebounded to safety just as the train swished by.

TO STUDY ANTHRAX

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—The administration is following a policy of accepting invitations to unofficial membership on commissions of the League of Nations when those commissions are charged with duties in which the United States is interested, it was said at the White House today in connection with the recent appointment of an unofficial American representative to a League committee to study anthrax.

ROTARIANS OPEN NEW CLUB QUARTERS

Lowell Rotarians put over a crowded free-for-all yesterday in celebrating the formal opening of the new club dining quarters and rallying place in the second story of the Boys' club building on Dutton street, banquet seats being at a premium and standing room only the rule from 12.15 to 2 p. m. when the fireworks were over.

Charles King and Arthur Deagan, Cohan comedians, came up from Boston to sing, dance and murmur quaint joshings in the direction of the gay clubmen. King sang "Nellie Kelly, I Love You," with a couple of encores, and Deagan, a 200-pounder, mounted the platform, hugged the piano and let go. His songs had the typical Kelly jingle, his jokes referred to the days of Tom Collins and Martini collections, and his song, "The Ace of Hearts," had everybody wondering how he did it. For a wind-up, "Kelly Is The Name" went big, everybody joining in a chorus that could be heard two blocks away.

Deagan's comedy work was excellent after he lost his high collar, tore off his necktie and dually removed his vest. His rich brogue made an instant hit. His Scotsman stories, too, were typical of the Scottish Hills and dales. Character work is his specialty, but he revels best in Irish comedy and Irish songs.

Henry Sullivan of the Cohan musical comedy company now appearing in Boston, was the accompanist.

Previous to the social hour, committees for the charity ball, to be conducted by the Rotarians in the new Auditorium, were announced. Ben Pouzzner was chairman of the entertainment committee arranging yesterday's events, and Ben Pickett, chairman of the afternoon's program.

A telegram from International Rotary headquarters informs local Rotarians that the present total membership is now 86,056. This is an increase of more than 3,000 in the past few weeks.

Rotarians are warned to be on the lookout for a bogus Rotarian, who claims to be "Major Victor Bruce Grand, of Scotland." He wears a uniform and claims to be a wounded veteran of the war, seeking funds to aid him in helping other wounded veterans. The "major" is declared to be a fakir of the worst sort and Rotarians' private purses have been nipped by him in some other cities. He was last reported to be working east from Rochester, N. Y.

President Hutchins Parker aroused enthusiasm when he referred to the number of tickets to be distributed for the charity ball. The club members have agreed to dispose of at least 4,000 pasteboards. Plans are now underway for building a one-story addition on the present Boys' club to accommodate the membership which now crowds the Dutton street structure.

The advertising committee is arranging to distribute large placards and secure window displays, as well as advertise extensively in the local papers, in order to make the Auditorium ball a success financially and socially. This is the Rotarians' first entertainment of this kind.

Among the guests yesterdy were Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Manager Maurice E. McCormick of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company, Harry Lindsey, Arthur Fletcher of Boston, Louis E. Studley, formerly manager of the Chalifoux store, and Robert McAvoy of Boston.

THIRD ATTEMPT TO END HER LIFE

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—Mrs. Paulette Saludes, trim French woman, who last night fatally shot Oscar M. Martelliere, real estate and insurance broker, attempted to break away from police and commit suicide twice today, while en route from the Tombs to homicide court. Mrs. Saludes tried unsuccessfully to jump from the window of a lawyer's office where she fled yesterday after the shooting.

Mrs. Saludes, according to her attorney, shot the broker when he spurned her love. Martelliere had promised to get a divorce from his wife and marry the French woman, they said.

GIRL PREFERS MARRIAGE TO FATHER'S $100,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Her father's promise of $100,000 if she remained unmarried until she was 30 was an inducement to Josephine Kryl for six years, but the idea of another six years—well, the idea did not last long after she met Paul Taylor White, a music composer of Boston. A message signed "Mrs. Paul Taylor White" announced that Josephine had broken her pact with her father.

Last week Josephine, who had signed contracts for European appearances this winter with various symphony orchestras, said she had an appointment with a dentist and left the Kryl residence. Her message from Boston was the first word her father received since.

DISTURBED CONDITIONS EXIST IN THRACE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 17. (By the Associated Press.)—Very disturbed conditions exist in Thrace, which the Mudania armistice agreement provided should be evacuated by the Greeks within 15 days, it is revealed by a British official statement issued today.

"The population of Eastern Thrace is undoubtedly in a very disturbed state," says the statement. "Although no concrete cases of serious disorders are reported, the allied generals feel that this is a time when everyone should keep his head and not lend himself to panic."

By seismic movements in 1922 in Chile, more than 100,000 square miles along the coast were raised permanently from three to four feet.

Women of Middle Age

THE critical stage of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 55, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness irritability, melancholia, heat flashes which produce headache and dizziness, and a sense of suffocation. Guard your health carefully, for if this period be passed over safely, many years of perfect health may be enjoyed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics. Its value is proven by many such letters as these:

Denver, Colo.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I can not tell you the good it has done me. It is good for young and old and I always keep a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for it. My husband saw your ad. in the papers and said, 'You have taken everything you can think of, now I want you to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound!' So I let him get it, and I soon felt better. 'I took about six bottles.' I keep house and do all my own work and work out by the day and feel fine now. I tell everyone about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well."—Mrs. R. J. LINTON, 1850 West 33rd Ave., Denver, Colo.

Metropolis, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it is all it claims to be and has benefited me wonderfully. I had been sick for eight months with a trouble which confined me to my bed and was only able to be up part of the time, when I was advised by a friend, Mrs. Smith, to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I was so much benefited by the use of these medicines that I was able to be up and about in two weeks. I was at the Change of Life when I began taking the medicines and I passed over that time without any trouble. Now I am hale and hearty and do all my housework."—Mrs. EMMA CUTLER, 705 E. 7th St., Metropolis, Ill.

"Thoughtful Mothers!" Are You One of Them?

All mothers—bless them—are loving and devoted. How often we are led to respect and admire the "thoughtful mother" who provides for emergencies and saves her loved ones from hours of suffering and herself from needless anxiety and sleepless vigil.

The season for colds, coughs, pneumonia, influenza and catarrhal ailments is drawing near, when the "thoughtful mother" makes up a full pint of pure, quickly effective cold and cough syrup; made at home by using pure concentrated Essence Menthol-Laxene (2½ ozs.) mixed with simple sugar syrup or strained honey. A pint of sugar and a half pint of water makes the syrup in three minutes. The essence and the syrup are then poured into a pint bottle and is ready to use to prevent bad colds and coughs getting worse. The very first dose gives wonderful relief and in a few days all trace of the congestion and catarrhal symptoms are usually gone. The joy of seeing the quick freedom from colds, coughs and dangerous complications, the freedom from anxiety and sleepless nights to say nothing of the real economy of this home remedy—is "worth its weight in gold"

Adventures of the Twins

TWINS RESCUED! GREEN WIZARD'S MAGIC MAKES 'EM INVISIBLE

THEY CLIMBED ON COMET-LEGS' STAR AND SOARED AWAY

Light Fingers and Comet-Legs were after Nancy and Nick, and Nancy and Nick, you must know, were likely to be caught. They were in the Fairy Queen's automobile and were stuck in a muddy ditch beside the road.

But the Green Wizard saw the danger and just as the two bad fairies reached the car he threw an enchanted sheet over the Twins, automobile and all, and they became invisible at once.

"For goodness sake!" cried Light Fingers, "I must be going blind. Tell me, Comet-Legs, did I or did I not see the magic automobile with the Twins in it?"

"You did!" declared Comet-Legs, "for I saw it myself. But I don't see it now. Something must have happened. Now, what do you suppose it was?"

The two bad fairies wondered and wondered, but that's all the good it did them.

By and by they wandered off, then they climbed on Comet-Legs' star again and sailed away to tell Twelve Toes the bad news.

"Not yet," answered the Green Wizard took off the enchanted sheet and there were Nancy and Nick in plain view again.

"Oh, thank you," said Nancy. "Now we can take the automobile back to the Fairy Queen."

"Not yet," answered the Green Wizard. "You are stuck in magic mud and I don't know any charm that will get you out. I'll have to go to the Chimney Sweep and get some ashes and soot to sprinkle 'round. You stay here until I come back."

So off he strode over the tree-tops to the place the Sweep lived.

Knock, knock, knock, went the Green Wizard on the big chimney, and the Sweep stuck out his head.

"Howdy," said he, "what can I do for you?"

PROBE DEATH OF KING OF HEALERS---NURSE HELD

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—A woman said to have been in attendance at the death of Francis Schlatter, who became nationally known a quarter of a century ago through his claim of power to heal, was sought today by the police, and a coroner's inquest was ordered to determine whether a mystery was involved or a hemorrhage induced by pneumonia was responsible for death. Schlatter died in a rooming-house here Monday night. The woman told a physician she was the aged healer's nurse and that she was leaving to visit a spiritualist in St. Louis county.

Mrs. Agnes Schlatter, a lecturer for a church publication, came here from Kansas City, Mo., last night and declared she believed her husband had met with foul play.

A death certificate was withheld until the coroner's jury could determine cause of death.

Schlatter is said to have attracted wide attention by "cures" at Denver, Col., in 1895, and became known as a "miracle man" and "king of healers." Once he was given national publicity as the man who cured Mrs. McKinley, mother of President McKinley.

MAY DELAY NEAR EAST PEACE CONFERENCE

LONDON, Oct. 18. (By the Associated Press.)—Allied closely to the ministerial crisis here and that impending in Italy, is the question of the general near eastern peace conference which it is feared, must be postponed until the situations in London and Rome are settled.

Remarking upon this contingency, the diplomatic expert of the Daily Telegraph writes: "The disadvantages of postponement might, however, be compensated in some measure if a postponement which will carry the conference well beyond the coming American elections should enable the Washington administration to ascertain the real strength of public feeling in the United States concerning American participation—at least within certain limits—in the proposed near eastern settlement."

WINS SMYRNA BRIDE

Burning of Asia Minor Port Sends "Picture Bride" to Lawrence Man

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Y. Chatelian, an Armenian of Lawrence, Mass., thought the burning of Smyrna was a terrible tragedy when he read about it in the papers. But he changed his mind somewhat after his arrival in New York yesterday.

Miss Victoria Melkonian, a "picture bride," caused Chatelian's change of mind. She told him that if her home in the Asia Minor port had not been destroyed in the conflagration, she probably would have decided against taking a chance on his desirability as a husband.

Miss Melkonian arrived on the Olympic last week and was sent to Ellis Island, where she caused a stir by proclaiming she was a "bride by destiny as much as by choice." She brought with her a vivid story of the burning of her home and the disappearance of her parents. She has dark eyes and a Grecian profile and Chatelian now thinks it would have been terrible if something had not happened to influence Miss Melkonian to come to this country.

THE NEW BOARD ABSENT

Commissioner Maguire Holds Fort at Registration Sessions—All Day Session

Mayor Brown's temporary elections commission failed to respond to registration sessions yesterday afternoon and evening held at city hall and Joseph H. Maguire, of the ousted board held the fort all day and night.

It wasn't expected that the temporary commission would be on hand during the afternoon session as a pressing engagement in Boston was detaining the members of both boards. However, the ousted board was on hand last night to assist Commissioner Maguire in his work. Members of the temporary board were not present, according to Mr. Maguire.

Mr. Maguire is at city hall again today taking charge of the all-day registration session there. This is the last day for registering before the state election. The office will be open from noon today until 10 o'clock tonight. It will be possible to register at any hour during this period.

Many telephonic queries have been coming into the elections commission office asking if the present difficulty would prevent people from registering. Commissioner Maguire said that all who desired to register would be taken care of just as if no controversy was going on. A total of 277 people registered yesterday.

VERDICTS FOR THE DEFENDANTS

Verdicts for the defendant were returned this morning at the civil session of the superior court in the double action of tort brought against John J. Long by John F. Gallagher and Charles Hanchett. In this case the plaintiffs were seeking to recover for work done in a building owned by the defendant. Mr. Gallagher's claim, which was for electrical work, was $300, while Mr. Hanchett was endeavoring to recover $500 for plumbing. James E. Markham and William A. Hogan appeared for the defendant.

The next case to go to trial was an action of tort, the ad damnum of which is $1000, which was brought by Mrs. Laila M. Pearson of this city against the Boston & Maine railroad. Mrs. Pearson is endeavoring to recover damages for alleged personal injuries, which she claims she sustained when she fell on a slippery floor at the North station in Boston on Oct. 17, 1919, the condition of the floor being due to the overflowing of a drinking fountain.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT

Judge Enright Makes New Ruling Relative to Continued Cases

Before taking up the small docket in the district court this morning, Judge Enright addressed the members of the bar who were present, telling them that hereafter, under no circumstances, would he grant continuances of cases more than a third time. The new ruling, he explained, comes as the result of a liquor case heard yesterday after having been continued at least ten times.

Although the docket was very small, much time was consumed in hearing the evidence connected with the assault and battery charge and drunkenness against William Mercier and Frank J. Dolan. Testimony was shown, that on the night of Sept. 28, the defendants were raising ructions in Race street in the vicinity of the Lawrence Manufacturing company. About 10 o'clock in the evening, the attention of Special Officer Lawrence was called to the scene of the revelling and when he attempted to place them under arrest, they forcibly resisted, it as alleged.

Another officer of the concern, Officer Buxton was called to aid Officer Lawrence, and upon his arrival, Mercier and Dooley assaulted him. So great did the struggles of the pair become that it was necessary to use physical force in quieting them and as a result both men landed in the hospital for treatment. After weighing the evidence, Judge Enright found both guilty of drunkenness and fined them $10 each for that offence. They were also found guilty of assault on an officer and sentenced to the house of correction for a period of three months. They appealed.

Georgia Recoutes was before the court for assault and battery on Henry Dagenais. She agreed to make a settlement out of court. Elizabeth Donnelly got out of the house of correction last Monday and was arrested last night for drunkenness. She appeared in the district court this morning and on her promise to get out of Lowell, and stay out, before next Monday, she was released. Frank N. Lecleare and Alphee Ostiguy pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawful keeping and paid fines of $100. Stanley Bindos, for being drunk and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to five months in the house of correction, from which he appealed. Manuel P. Reis, for operating an automobile in a manner to endanger the lives of the public, had his case continued until Oct. 24. A continuance of ten days was granted Frank A. Collias. He is charged with drunkenness.

court granted the mandamus petition of the election commission and ordered you to recognize them as the legally empowered board, that you would again remove them?" asked Mr. Howard.

"I have never made any such statement," replied the mayor.

Testimony given by Joseph A. Clouatre included a statement that the temporary board had examined 310 signatures upon affidavits with signatures on the petition and also with original signatures on file in the office of the election commission.

In rebuttal to this testimony Mr. Allard said he watched the temporary board in action for more than ten minutes and at that time they were only checking signatures on the affidavits with signatures on the petition. He also said the temporary board worked only eight hours in all and that it would take three days at least to properly check back the signatures on the affidavits with the original ones.

The last witness called with City Messenger Monahan. He admitted to Mr. Howard that he had stood in the council chamber on the night of the first hearing with the second removal notices in his hand and that this was before the first reinstatement had occurred. He later testified, however, that he had informed the mayor of the council's unanimous reinstatement of the commission, that the mayor had gone into his private office and had returned immediately with the second notices of removal.

Asked by Mr. Howard how long the mayor was in his private office, the city messenger said: "Not more than a minute."

Adjourned for the noon recess at 1 o'clock.

YESTERDAY'S COURT SESSION

The Lowell cases were reached after 3.30 o'clock yesterday, inasmuch as the petition of the original election commission was the first of the two filed. Judge DeCourcy ruled it should be given the right of way and Albert S. Howard, counsel for the commission, began his pleading.

Mr. Howard asked that certain signers of the Plan B petition be allowed to enter as interveners, but the court denied the request, although granting permission to file a brief.

On the question of allowing the original board to enter as interveners in the mayor's petition, however, the court ruled they were directly involved and accepted a brief filed for them by counsel. City Solicitor Tierney thought otherwise, but the court sustained Mr. Howard's contention.

Attorney Howard brought out the fact that neither the secretary of the commonwealth nor City Clerk Stephen Flynn had any material interest in the mayor's petition and informed the court that their counsel would not present argument, but will leave it with the plaintiffs to prove their case. This contention was substantiated by the representative of the attorney general's office and Fisher Pearson, representing Clerk Flynn.

During the forenoon opposing counsel in conference had arrived on a common ground in regard to many of the allegations set forth in the original election commission's petition and therefore, several of them were admitted as facts as read by Mr. Howard.

The fifth allegation, however, to the effect that the original commission had forwarded a certification of sufficiency to the secretary of the commonwealth after its work of checking the charter petition had been completed, was denied by Mr. Tierney on grounds that the commission had no duty to so certify under the law. He maintained this was a duty solely of the city clerk. Justice DeCourcy ruled the question as a whole of little material consequence.

In several instances allegations were admitted in principle by the city solicitor, but were amplified by counter allegations, bringing in the mayor's campaign of investigation, including the securing of sworn affidavits and unsworn denials of having signed the petition as included in the post cards received by His Honor.

The 12th allegation, that the mayor had acted in bad faith in removing the commission for the second, third and fourth times, charging him with improper motive and an attempt to keep the charter question off the ballot by the appointment of a temporary board who certified to an insufficiency of names, was denied by the solicitor, as was the 13th, which charged the temporary commission with interference with the duties and work of the original board.

Attorney Howard had hardly begun his pleadings in the second case, which names the secretary of the commonwealth and the city clerk as respondents, when the court adjourned.

Of the 555 officers of the regular United States army retired for disability since the World war, only 54 suffered wounds in battle.

STOLE RIDE ON EXPRESS

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—Covered with grime and his face reddened from the wind, 14-year-old Joe Jackson of Brooklyn, N. Y., was being held by police today after being taken from the tender of the New York Central Twentieth Century Limited early today following a fast ride on the engine tender from Albany, N. Y. Attempts were being made to get in touch with his parents.

It seems that this is the second attack of "travelin' blues" Joe has had recently, and it cost his parents $95 railroad fare to get him back from his previous venture. He said the object of his present tour was a job in Chicago, to enable him to repay the $95.

"But now it's all off again," he said. "I suppose I'll catch everything when I get home. I did the last time."

Molly Varnum Chapter Hears Congressman Rogers On Near East Situation

The situation in the Near East and its relation to the policies of the United States and other nations of the globe were described in an interesting manner yesterday by Hon. John Jacob Rogers, who spoke before the members and guests of Molly Varnum chapter, D.A.R., at the Spalding house. The congressman outlined Near East conditions and revealed many interesting details not generally known to the public.

Mr. Rogers referred at length to the great question of Islamism, which he declared this country cannot ignore. With the Turks now given practically everything that they had before the war, Mr. Rogers said the causes that actuated the big nations in granting their former war enemy so many things at this time, must be better understood. England has to recognize that more than 100,000,000 Islams are now under British authority. They are to be reckoned with. Lord Northcliffe once declared that not a nation on the face of the earth was safe from the future surge of Islamism. The doctrines of this church are spreading constantly.

Mr. Rogers declared further that the United States can play its most useful part in the problems of reconstruction and the questions in dispute, "not by throwing armies into the field, but by asking nations to regard it as a common friend and mediator, and have them come to us and talk things over." But these things cannot be done in a day, the congressman added.

After the meeting there was a social hour, with refreshments served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. C. E. Howe, chairman.

COKE AND COAL BURNED

Spectacular Night Fire Caused Damage Estimated at Several Thousand Dollars

Fire gutted the sheds of the Preston Coal & Coke company in Wilden street, off Moore, last night, causing damage estimated at several thousand dollars. The flames, fanned by a high wind, soared into the air, endangering property over a wide area. The fire, which was highly spectacular, attracted many people to the scene.

The alarm came in from box 46 about 10.30 o'clock and when the firefighters arrived the sheds were burning rapidly. It was thought useless to attempt to save the buildings and the department directed most of its efforts in preventing the spread of the blaze.

Police officers and railroad employes working near the Blenchery saw the flames and ran to the barns from which four horses were taken from the stalls unharmed. A number of wagons were stored in the sheds, and while a few were removed, many were burned.

The fire apparently started in a shed used to store paper bags. According to one member of the firm, about $6000 worth of paper bags were stored in the shed.

It is claimed that there was no hard coal in the sheds but that a number of tons of coke and some bituminous were stored there. The amount of coke is estimated at 300 tons.

The sheds were owned by Frederick B. and John H. Preston, with the latter acting as general manager. The men have been in business here about 12 years. It is said the loss is covered by insurance.
